

NO STOPPING THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS

Sergeant Hanley Tells of the Fighting Qualities of Men of Different Nationalities in the War.

Sergeant Hanley, one of the thirteen survivors of the Princess Pat Canadian regiment, who will lecture on the war at the Auditorium October 30, in an interview, made the following statements regarding the fighting qualities of the various nationalities on the western front:

"There are various classes of fighters, each seen to fight according to the nature of the ground or training they have received in their native land. The Canadians and Americans are very similar in their methods, the old Indian fighter instinct showing up very strongly in them.

"The English and French and their colonists are in classes by themselves and each is placed where they are most advantageous.

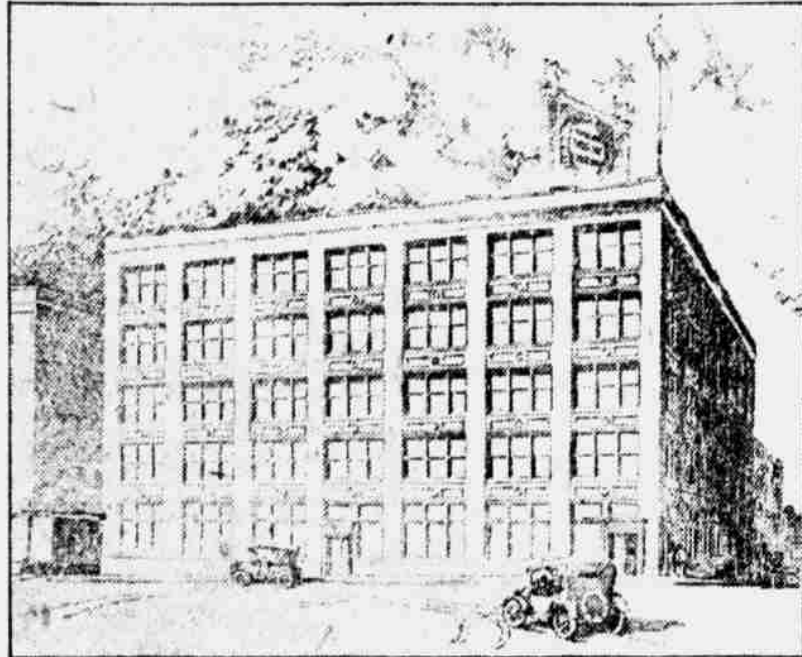

"In the beginning of the war, the Canadian troops lost lots of men on account of their over-anxiety to fight. They wanted to go over the top and the idea of sitting quietly in the trenches with the enemy shelling them from seven miles distant, with nothing to do but to take it, did not appeal to them, with the result they were careless, and exposed themselves recklessly and were the victims of thousands of German snipers.

Patience Is a Factor.

"Patience is as big a factor in this war as enthusiasm and it is one thing the American troops will have to learn, or their losses will be heavy until they learn it. Discipline is an absolute necessity; orders will have to be obeyed or disaster will result.

"The cockney, the London Englander, makes a wonderful soldier under shellfire. He will calmly stand cooking his mulligan with the shells dropping all around him and with as little concern for them as if he was in his home in London. He can sleep as peacefully as a child in the dugouts with a hell-bellam of shells dropping all around him, and is very calm and very little excited in an assault, which makes each man capable of using good judgment in individual fighting.

"The Frenchman makes a wonderful soldier and stands sell fire more calmly than was expected of him. In an assault he shows firm determination to avenge himself for the devastation of France.

The French colonists, the Moroccan troops, are adversaries which the Germans do not wish to contend with in hand-to-hand fight. They disregard their guns and resort to their knives, which are more effective in hand-to-hand encounters. They invariably win their objective, but have to be well supported, owing to their habit of throwing away their guns, as they are unable to hold a trench after they take it without rifles.

"Over enthusiasm will be the greatest factor the American officers will have to guard against in their troops, to prevent useless loss of men, because the Yankees will go into the fight with their do-or-die spirit, which has made them the greatest factor of the world. Their ability of readily adapting themselves to conditions will overcome this after they realize what it means. I have seen their fighting ability displayed by members of my regiment who are Americans, and there is no question but what when they get started, nothing will ever stop them."

Farewell Reception to Morris.

A farewell reception was given Elmer Morris by his brother, Dr. Craig Morris, at Dreamland hall, last night. The gathering was in honor of the departure of the honor guest for war service.

Year-Round Sedan—Two Sizes and Two Styles

Year-Round Cars In New Mitchell-Made Designs

Among the 19 Mitchell body styles are some new year-round models. That is, convertible models—Sedans and Coupes—where the side windows disappear.

Cars for all weathers, all seasons. They are fast becoming the most popular types in existence.

The Coming Types

There are numerous styles—a large Sedan and a small Sedan, a Club Sedan, two Coupes and a Cabriolet. They are open cars when you want them. But they instantly change to closed cars, or to half-closed, when you wish.

In summer they protect one from wind and dust and rain. In winter they are snug closed cars of a most luxurious type.

More and more they are taking the place of Roadsters and Touring Cars.

19 New Creations

The Mitchell line now offers 19 new-style bodies. All are designed by Mitchell experts and built in Mitchell shops. So every design is distinctive. This new body plant saves us a large sum on each car. This saving is spent on luxuries and beauties which are very rarely found.

All the best attractions you find elsewhere are combined in a single car. Our designers examined over two hundred late models, so nothing has been overlooked.

Any Mitchell design will impress you as a masterpiece of its type. And the 19 styles form the largest line of like class in motordom.

Mitchell Extras

The Mitchell has extra strength. It is built to the standard of 100 per cent over-strength, which is twice the usual margin of safety.

In three years all our strength standards have been doubled, to make this a lifetime car.

The Mitchell has 31 features which nearly all cars omit. Things like a power tire pump, reversible headlights, shock-absorbing springs, etc.

It offers at least 20 per cent extra value, compared with other cars in this class. All this because of factory efficiency, due to John W. Bate. It saves us millions of dollars yearly. And these millions go into better cars. See what such things mean to you in a car you buy to keep.
