Sailors Display Heroism Facing U-Boat Attacks

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)
London, July 15.—Germany's present method of sea warfare is one of despair, declared Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, first lord of the British ad-Admiral Jellicoe was speaking at a meeting held to inaugurate a move-Totals.38 8*30 14 1 Totals..37 8 33 8 0 ment to establish a fund for sailors Paying a warm tribute to the British merchant marine, the admiral said the sailor never knew a moment when the ship might not be sunk under him and he very seldom saw the enemy which sank him. At the best he took to the boats often 100 to 200 miles from shore and often underwent terrible experiences because the enemy shelled the boats frequently after the men got into them. The only effect of that treatment on the British sailor was to make him keen to get back to sea again to have a chance of getting his own back again.

Sir John gave some instances of the spirit which he said animated the sailthem were the following:

The Anglo-Californian was attacked and shelled for two and a half hours by a submarine. After the attack had lasted one and a half hours and the ship had been hit frequently, the captain decided that any attempt to save his vessel was hopeless. As it was being abandoned he intercepted a wireless message from a destroyer ordering him to hold on as long as possible. The captain and the ship's company promptly went back to their vessel. The submarine contnued to shell the ship, the master and eight hands were killed and seven of the crew were wounded, but the ship returned to port.
