Wheat and Corn Advance Early in Day, But Sell Off Later. Chicago, Aug. 9.-Notwithstanding that at first today the final passage of the food control bill did not affect grain values, weakness developed later owing largely to a falling off in demand from distillers, upon a failing off in demand from distillers, upon whom the new measure had placed restrictions forbidding the manufacture of alcoholic beverages. Corn, sithough steady at the close, was %c to le net lower at $1.16% for December and $1.13% for May. Wheat finished unsettled, 3c down, with September at $2.2. The outcome in corn ranged from the dealers to the sequence. Provisions at $2.22. The outcome in corn ranged from %0 decline to %0 advance. Provisions wound up unchanged to 250 higher.

Although the government estimate of the corn yield was the largest on record, the total fell short of what a majority of traders had looked for and values advanced until purchasing for distillers began to shrink. Prices showed a decided downward slant. A further handicap to the bulls was a report that loading of Dutch vessels in American waters had been stopped and that as a result there might be reselling of considerable grain. considerable grain, considerable grain.

Wheat, like corn, showed an early advance, ascribed to disappointment over the cutting down of the government estimates of probable downestic yield of wheat, but when corn values headed down grade wheat followed suit. Relative firmness of oats appeared, due to wet weather. There were also complaints of car scarcity.

Provisions soared to new high price recovery of the complete recovery ords for the season, but receded later on realizing. Topmost quotations ever reached on hogs furnished the impetus for the advance in provisions. St. Louis Live Stock Market. St. Louis, Aug. B.—Cattle—Receipts, 3,000; market strong. Bondas—Government, 4400s; rallend to the assistant general superintendency of the entire system. Two years later he received another acknowledgement of his worth and ability by receiving the appointment of general superintendent. He filled that position with ability such as few men in the railway service possess. In 1889 Mr. Dickinson was made general manager of the Missouri river division, comprising the lines in Nebraska and Kansas. July 1, 1890, he was retired, and before the news had become generally known he was tendered and accepted the position of general superintendent of the Trans-Ohio divisions of the Baltimore & Ohio, with headquarters at Chicago. Goes to Kansas City.

Eight years ago Mr. Dickinson went to Kansas City as vice president and general manager of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad. Later, when the road went into receivership, he was appointed as one of the receivers. Last December his health failed and he resigned. home since has been at Alexandria, Minn.

During his long and successful career on the Union Pacific he made more personal friends than any man who ever occupied an official position with that line. He was one whom every employe on the whole system admired. He was strictly business, and it was always safe to say that any man in the service would be given justice at all times when called to his office. While Ed Dickinson was intimately known by thousands of railroad men over the country, none knew him better than those of Omaha. Among the Omahans there was none more closely associated with him than J. S. Sykes, at the present time assistant to President Calvin of the Union Pacific. For years, while Ed Dickinson was connected with the Union Pacific, J. S. Sykes was his private secretary and as such was in close contact with him for years, Speaking of Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Sykes said: "Ed Dickinson was one of the best men that I ever knew and not only railroad, but other, business men and laborers in the humble walks of life will mourn his death. They will all remember him as a true friend and a most genial gentleman. With him one man was a good as another if he was true and possessed the manly principles that go to make up the man. Out on the road he was as courteous to the poorest section man as he was to the general manager and when he was with the Union Pacific from one of the systems to the other his trips over the divisions were looked forward to with great pleasure by the men."
