

OFFERS TO REPLACE ANY EXEMPTED MAN

Fined as Slacker, McEwan Admits He is a Dishonorably Discharged Soldier.

Elmer McEwan doesn't look like a "slacker." Yet that is the charge on which he was brought before Federal Judge Woodrough Saturday morning. He is a big, fine-looking chap of 22 years. And he answered all questions put to him by the judge and Assistant United States Attorney Saxton with a respectful "sir" at the end of each sentence. That indicated army training.

In fact, when he told his story it was shown that he is an ex-army man. And he admitted that he was discharged from the United States army dishonorably.

He enlisted in the regular army several years ago when he was only 18. He was sent with his regiment to Honolulu. Far from home, he grew lonely and homesick. And he sought to drown his sorrows in the fiery alcoholic liquors of Hawaii. He was soon a slave to them and his habitual drunkenness led to his dishonorable discharge.

For a year and a half, McEwan said, he has not touched a drop. On registration day he was working on a farm near Dalton, Neb. He failed to register. He left soon after registration day and went to his home in Denver. There he was arrested. He was also registered there.

Prosecutor Saxton recommended mercy in McEwan's case. He said McEwan was not a "slacker" in the usual sense of the word, but wanted to enlist.

"I'd be glad to take the place of some exempted man, sir," said McEwan wistfully.

Judge Woodrough sentenced him to sixty days in the Madison county jail, with the provision that if the Denver exemption boards call for him at any time to take the place of an exempted man the sentence will be suspended.

It is a question whether McEwan will be accepted in the draft army. For there is that black mark on his record, the dishonorable discharge. But he hopes to get in.

Alleges Wife Humiliates Him Before His Friends

Bruce White has filed an answer and cross-petition to his wife's divorce suit in district court, alleging she entertains other men and humiliates him in the presence of his friends. His wife, Viola White, alleges infidelity. They were married at Sioux City in December, 1910.

This Shows the Way Men of "Dandy Sixth" Get Outside of Pies Like Mother Used to Make

The 375 pies to which the women of the National League for Woman's Service Friday afternoon created the soldiers quartered at the Auditorium, went down in record time.

Each soldier received a plate with two varieties of pie. All the flavors and varieties of pie of which the most learned culinary expert could possibly conceive were in abundance.

Company by company the men lined up and passed the mess table, where the women in charge handed out pies at the rate of half a pie to a man. Conversation was conspicuous by its absence, as the men sat around in groups devouring the delicious homemade pastry. Tongues were too busy for mere talk, but the unmistakable look of satisfaction on every tanned face testified to the ability of Omaha housewives to make pie that "hits the spot."

The machine gun company of the "Dandy Sixth" lined up and gave three rousing cheers for the women of the National League, and all the others boys in the building echoed the sentiment.

The pie feed was in charge of the commissariat department of the National League for Woman's Service, headed by Mrs. L. J. Healey.

HARCOURT OPPOSES ENGLISH REPUBLIC

Liberal Leader Says Great Britain Already Democracy in Fullest Sense; No Change Needed.

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) Rawtenstall, England, July 15.—Opposition to the idea of reorganizing the British government on the lines of a republic recently was expressed by Viscount Lewis Harcourt, member of the liberal party and formerly secretary of state for the colonies, in a speech delivered to his constituents here. He said:

"Because there has been a revolution in Russia and a deposition in Greece, and because there were already republics in France and the United States, a small minority of thoughtless and illogical persons in this country thought or said that we shall have or should have a republic here.

"Why, in the name of wonder, should we radicals and democrats want or seek anything of the kind in this country? What in heaven's name could any of us gain by it? We have already the most perfect and complete democracy that the world has ever conceived or constructed. We carried out an orderly revolution through parliamentary legislation by which we deprived the crown of all its undemocratic prerogatives, until today the king stands as the best hereditary popular president which any constitution monger could create.

"Our own system of limited monarchy is the most strictly limited and most plebeian form of monarchy which any sane republican could desire or devise. No elected president would obtain the prestige, especially in India, which we happily find in our present hereditary head of the British commonwealth."

MARMON 34

RATTLES and Their Causes Avoided by Marmon Construction

Squeaks and rattles are "the mental hazards of motoring." Perhaps there is nothing more distracting to the driver of a car, or more embarrassing to the owner.

The Marmon's freedom from all disquieting noises is an outstanding feature. But more important still are the reasons for it:

Marmon scientific construction eliminates many parts.

The body, for example, is bolted directly to the frame. Intervening sills are done away with. The steel running boards are riveted to the frame, and that abolishes hangers, side-shields and extra fastenings.

In ordinary cars all such parts are dead weight. In the Marmon their work is done by structural parts—by live, working parts.

There are no heavy fender irons. Fenders are aluminum, bolted directly to the frame and running boards.

In many ways the Marmon construction eliminates useless supports and joints—the greatest causes of squeaks and rattles.

At the same time needless weight is also abolished. When fully equipped for the road this long, low car is a half-ton lighter than others of its size and power.

To appreciate its simplicity, its ease in handling, and its comfort on any road, please accept our invitation and drive it yourself.
