ANGRY RANCHER
KILLS YOUNG MAN:
SHOT BY OFFICER

I. L. Blazky, Living Near Ellsworth, Stabs Guy Catlow and Is Wounded by Constable Making Arrest.

Ellsworth, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special Telegram.)—Guy Catlow, a young and well known rancher, living 25 miles northwest of here, in Cherry county, was stabbed to death early last evening by I. L. Blazky, a neighbor.

Reports that have just reached here say the Blazky children while visiting at the Catlow home had been corrected for unruly and unbecoming conduct by Mrs. Catlow, the dead boy's mother.

This so incensed Blazky that he swore out a warrant for her arrest. When Constable Floyd Younie appeared, the son suggested that they both go and see if they could not settle the trouble in order to avoid having his mother arrested.

When they reached the Blazky home they found Blazky in a quarrelsome mood and after a few words Blazky ran into the house for his gun. Constable Younie then deputized Catlow to aid him in disarming Blazky.

When this was accomplished another effort was made to smooth matters over, when without warning and in the midst of their pacific efforts, Blazky drew a knife and stabbed Catlow twice in the breast and once in the head. The knife penetrated the brain and caused instant death.

When the constable made an effort to place Blazky under arrest, he resisted, and Constable Younie shot and crippled him.

Assistance was then obtained and Blazky was taken to Hyannis, where he received medical aid and where he will be held until the sheriff of Cherry county arrives.

Sutherland Raises More Than $1,000 for "Y" Fund
Sutherland, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—Complete figures on the amount of money raised for the Young Men's Christian association fund in this vicinity, shows that a little better than $1,130 was donated. This amount exceeds the returns from other towns outside of the city of North Platte in Lincoln county.

So far the losses from cornstalk noxious have been light in this neighborhood, although there have been a few. As a result of the completion of cornhusking operations by several of the farmers, cattle and horses are beginning to be turned into the stalk fields. Last season losses from the poison were heavy and various farmers found it necessary to burn their animals away from the fields.

Winter wheat prospects are looking better with the passing days since the fields have been moistened by rains. The acreage is large hereabouts and the ground in better condition for going into the winter than it was at this time last year.

A considerable amount of attention is just now being given to the feeding of hogs by the farmers who have much soft corn. Light hogs and shoats are in demand and it is expected that an enormous amount of pork will be produced here in the next several months.

Hay shipments which have been delayed by the car shortage and hurry of farm work are now being started along. Quite an amount of the shipments consist of alfalfa hay of which there was a heavy tonnage grown in the valleys here the last season. Thousands of tons of wild hay are in stack in this vicinity.

Governor Issues His Thanksgiving Proclamation to Citizens of State

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—The executive department of the state has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 29 as Thanksgiving day. The official proclamations have been printed in elaborate form and several hundred of them are being sent out to prominent people over the state. They are done on white paper in black print with a green border and are suitable for framing, so that in years to come the holder of one of these can point to it with considerable satisfaction as a memento of the democratic war regime. The proclamation reads as follows:

"We are approaching the season when, in keeping with the custom and spirit of the fathers, we set apart a day for public thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the blessings bestowed upon us as a people during the past year.

"The earth has once more yielded the generous treasures of the harvest and labor has been rewarded to a degree seldom realized. Pestilence has not come within our borders and the general health of our citizens has been above the average, so that we can say that goodness and mercy have composed us on every hand.

"We are not unmindful of the fact that as a nation we are engaged in war, the magnitude of which has never been equalled. This is not of our own choosing; our people were hoping to be spared the necessity of entering the world-wide strife, but the hour struck and our duty seemed emblazoned on the sky. We could not stand idly by and see the dearest rights of the people swept away before the mad rush of the armies of an autocracy bent on the mission of destroying the liberties of the people and the bringing to naught a democracy whose watch word is 'Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men.'"

"To the support of the position which we have taken in relation to the war, three quarters of a million of young Americans are in line; money has been poured out without stint; men, women and children are giving their best to the support of the government. May we not on all these stupendous efforts ask the blessing of God to the end that the wicked ambition of those who seek by military force to destroy the liberties of the people shall be brought to naught and a speedy and permanent peace be secured to all the world.

"Therefore, I, Keith Neville, governor of Nebraska, in harmony with the example of the president of the United States, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 29th day of November, 1917, a day of public thanksgiving, and do most earnestly call upon all within our borders to observe it in its true spirit and meaning, that those who desire to assemble in the churches and other public places and engage in such service as becomes the day, and at the home may the children and friends gather and enjoy the bounties that have crowned the year."

Jefferson Swine Die From Poison
One Hundred Head of Hogs Stricken as if by Hand of Enemy of United States.

Fairbury, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special Telegram.)—Considerable concern is felt among the farmers of Jefferson county over the death of nearly 100 hogs belonging to Arthur Lakey and Clarence Stinabrock, two farmers living near Helevy. It is believed the German hand of destruction is being felt here as Mr. Lakey lost nearly 50 head of porkers suddenly without any apparent cause. Veterinarians who examined the dead hogs, assert they cannot understand the cause. It is said Mr. Lakey gave his hogs a live stock preparation and it is believed this was doped. Mr. Stinabrock, it is asserted, took the viscera to Omaha for analysis.

Excitement is high among the farmers in this vicinity.

Problem Faces Farmers; Lack Good Corn for Seed
Lincoln, Nov. 22.—(Special.)—It is evident that because of the recent long spell of warm weather, corn has not matured the way it should do in order to make good seed and a problem will face the corn growers of the state next spring regarding good seed corn.

Reports which have come in from the State Council of Defense indicate the utmost care must be taken in shucking corn to save for seed that of the best quality. It is suggested that in fields where corn was cut up before the frost the same should be saved for seed.

The state agricultural college and the State Council of Defense are working jointly to bring about the very best condition regarding seed corn.

STATE'S DEFENSE BOARD SECRETIVE

New Order Prevails and Callers at Headquarters Must Await Their Turn and Prove Up Before Admitted.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—New conditions prevail around the State Council of Defense headquarters.

This is due to the fact that not long ago a pesky newspaper reporter visited the council headquarters in his usual daily rounds and was told the council was busy in the inner works. While waiting he noted that a number of people were sitting in the waiting room he sauntered in and began talking with them. After obtaining a story why each one was there he went back to his desk and, taking his typewriter into his confidence, knocked off a story covering the things he had discovered from persons who, it happened, had been summoned before the council to answer charges made against their patriotism.

It had been the custom of the council to keep all matters pertaining to people called on the carpet from the newspapers until such time as the occurrence was too old to be of newspaper value, and so to be sure that nothing slips a cog from now on a new system has been put into effect.

As one approaches the council headquarters he finds the doors which have heretofore been wide open to the public, closed and locked. The turning of the knob on the door appears to give sufficient notice so that in the room which has heretofore been used by stenographers, an alarm is sounded and the outside door is opened by a woman in uniform. The visitor is asked what he seeks and if his answer is satisfactory, he is ushered into the room. The room is long and narrow, like a trench and as one enters he feels that he has struck the first line.

When the time approaches for him to go further in his quest for information, another attendant approaches and he is ushered into the second line of trenches, a large room formerly used as a reception room. As one looks off to the northeast he can see the private office of the secretary. Straight ahead is the entrance to the council chamber, wherein the inquiries are held and in which the chairman and vice chairman hold their conferences.

When the coast is clear the visitor is either escorted through the office of the private secretary into the inner chamber or if he looks harmless he is permitted to enter direct into the tribunal.

Today newspaper men were permitted to get only as far as the first line, when the vice chairman met them and imparted the knowledge there was going to be a scarcity of seed corn.

HOG BREEDERS ARE CALLED TO LINCOLN

Raisers of Porcine Stock to Consider Ways and Means of Increased Production.

Twenty of the principal blooded-hog breeders of the state have been called by C. W. Pugsley of the university state farm to meet in Lincoln next Monday to consider ways and means of increasing the production of hogs in the state.

Mr. Pugsley points out in his letter that it will be easy for the farmer to increase production the 20 per cent asked by the government if all farmers will breed an extra litter of pigs. He believes this will readily be done for the reason that the government has already fixed a minimum price of $15.50 for hogs farrowed next spring.

He also points out that it is absolutely necessary to feed the soft corn which cannot be cribbed. This must be done to save it. "No hog under 300 pounds in weight should be put on the market," says Prof. Pugsley, "for the reason that up to that time it is still profitable to feed them and fatten them still further, especially with the abundance of soft corn, which is good for nothing but immediate feeding."
