To The Ambitious Girl 16 to 20 Years Old Who Wants to Make Money

The moment you saw that headline, you said: "That's for me!" It is. Now let's talk things over a minute.

You are thinking of getting "something to do." You don't want to have father pay for your clothes or your good times—not this winter, anyway, when the country is at war and prices are high. You want to be independent—self-supporting.

Maybe there's a brother in your family who is fighting for Uncle Sam. No matter-you want to do your part, too. And here's your chance. Let us teach you to be a trained shirt maker-a real craftswoman, assured of a corresponding income. Perhaps you never sewed much-but that doesn't matter. We have a regular school for beginners-a school where you are paid while you learn, instead of having to pay for instruction.

You will be working at something that will interest you.

You'll enjoy the careful instruction, and the handling of crisp, dainty materials. It's clean, enjoyable work—not difficult and not fatiguing. And the pay is better than you may expect. With the work goes the companionship of other girls of your own age—keen-minded, alert young women who take pride in their independence. In your lunch room you will find a piano and a small library for use during spare time. Remember, as an experienced shirt maker you are classed "trained worker"—there is always a market for your skill. And aside from the income producing side of it, this is training you will find fits you better for that home of your own that you will have some day.

Come down Monday morning to Ninth and Douglas. Ask for Miss Wessel. She'll show you what we have to offer to the ambitious girl who really wants to be independent.

M. E. Smith & Co.
