

BIG PROFITS IN RAISING CORN

"Farmers Would Become Millionaires in Few Years Raising Corn at $1 a Bushel," Says Leftwich.

"If I was sure of being able to raise corn and always selling it at $1 a bushel I would buy all the land that I could get hold of and plant it to this cereal. I would grow corn in Nebraska during the summer and spend my winters in California," said Zach Leftwich.

For years Mr. Leftwich has been an agriculturalist on a large scale and at the same time he has maintained extensive cattle feeding yards in Grand Island and DeSoto. Now he is being attracted by the high corn prices and freely predicts that the government having fixed the maximum selling prices on wheat it will not be long until it will turn its attention to corn. He expects that when this is done the price will not be below $1 a bushel. Continuing his discourse on corn Mr. Leftwich said:

"I don't know of anything that is a better money maker than raising corn at $1 a bushel. It will make a Nebraskan a millionaire in a few years if he but keeps at it."

Big Profit.
"We have the best corn producing state in the union and all through the eastern portion, take one year with another, the average yield will not be much less than forty bushels to the acre. Even if this is grown on $200 an acre land—and there is plenty of land in Nebraska, in the Missouri valley, that sells at this price—at $1 a bushel, there is an enormous profit. "Corn is the cheapest and easiest crop a farmer can raise. No expensive machinery has to be used in its harvest. The planting season is long and after the planting, all it needs is care. The labor employed in caring for the crop is not of the high priced kind and the same holds true with reference to the harvest. The harvesting does not crowd the grower for the reason that he can pick corn at any time after the killing frosts come, then up to the following spring when it is time to plant the next crop."

Furish Good Fodder.
"In addition to all this, the stalks furnish the best kind of fodder for cattle in the fall and if they are not to be fattened for market, a stalk field of 100 acres will winter feed a pretty good sized bunch of cattle. "Again, I repeat, if I was sure of $1 a bushel for corn right along, I would turn my whole attention to raising this cereal and with a large acreage of the fertile Nebraska land, it would not be long until I would be about the richest man in the state."

Condition of "Dad" Weaver Regarded as Most Serious

J. D. (Dad) Weaver, secretary of Ak-Sar-Ben, injured in an automobile accident, has taken a turn for the worse and his condition is extremely critical. Peritonitis has developed, according to Dr. Louis Swoboda, which leads the physician to regard Mr. Weaver's condition as dangerous. Mr. Weaver is constantly delirious and trained nurses attend him day and night. Unless the veteran Ak-Sar-Ben secretary takes a turn for the better today, little hope is held out for his recovery.

Hospital Corps and Tent at the Big Muny Guard Camp at Elmwood

Captain C. L. Kline in command. First Lieutenant Jerome Dimick, Bob Baxter, Guilmore Grove, Irvin Williams and Elmer Thorson.

The playground army at Camp Hummel, Elmwood park, will not break camp until Saturday morning. The boys have been having such a fine time that Commissioner Hummel and Colonel Mather decided to extend the outing one more night. One boy was sent to the guardhouse. He "sassed" an officer. When Mr. Hummel happened along and espied the lone occupant of the "booby hatch" he interceded with Colonel Mather, who put the recalcitrant youngster on his good behavior. Competitive drills will be held this afternoon when the sun begins to disappear in the west. Health Commissioner R. W. Connell visited the camp and reported that the health of the camp was excellent. The promoters of this playground army encampment idea state they will hold another outing next year and expect the attendance will be increased on account of the popularity of the event.

The case was continued until further evidence is obtained. Thursday night Sergeant Russell and officers of the morals squad raided Yeager's place and found six and one-half gallon jugs containing whisky, one pint of gin and twelve bottles of bitters. The liquor was discovered in the basement, but the defendant swears that he was ignorant of its presence, and inasmuch as entry to the basement is accessible to others, Yeager was released on bonds.

Universal Brotherhood Will Be Result of War

The era of universal brotherhood will be brought in by the war, thinks Major Maher, assistant quartermaster of the Omaha supply depot. "Men and women of all classes are being brought together," said he. "I noticed it at once in Lincoln when the war was declared. Women, for instance, had kept apart in little social cliques, each set refusing to mingle with the one it considered a notch lower in society. "Then came the war and all petty matters were forgotten. Now the women work like sisters in the Red Cross work and such activities, united by a common cause. "In the army, men of all classes are thrown together and become friends. We are going to learn that each man has certain rights and privileges. This will be a better world after the war is over, for true democracy will have come."

CERTIFY LIST FOR FIRST DRAFT CALL

Names of Five Per Cent to Be Called in First District in the Hands of Governor.

Lists were certified to Governor Neville this morning by the First District Appeal board which will enable the state officials to pick the 5 per cent quota from twenty-five counties to entrain for Fort Riley on September 5. Lee L. Metcalfe, secretary to the governor, was in the city conversing with the appeal board on the plans of entraining the men and urged greater speed in the certifications. Meal tickets will be furnished the men by the local boards that will enable them to get meals until the arrival at the camp. When each quota from the local board leaves the governor is to be notified, at what time they left and if all the men were present. The men are also asked to have a suitable pair of high shoes, as this will aid greatly in their comfort at camp.

The local boards in Omaha are deciding on what men they will send. Many have applied to go on the first call, but the boards will pick the men that have had experience, so that they will be of greater aid at the camps. Eleven men will be sent in the First district, thirteen in the Third, fourteen in the Fourth, twelve in the Fifth and twenty-one in the Sixth. Answers are now coming in from the secret agents in the state that are looking up appeals of the men. One agent writes that a man claiming exemption for support of a wife and two children has been divorced for over a year for "notorious drunkenness."

"If this man fights the Germans as good as he used to fight his wife he will sure be some soldier," writes the agent.

Grocery Store Moved Into Army Building

The "commissary" of the Omaha supply depot has followed Colonel Grant, the quartermaster, and moved up town, in the Army building. Men of the quartermaster's staff were busy this morning filling the shelves of several rooms on the first floor with canned goods, soap, flour and all necessities that can be kept without ice. No fresh vegetables or meat are handled by the commissary, but officers' families in and near Omaha may get everything else in the provision line at the commissary store and save money. The army commissary has long been a sample of the saving to be gained by government ownership. The goods are bought in quantities, are of the very best quality, and no great attempt at bargaining is made, for the

Yet a saving of 10 to 30 per cent is made by families of the officers who are privileged to buy at the commissary. The goods are sold to the army families at cost. About thirty-five families of army and navy officers in Omaha now patronize this central store. The families at Fort Crook and Fort Omaha get their supplies from the quartermaster's depots in the forts. If an officer is sent to a training camp or to the front and his family remains in Omaha, the family is still entitled to get supplies at the commissary in the Army building.
