

TURKEY SUPPLY
NOW PLENTIFUL

Millions of Pounds Will Be Thrown on Market Soon to Supply Thanksgiving Day Demand.

Turkeys placed in cold storage in 1916, as much as 1,500,000 pounds of them, will soon be thrown on the market throughout the United States for the Thanksgiving demand.

The United States food administration has had a survey made of the cold storage houses and has learned that there are plenty of turkeys in storage for the Thanksgiving season, administration officials estimating that these soon will be on the market at lower figures.

Under the provisions of the food control act, the administration will force that portion of the turkey supply stored in 1916 upon the market now. It is desired that this be brought out for consumption instead of being held any longer.

Chickens Also Released.
The administration estimates that of the 6,000,000 pounds of turkeys stored in cold storage during the latter part of 1916, 25 to 30 per cent is still in storage. This would be at least 1,500,000 pounds.

A heavy stock of chickens was also found to be in storage, at least 25,000,000 pounds, which are also to be released for the market now.

Omaha Interstate Fair Proposition Has Been Given Up

The proposed Omaha interstate fair has been abandoned owing to inability to get the support of Ak-Sar-Ben. The latter organization is not willing to undertake the promotion of a fair itself and the sentiment of the Omaha business men seems to be that a fair should not be started without the cooperation of Ak-Sar-Ben.

The sponsors wish to thank the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture, the Douglas County Agricultural society, the Associated Retailers of Omaha, the Omaha Hotel Men's association, the Real Estate board of Omaha, the Omaha Driving club and the publicity bureau of the Commercial club for resolutions and acts of encouragement.

The Omaha newspapers and numerous trade journals, by the free use of their columns, enabled the sponsors to get by first base with their project, but they say the proposal died on the third.

Burlington Road Honors Men Answering Call

In the rotunda of the Omaha headquarters building the Burlington has hung a service flag. On the white background, surrounded by the band of red, are 68 blue stars, indicating that that number of employees of the Omaha division of the road have gone into service in the several arms of the United States army.

Service flags similar to the one displayed in Omaha are hung in every headquarters building and division office of the Burlington system. On the lines west of the Missouri river the flags carry stars as follows:

Omaha, division, 68; Havelock shops, 59; Plattsmouth shops, 34; Wynora, division, 25; Lincoln division, 48; McCook division, 50; Alliance division, 48; Sterling division, 16; Sheridan division, 49; Casper division, 19.

Up to this time and since the beginning of the war 1,330 Burlington employees have entered the service.

Wheat Receipts Heavy; All Taken by Food Agent

Wheat receipts were the heaviest in weeks, 106 carloads having come on to the market today, all of which was taken over by Food Administration Agent Neal. There has been a steady increase in receipts during the last three weeks until millers of Omaha trade territory are pretty well stocked up.

The corn market was considerably demoralized on account of the condition of the new corn arriving. The bulk of it was so filled with moisture that it was almost unsalable. The one car of old sold at $2.05, but the best offers on the new crop were around $1.20 and $1.25. Receipts were 34 carloads. Prices were such that there was no way of making comparisons.

Oats were a cent up, selling at 64½ and 65½ cents a bushel. Receipts were 75 carloads.

Farmers Spend Last Day In Omaha Seeing Sights

The 500 delegates to the convention of the Farmers' Co-Operative Grain and Live Stock State association spent most of the day on the South Side visiting the stock yards, the packing plants, and gossiping with the commission men and traders.

At noon they were guests of the Stock Yards company at a luncheon in the Exchange building. Secretary J. W. Shorthill spoke after the luncheon. The delegates spent the day sight seeing. Their convention closes this afternoon.
