

START WORK TO SAVE LIVES OF ARMENIANS

Church People of Omaha to Join in Campaign to Raise Money for Purchase of Food.

The work of the Omaha Armenian and Syrian Relief association is well under way, and today the church people of the city are expected to take up the call that comes from some 2,000,000 starving men, women and children and contribute their bit.

At the morning meetings in the Omaha churches the campaign will be inaugurated, and during the afternoon a complete canvass of the city will be made.

It is intended to be a house-to-house canvass and at the churches volunteers will be asked to go out and spend at least a portion of the afternoon working, with the ten captains who are co-operating with the ministers.

Captains and Their Territory. John L. McCague, from Ames avenue, north to Florence; H. H. Baldrige, from Lake street, north to Ames avenue; C. M. Wilhelm, from Cuming street, north to Lake street; C. A. Grinnell, from Farnam street, north to Cuming; N. H. Loomis, from Leavenworth street, north to Farnam; Thomas J. Quinn, Pacific street, south to A; William F. Baxter, Leavenworth street, south to A, Union Pacific tracks, west to city limits; J. A. Bradley, South Omaha; Robert T. Leavens, Dundee south of Underwood avenue; Rev. Thomas Anderson, Benson.

To aid in raising funds, in addition to the canvass of the city, a benefit recital has been arranged at the Young Women's Christian association auditorium for Monday night, at which a small admission will be charged. Besides Miss Dorothy Morton and Miss Adelaide Wood at the piano, there will be other leading musicians of the city taking part.

Canvass for Funds. In making the canvass for relief funds members of the committee will be supplied with pledge cards and in the event people are not prepared to contribute cash at the time they can sign the cards and later make their payments. Cards and literature describing the condition and needs of the Armenians and Syrians will be distributed in the churches Sunday morning.

The relief work that is being taken up by the Omahans is in conjunction with that of the national association that has set its mark at $6,000,000 a month, it being figured that this sum will be required monthly to succor and save the Armenians and Syrians from starving.

The work taken up by the national association and in which the Nebraska auxiliary is aiding is approved by President Wilson and former Ambassadors Strauss and Morgenthau, who are familiar with the condition of the people and their needs.

Keep-the-Home-Fires-Burning Co-Ed at Omaha Uni Helps Soldiers

Miss Louise Brown is the real keep-the-home-fires-burning-co-ed at the University of Omaha. The pretty young lady is always doing something for the boys at the front and in the trenches.

Last year Miss Brown was one of the most admired co-eds of the university and consequently she was always entertaining her many admirers. But this year she has no time for any of them. Instead she is working for the welfare of her countrymen who are away from home.

The first thing she did when the boys left for the camp was to get the address of a number of them so that she might write to them the good news of home and friends. When the Liberty bond issues were on Miss Brown did her best by pushing the movement at the school. When the Young Men's Christian association plunged its campaign it found her a strong advocate.

Miss Brown has given up theaters and most school socials this year for she simply can not give time to them. Instead she attends the Red Cross classes. Besides she helps along by taking part in other minor movements.

When the Woman's club did some war work Miss Brown was there to help with her university sisters. When the "Y" campaign wanted girls to help at the theaters she was also present.

But most of her work consists in keeping some of the boys at the front happy.

That is not all she does for the soldier boys, either. She is constantly knitting on a sweater. She does this work in class rooms, study halls and even in chapel. How she manages to prepare good lessons and recite them well puzzles the professors of the school. Nevertheless she does it. Miss Brown is and has always been one of the best students of the university, which goes to prove that those who have the most to do do the best.
