The Greatest Tractor of Them All Will Not Be at the Show

We hoped to have it here for your approval. But with all our engineering skill and producing facilities, with all our success in its development we did not care to exhibit it until it was ready to go to work.

If it were here and you saw it work you would exclaim: "That's the most sensible tractor I've seen."

And you would be right.

The new Hart-Parr Tractor is built to fulfill the requirements of the largest possible number of tractor users. And by "requirements of tractor users" we mean just that. We went to thousands of farmers and said: "What do you ask for in a tractor?" We found out what you wanted and we have built it for you.

And all this has been done in such a way that this tractor will go to the user at a price which will enable every worth-while American farmer to own one.

Look over all the tractors at the show. Study them closely. Set down what seems to you to be the best well-tried and successful feature of each. Then wait for the announcements of the three-plow Hart-Parr Tractor in national publications and see whether or not this tractor is what we claim it to be--the most sensible, the most practical, the most economical tractor, the one you'll buy.
