

STATE PROSPEROUS BANKERS REPORT

President Dan Morris, Speaking at Convention, Declares Nebraska Has More Money Than Ever.

"When Nebraska people have used all they can for themselves there will still be $285,000,000 worth of corn, wheat, oats, potatoes and other crops left to sell this fall. And that estimate does not include the live stock products of the state," said President Dan Morris of Kearney, Neb., in his opening address to the Nebraska Bankers association in convention at the Fontenelle this afternoon.

"We find financial and business conditions in the state most excellent," he said. "The total deposits in the state and national banks of Nebraska exceed $450,000,000."

Banker Should Back Army.
Mr. Morris urged the bankers to get behind the national preparedness move and back up our armies in the field by giving attention to financing the war, increasing production, conservation of Nebraska's resources and by boosting the Liberty loan. "Nebraska's quota is $27,000,000 or about $20 per capita. And these are the finest securities in the world." He urged the bankers to buy up blocks of the loan and hold the bonds for their customers who would be wanting to buy them after the fall harvest as safe investments.

Mr. Morris pointed out that the proceeds of the loan will go to buy American products of our own people and that the people would therefore receive not only interest on their bonds but also profit on the increased volume of their sales and good market prices on their products.

His message to the bankers was, "Get busy. Oversubscribe this loan and show the Kaiser we are after his scalp."

A prominent legislative committee of seven bankers will be appointed to keep the bankers in touch with legislative problems during the year, and to boost the adoption of a bill in the next legislature granting the state banking board more power in granting bank charters. A supreme court ruling after the dismissal of the last legislature held that the state board was not empowered to refuse an application for a bank charter regardless of the character of its promoters or the security of its backing. The result was, as a prominent banker expressed it, that "banks were started here, there and everywhere like a string of grocery stores." Under the bill proposed the state board will have discretionary powers in granting the charters.

LOVE PIRACY IS ALLEGED IN UNUSUAL TRIANGLE BARED BY WIFE'S SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Mrs. William S. Rowe
Husband of Pretty Woman Charged With Being Storm Center of Domestic Tragedy Declares Spouse Innocent and Says He Will Stand By Her; Hale Moves to Rowe Home.

This pretty woman is the storm center in the love triangle alleged in a sensational suit for $25,000 damages for alienation of a husband's affections which was filed in district court Tuesday.

Dorothy T. Hale, living in the Angelus apartments, makes the unusual charge that William S. Rowe and his wife, Blanche Maxwell Rowe, jointly entered into the scheme to separate her husband from her and that Hale now is living at the Rowe home. Up to the time the Rowes went to Colorado in the early summer the Rowes and Hales were fast friends. Rowe is wire chief at the Postal Telegraph company and lives at 1922 Locust street. Hale is general yardmaster for the Northwestern railroad. The Hales have two children, who now are with their mother.

Charges Love Piracy.
Mrs. Hale also has filed suit for divorce. She alleges in her divorce petition that her husband was extremely cruel; that he lavished his earnings on a "blond woman socially prominent," who is named as co-respondent. In her damage suit she says Mrs. Rowe is the "blond woman" and charges her with love piracy.

The men in the case are friendly. The women are at odds.

Rowe declares his wife is innocent and that he will stand by her. He says Hale moved into the Rowe home after he separated from his wife during the absence of the Rowes in Colorado. He says he and Hale are fast friends and that Mrs. Rowe is the result of extreme jealousy.

Mrs. Rowe says that up to the day she and Mr. Rowe left for Colorado they and the Hales were the closest friends. After their departure pretending friends carried false stories to Mrs. Hale and that the suit never would have been brought but for the slander tongue of gossiping neighbors.

Was With Hale.

She admits she had been alone in Hugh Hale's company at night, but never without the knowledge and consent of her husband. She denies that Hale had bought candy, clothing or other presents for her or had spent his earnings on her.

"I have no harsh words for Mrs. Hale," said Mrs. Rowe. "She has been my friend, and she still would be but for the gossips who have set about to ruin me. She is mistaken about my feelings for her husband, who never has been more than a friend to Mr. Rowe and myself. When her divorce suit is tried I am sure she will discover the truth. I am the innocent victim of all this."

Mrs. Rowe is past worthy matron.

"NAGGING" LEADS TO DIVORCE COURT

Mother-in-Law and Religion Chief Factor in Domestic Troubles That Are Settled by Separation.

Too much mother-in-law and family differences over religious beliefs were chief factors in the domestic troubles of the Cunninghams—James and Irene.

Their marriage, celebrated July 10, 1909, ended in divorce court, when the husband, formerly a city employee and now connected with the smelter, was denied a decree. Mrs. Cunningham, who files a cross-bill for separate maintenance after her husband sued her for divorce on the ground that she "continually nagged at him," finally had to amend her petition and take the decree herself.

Judge, Jax divorced her from Cunningham on grounds of non-support. The couple separated in February, 1911. In divorce court Cunningham, his wife and a brother and sister testified that the wife "nagged him" most of the time.

He told the court that she frequently exhibited traces of intense jealousy and annoyed him by telephoning to places where he worked. Evidence brought out the fact that the couple was ordered to leave the home of the old folks with whom they had lived since their marriage.

When Mrs. Cunningham took the witness stand she declared the whole trouble was "because she was a Protestant." She also declared that her husband's mother interfered with their affairs.

Judge Day awarded Mrs. Cunningham $400 alimony and $50 attorney fees.

Have Parrot Which Came

To Nebraska 38 Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Garman, 4133 South Twenty-fourth street, are celebrating their golden wedding today. They came to Nebraska thirty-one years ago and settled at Dodge. They were the first white persons there. The town was later laid out in Mr. Garman's cornfield.

Mr. Garman was a drummer boy in the civil war. He was 17 years old when he marched home from the civil war—a battle-scarred veteran. Upon his return to the Philadelphia town where he lived he met Miss Barbara Ann Kurtz, aged 13. The veteran soldier boy of 17 and the womanly girl of 13 met and loved and three years later they were married. They are still sweethearts.

Mr. and Mrs. Garman have four children and eight grandchildren. They are all present at the golden wedding today.

W. I. Garman, prominent business man of Omaha, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Garman.

A parrot which was brought to Nebraska with Mr. and Mrs. Garman will receive much attention today. The parrot is thirty-eight years old.

B'NAI B'RITH PLAN PATRIOTIC MEETING

Meeting to Further Plans for Organized Work Among Hebrew Soldiers in United States Cantonments.

W. F. Gurley will deliver the address at a patriotic celebration by the Omaha lodge of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith at Temple Israel at 7:30 p. m. tonight. The meeting will also hear stirring patriotic addresses by Victor Rosewater, who will preside, and by Rabbi Taxon and Rabbi Cohn.

A chorus of fifty voices from the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew association will sing, and other musical selections are also provided. The meeting is expected to be the biggest rally of the year for this Nebraska chapter of the lodge.

The B'nai B'rith as an international organization is planning an organized work in the thirty-one army cantonments in the United States, which will be similar to that of the Young Men's Christian association in method and purpose. The society has already established headquarters and is doing work among the European troops at the front. The Omaha lodge looks forward to taking part in similar work at the training camps in this country.

Harry Lapidus, president of the Omaha lodge; Al Dreyfoos, chairman of the committee on intellectual advancement; Dr. A. Greenburg and Arthur Rosenbloom are the committee in charge of the Thursday night rally.

Wanted—6 million knitted things for our soldiers in the trenches

That's the word that comes from Europe to the American Red Cross. It sets millions of feminine fingers flying, making sweaters, wristlets, helmets, socks and mufflers.

At home, in street cars, in railway trains, in theatres and picture shows, their myriad needles flash and click, working to send a touch of home and of woman to their fighting men abroad.

And it's a work that must be done right. The Red Cross realizes this. That's why "The Knitting Book" was published. It tells just what articles the soldiers want and how to make them. It has a complete set of half-tone illustrations showing just how the work should be done. It tells the size of needle to use and the kind of yarn.

For the woman who has husband, brother or sweetheart in the service on land or sea, it is indispensable. For that matter, any woman will delight in using a little of her spare time in adding to the well-being of the defenders of her home and her country's honor. It is a solemn fact that the safety of the world depends upon the well-being of our boys "over there."
