COMMERCE HIGH WINS CLOSE GAME FROM CREIGHTON

Bookkeepers Upset Dope by Trouncing Blue and White Eleven, Despite Weight Handicap.

Upsetting all dope, the High School of Commerce grid team defeated the Creighton High team, 9 to 0, Thursday on Creighton field. The scrappy bookkeeper crew was outweighed 25 pounds to the man, but overcame this disadvantage by constantly working the forward pass.

Creighton's only asset was weight. The Blue and White lacked both sped and team work. Commerce High by hard tackling prevented their beefy opponents from getting away and kicked whenever the Creighton combination attempted to get within scoring distance of the goal. Card and Bernstein were the Commerce stars, while Murphy did Creighton's best playing. Commerce won the toss and chose to kick. A pass from Card to Bernstein, who ran 10 yards with the ball, gave the first score after two minutes ber 2 was the date originally set for of play. Each team then used the an extremist demonstration, which open game with little success. Card booted a field goal for three more points. A punting duel resulted in placing the ball on Commerce's oneyard line, from whence it was kicked out of danger by Card at the first of the second period. A 40-yard punt, with a 10-yard place kick, placed the ball under Commerce's goal to be kicked out of danger when Creighton lost the ball on downs. Both sides resorted to the open game with little Lenine, the radical agitator, who of cripples, the Huskers went through a spirited scrimmage last night and rections at least 60 per cent. Shifts Burden to America.

The immediate effect upon the part which the United States must take as the shifting of world events turns the burdens of war more and more to the American people cannot be assessed accurately at this time. The treasury already has authorized redits of $325,000,000 to Russia and of that sum probably half already has een drawn upon for supplies bought in this country. There has been some disappointment among American ofused for needs of the civilian population and not devoted wholly to war embassy also was without advices. purposes, but in Russia's critical position consideration of the economic the Kerensky government thus far ditures to go on practically unlimited.

American aid has not been limited merely to money and the confidence memory; every member, and Mr. Root in particular, returned optimistic and confident of Russia's future.

An American commission of eminent railroad men now is there bringing order out of chaos on Russia transportation systems, and already has increased efficiency in some diwhile millions of dollars' worth of supplies have been piling up at Vladivostok and the Americans have been applying the best of methods to move them across Siberia.

Japan, at the same time, has been supplying aid to Russia in practically every way, principally in war munitions, for which the Russian government has been able to pay practically nothing at all as yet.

Japan May Aid Kerensky.

A factor in the situation which has been reluctantly discussed heretofore now comes to the front. It is the possibility that Japan might send troops into Russia to support the provisional government, help restore order and drive the revolting factions hands with Vice Admiral Sims they up onto the firing line. None here were driven with the other members who would be authorized to speak on the subject cares to do so, although it has been discussed by Japanese elsewhere, and the consensus of their opinions as published has been that Japan would find some difficulties in supplying an army sent into Russia. Moreover, the argument has been advanced that Japan's forces were needed to preserve order in the far

Some idea of what Russia faces on her fighting lines may be gained from the latest report to the Russian embassy here. It was on November 2 and showed that the Russian troops were engaging 147 divisions of enemy troops, including Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians and Turks, probably in all some 2,000,000 men. The possibility of those troops, or any part of them, being released for a drive against the western front, to join the invaders in Italy, or even for Balkan service, where many military experts believe where many military experts believe Germany is planning an attack on Greece, is one of the questions which the inter-allied war council will have

The commissioners were met by Ambassador Page, Vice Admiral Sims, commander of the American destroyer squadron, and Foreign Secretary Balfour. The members of the mission arose late this morning, much refreshed after their first comfortable night's sleep in many days. The first thing they did was to go into conference, with Colonel House presiding. The meeting lasted an hour. Colonel House outlined a tentative program for the next few days, calling for a series of conferences with British officials. Each of the commission will liscuss his particular work with Britsh officials in charge of smilar activites in England.

Admiral Benson had an early call to make on Admiral Jellicoe, first sea lord and General Bliss expected to visit the war office during the day. "I am impatient to see with my own eyes the great efforts England is making toward solving the shipping prob-tem," said Mr. Colby, "and with this end in view will pay an early visit to the ship yards. America is now fully awake to the importance of tonnage in this war and is carrying out a program of unparalleled magnitude. Ship building now takes priority over all other work in our country.'
