Fraser to Capital To Confer About Soldier Insurance

W. A. Fraser, sovereign head of the Woodmen of the World, received a telegram last night from the judge advocate general of the United States to be in Washington Wednesday morning to confer with him and other government officials about insurance for soldiers and sailors.

It is understood that injuries recerved by two American soldiers now at the front and as reported by The Bee, has caused immediate action being taken, as it is evident United States forces will soon be in active operation against the central powers. This is the third call Mr. Fraser has received from officials at Washington, to which he has responded.

This call from Washington comes to Mr. Frazer at an inopportune time as the Woodmen national council has been ordered to report in Omaha in the next few days. Mr. Fraser is, however, following the slogan adopted by the society of which he is head, at his suggestion, when war was declared—"America first, Wood-men of the World next."

Leaves Husband to Keep House for Star Boarder

"The eternal triangle" brought Mrs. Q streets, and her star boarder, Howand Armstrong, into police court Tuesday morning. They appeared ald addressed the loyal members against Theodore Frans, the husband of the "woman in the case."

Mrs. Frans and her star boarder took the three Frans children, had their furniture moved, left Frans and went to housekeeping by themselves. When Frans came to see them about it and grew angry and noisy over the situation, his wife and the boarder swore out a warrant for his arrest. Armstrong said that Mrs. Frans is his housekeeper and insisted sullenly that he has the right to have a housekeeper. Mrs. Frans said that
