Urges Growing of Alfalfa

On Vacant Lots in Omaha

Regarding the use of vacant lots and the possibility of beautifying the city.

There is a growing sentiment among real estate people that the present method of handling vacant lots and blocks is obsolete.

The idea of leasing lots for $1 a lot simply to pay for the care required and to prevent some squatter from getting possession is childish.

While a well-conducted garden on a vacant lot is an advantage both to the gardener and the landlord.

There is a disposition now, under the changed sentiment as to the proper care of a city, to beautify vacant and unoccupied property, especially if it is with a crop which can be made reasonably profitable or sufficient to pay expenses.

With the high price of alfalfa and of alfalfa seed, it is argued that if every vacant lot in Omaha were sown down in this forage crop, that the city would be additionally beautified in another year, and not only the expense would be paid from the harvest, but considerable profit.

It is recited that those who have carefully gardened, or have made proper efforts to get a crop result out of lots or blocks this year, have made well.

The ordinary block contains about five acres. This ought to bring in $100 and at present prices much more.

Concerted effort on the part of owners of vacant lots, especially the larger tracts, and the real estate agents would do much to add to the growing attractiveness of the city and the profits of the property.

Farewell Meeting for Hibernians' Soldiers

The Hibernian divisions of Omaha held a special farewell meeting Friday in honor of Edward McDermott and Daniel Devlin, who leave in a few days for the officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, Minn.

Mr. McDermott, who is state secretary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, recently was graduated from the Creighton Law school, while Mr. Devlin is a man of unusually wide military experience, having served as captain in the crack Irish-American regiment, the Sixty-ninth New York, throughout the Spanish-American war. He was later commissioned a major in the same regiment.

Both men were assured that the Hibernians left at home would not forget their brothers in the field. An announcement was made that the local divisions had not only raised their assessments for the $1,000,000 war fund proposed by the Hibernian national committee, but had appointed committees to look after war relief work of a purely local character.

Colonel P. C. Healey on behalf of the other members presented gifts to the future officers, who left Saturday for Fort Snelling.
