Your Great Store---Burgess-Nash---Is Wonderfully Prepared to Serve You Well for Thanksgiving, for Christmas and for All the Winter Needs

Christmas for Everybody as Usual

Christmas 1917 will be the first big test on the temper of the American people. How will it prove them?

Of course some of them are worrying about the war, they just can't help it, for there are people that have just got to worry and if it wasn't about the war it would be about something else.

But in the majority the same splendid unselfish spirit that has dominated them from the beginning will guide them now.

Christmas will go forward to the boys in the trenches. Christmas will keep in good cheer those at home.

And hundreds of people who intended to cut down their gift lists this season, are finding that here, they can expend their money so advantageously that everybody can be remembered.

It's to be a new—a different sort of Christmas assuredly—but it's to be Christmas just the same.

HOW about stockings for present wear or Christmas gift giving?

Future supplies and prices are one of the most puzzling things to face. Wise folks will secure their full supply now, while we both know what is obtainable, for the kinds you want are here at reasonable prices, that may not be the case later on. (Main Floor)

NOW for Christmas needlework, save your yarn for the boys in khaki; and turn your needlework into charming embroidered gifts for the friends at home. We have a pleasing collection of novelties, many things are partly done, ready for deft hands to quickly finish, come and look them over and start nimble needles flying. (Third Floor)

These Fine Thanksgiving Linens May Still Be Yours at the Most Favorable Prices

THIS national occasion will be made a patriotic event this year, for the nation has much to be thankful for.

We are in the midst of a great war, but our boys who have been called to the front have plenty to eat, are well housed, and well clothed.

Then the Thanksgiving feast need not cut into the staple food supplies that need be conserved. It is better to eat turkey than beef, and Mr. Hoover has not asked us to be frugal with the well known pumpkin pie. So the Thanksgiving feast may be joyfully celebrated and the good housekeeper will want to serve it in fine, snowy linen.

Books Answer Christmas Questions

Books meet every wish. Books may be given when a more costly gift might not be acceptable.

Books are easy to choose and easy to send. Books speak any language, convey any sentiment. When one stops to think of it, books have a place at Christmas time all their own.

This is a complete stock, including boys' and girls' books; tots' picture books, sets, fiction, illustrated books, de luxe editions, even rare books, all splendidly displayed for easy choosing on the Third Floor.

A SMALL GIRL who is endowed with a patriotic spirit, was found knitting with a hat pin and a slender point brush handle; real knitting needles of all kinds are in the artneedlework section. (Third Floor)

NOTHING seems to satisfy our Sammy "Somewhere in France" as candy. In a recent letter home, one said: "When you send anything to me let it be candy." We have splendid assortments of toothsome sweets that are certain to satisfy Sammy. (Main Floor)

WHAT are scissors good for? Nothing much, if they are dull or missing; but mighty important when you want them to clip a nail or rip a seam. Awfully provoking not to have them when you want them. Every kind, here for toilet table or sewing bags. (Main Floor)

WE Call It the 'Gift' Corner

THACKERAY tells of his pleasure in stopping and looking awhile at Woodgate's bric-a-brac shop—

We think Thackeray would have liked equally well to pause on the Third Floor in the "Gift" Corner. What joy the author of the "Roundabout Papers"—or any other lover of the old and unusual—would find in this "delightful gathering of everything."

All these quaint and foreign objects, found after keen seeking in far-away places, form a "Gift" corner of unusual attractiveness. Such things as give rare distinction to one's home and make unmatched gifts for one's friends.

Wearing the 'Stylish Stout' Corset Literally Makes a New Woman of You

THERE is youth and style in every line; at waist, hips, bust and back. To wear a "Stylish Stout" is to re-figure outlines and possess the much desired stylish slenderness of the mode.

The stout figure is simply an over-displayed manual figure. "Stylish Stout" Reduso corset corrects this over-development and makes the stout figure as nearly ideal as its proportions allow.

You feel at your best when wearing a "Stylish Stout" corset, while being supple and easy, their durability insures permanent shapeliness.

Your mirror tells you that nothing is wanting in your appearance. Price, $6.50 to $10.00.
