Twelve Lovely and Versatile Girls Will Attend Ak-Sar-Ben Queen

LOVELY, versatile, serious-minded beyond their years, are the twelve special maids who will attend Queen Ak-Sar-Ben XXIII. War has dispelled all thoughts of butterfly life from their minds. Not one of them will make her debut this winter, but after the ball, each charming maid will take up some worth-while work.

The twelve young girls chosen to wait upon the queen are Miss Eleanor Austin, Miss Marion Coad, Miss Helen Eastman, Miss Ruth Kinsler, Miss Henrietta McArthur, Miss Dorothy Myers, Miss Florence Neville, Miss Virginia Offutt, Miss Florence Rahm, Miss Mildred Todd, Miss Hazel Uppike and Miss Esther Wilhelm.

Never before has an Ak-Sar-Ben queen had so talented and progressive a group of attendants. A majority of them have chosen a "career" in preference to the social whirl, careers which range from art, teaching, telegraphy, nursing, to dietetics. Those who have not specialized in training are planning to devote their time to Red Cross work and knitting for our boys.

Miss Helen Eastman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Osgood T. Eastman, is the artistic young woman of the group. Since finishing at Brownell Hall, Miss Eastman has been studying at the Chicago Art Institute, where she has done some very creditable work. She hopes to prepare herself for work in illustrating.

Miss Esther Wilhelm, who is the only daughter of the C. M. Wilhelms, though herself just out of school, is teaching this fall at Bellevue college. She goes out three times a week to give instruction in Latin—yes, Latin! Miss Wilhelm finished at fashionable Miss Spence's in New York last June, but before that had demonstrated her individuality by assisting in her father's store.

Miss Eleanor Austin is the dietetics expert. After being graduated from Central High school Miss Austin took the dietetical course at Wheaton college, Norton, Mass. She may continue this work further. Miss Austin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Austin.

Miss Dorothy Myers has chosen nursing for her work and hopes to prepare herself for foreign service. Directly after the ball, Miss Myers enters the training school of the new University of Nebraska Medical school. Last year Miss Myers attended the Sargent school at Cambridge, Mass., and before that Central High and the Sacred Heart convent. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Myers.

Wireless telegraphy has fascinations for Miss Florence Rahm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rahm, who expects to take up the study after Christmas. Until then Miss Rahm will spend the time visiting in Kansas City and Fort Riley after the ball. Miss Rahm is a Brownell Hall girl and finished last June at Monticello, near St. Louis.

Miss Mildred Todd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Todd, will direct her efforts toward Red Cross work. She is a Brownell Hall girl and a graduate of the Bristol school, Washington, D. C.

Red Cross work will also occupy Miss Virginia Offutt, daughter of Mrs. Charles Offutt. Miss Offutt attended Rosemary school at Greenwich, Conn., before going to Miss Spence's in New York, from which school she finished last June. Miss Offutt is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Yost.

Miss Henrietta McArthur is a newcomer in Quivera's court. She is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Gould Dietz, who came from Los Angeles early in the year to live with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gould Dietz. Her lovely blonde beauty delights the eyes of all who gaze upon her. Miss McArthur devotes all her time to Red Cross work and has been named assistant to Mrs. O. C. Redick.

Sings Mrs. Hartmann's Songs.
"Somewhere in France," by Mrs. Carl Hartmann, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Hartmann, who was stationed at Fort Omaha a few years ago, has just been published. The premier of the song will be given by Madame Frances Alda of the Metropolitan opera at Carnegie hall on November 2. Another song, to appear late in October, is "If the World Should End Tomorrow," words and music by Mrs. Hartmann. Madame Loretta del Valle sang this song from the manuscript at the Lafayette, New York, August 31 at the concert given for the benefit of American aviation.
