NEBRASKA READY FOR JAYHAWKERS

Coach Stewart Not Saying Much or Making Public Lineup of Players for Grilling · Game With Kansans.

Lincoln, Nov. 14 .- (Special.) - Ne braska has practically completed its defense for the Kansas game and from now on Dr. E. J. Stewart will devote most of his attention in polishing up the Husker scoring machine Another stiff workout today concluded the hard scrimmage which has been in order for the Kansas battle. The freshmen tried out the Kansas formation against the varsity last night, but without much success. Given the ball on the Nebraska 20yard line the first year men rang up but one touchdown during the 45 minutes of scrimmage. The varsity made rather an impressive showing on the defense, but made no attempt to carry the ball against the fresh-Lineup Indefinite.

The Husker lineup for the Jayhawker game is rather indefinite because some of the men are still suffering from bruises and sickness. Cook, who gave a dazzling exhibition in the Missouri game, went to the hospital the first of the week with an attack of grip and has not been on the field since then. Kositzky and Otoupalik, Stewart announced last night, would not be in shape to get into the Jayhawker game. The absence of either man from the lineup, however, will not seriously impair the strength of the Huskers inasmuch as Nebraska has two sets of backfield Possible Array of Men.

The Huskers will probably line up something like this Saturday: Rhoades and Riddell, ends; Captain Shaw and Hubka, Krinelmeyer, Munn, Shaw and Hubka, Krinelmeyer, Munn, Young or De Teau, tackles; Wilder, Teter, De Teau or Young, guards; Day, center; McMahon, Shallenberg, Cook and Dobson, in the backfield.

Stewart would like to find some way in which to use Sam Kellogg, the speedy Husker back, who did such excellent work in the Missouri game by his punting. Kellogg is a great man in the open field and on end runs and if the Husker mentor makes a switch so as to use him he is certain to give the Jayhawker wings a bunch of trouble.

Nationals today announced the purchase of Outfielder McCabe of the St. Joseph Western league club, in exchange for Shortstop Shay and a cash consideration.

Five of Creighton Men Out Of Game With Haskell Coach Tommy Mills of the Creighton eleven is worried because five of his men will be unable to enter the game next Saturday against the Haskill Indian team.
