OPENING STATEMENTS IN KELLY CASE; KORNILOFF REVOLUTION COLLAPSES

LEADER OF RUSS REBELLION WILLING TO SURRENDER TO PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT

Premier Kerensky Demands Unconditional Surrender of General Korniloff and Leaders of His Following; Danger of Battle Near Petrograd Said to Be Past; To Abandon Enterprise.

London, Sept. 13.-General Korniloff, former commanderin-chief of the Russian armies and leader of the rebellion against the provisional government, has expressed a willingness to surrender on certain terms. The provisional government, however, demands his uncon-

An outline of the constitution and policy of the new government and the future leadership of the army was drawn today by Vice Premier Nek-

General Russki, M. Nekrasoff stated, is to be named as commander on the southern front; General Dragomiroff will command on the western front and General Diederichs will be quartermaster general. The policy which General Korniloff demanded for army control will not be pursued, according to the vice premier.

The government, M. Nekrasoff declared, will be conducted on the same social basis as formerly. The government will not be a coalition one, he added, inasmuch as its existence will not depend upon the inter-party agreement. He said M. Pieschehonoff, the minister of food and supplies, will resign, as, also will M. Savinkoff, the assistant minister of war. He indicated a change in the ministry of foreign affairs also was probable. Moslems Abandon Korniloff.

Britishers Invite U. S. To Visit Fighting Front

Washington, Sept. 13.— An invita-tion to congress to send a delegation to visit England and the British fighting front was received today by Vice President Marshall from Lord Chan-cellor Finlay and J. W. Lowther, speaker of House of Commons.

Kelly said: "I never saw that ax before today," to his lawyers as the proceedings for the day closed.

The weapon which had been used to end the lives of a father, mother and four children in one family and two visiting young women, had been deposited on the table of the court reporter as evidence. Kelly sat where he faced the long-handled blade and his eyes wandered frequently to where the instrument of death re-

GIVE BLOODY DETAILS.

Early in the taking of testimony four physicians who have been connected with the case from the start testified to the blood-curdling details of the crime for the purpose of getting before the jury the exact condi-tions in the Moore home when the bodies were found.

The four physicians described each body as found and related the nature of the wounds and other details of the human slaughter house. A marked increase was noted in the afternoon attendance of women. During the day Kelly remarked to one of his lawyers that some of the assertions made by the attorney general in his opening statement were not true. Mrs. Kelly held her husband's right hand several times during the afternoon, as the prisoner seemed to be more nervous than usual.

First Thrill of Trial.

The first thrill of the trial came when Attorney Mitchell while making the opening statement for the defense to the jury, simulated with his arms the probable position of the murderer when he wielded the death instrument. He dealt imaginary blow after blow ered their faces. Kelly was visibly affected. "The state may read the indictment and make opening statement," were (Continued on Page Two, Column One)
