South Side Poles State Their Position in War

Polish citizens of the South Side have adopted the following resolutions showing their allegiance to this country and the aims of their country-

We, the Poles of the South Side, Omaha We, the Poles of the South Side, Omaha. Neb., assembled in meeting August 26, 1917, in half at Twenty-seventh and L streets, to henor the third anniversary of the beginning of the Polish war for independence; sxtend the words of our humble homage and unlimited lave to the chief of the Polish nation. General: Joseph Tissidski, who led the Polish people to the struggle for the holy cause and leads it presently in a glorious way to victory.

holy cause and leads it presently in a glorious way to victory.

We lend our voice with that of whole of Poland in its manly and hold protest against the depredations and iniquities of the German authorities in the part of Poland occupied by the German troops that dared to attack the personal fractom of General Tilsudski. We hall with joy the resolutions of the Pollish parliamentary clubs in Galicia and in Augaria, and the defiance of the kingdom of Poland against Germany and we see in it another step on the way of realization of the full pregram of independence, which, after the fall of the ozar of Russia, aims presently at the other enemy of Poland—Germany.

We declare solemnity that as we were sup-

Manager Paul Kruger is highly indignant at the whole affair and declares that the raid was not justified and that the officers had not the proper authority to enter the rooms the way they did.

"I read the warrant they showed me," he said, "and on it there was nothing written specifying that the Millard hotel should be entered. It merely gave authority to raid a brick building on Thirteenth and Douglas streets. Why should they choose the Millard? There are other brick buildings on this corney and there are other hotels around here. And, furthermore, I know of no law in the United States which holds a hotel responsible for the actions of its guests. Also it is obviously out of the question for me to question every person who enters as to whether he has any liquor in his possession or not. We were not dealing in liquors, nor have they any proof against us."
