

Nebraska FIND CAR WHICH MURDERER MADE HIS GETAWAY IN

Abandoned Machine Stolen
From Slain Nebraska Farmer Discovered 12 Miles
From Scene of Crime.

Oseola, Neb., Nov. 30.—(Special Telegram.)—Louis Chobar, slayer of A. A. Blender, wealthy farmer living southwest of here, abandoned the stolen car in which he made his escape about four miles southeast of Clark. The machine was discovered in the middle of the road at 10 o'clock this morning. Chobar had gotten about 12 miles from the scene of the crime.

The farm hand, who shot Blender to death and then tied Mrs. Chobar to a bed and gagged her, taking with him $1,000 which he had stolen from the farmer, paid a couple of men $5 to pull him out of a bad place in the road near where he abandoned the machine. Albert Ford reported the incident to the authorities after he had learned of the crime.

Chobar Appears Excited.
Ford said the man appeared excited and would not allow him to come near his car. "All I want you men to do is to pull me out of this road," Chobar is reported as saying.

Sheriff's forces of three counties are searching for the murderer. They are throwing out a wide net of posses in the belief that Chobar will go into hiding and not attempt to leave the state. Chobar is known to have plenty of provisions and ammunition with him. He took the rifle with him with which he did the shooting. Mrs. Chobar is on the verge of prostration.

Took Wife's Money.
Mrs. Chobar says her husband took about $12 of her private money from her purse before he left and that he had considerable money of his own.

She says she and her husband always got along nicely together. Mrs. Chobar's maiden name was Grace Langford and her home was at Piney Ridge, Mo., where she was married to Chobar, November 26, 1916. It was first reported that all the money Blenders had on his person when he came to his death was taken by the assassin, but later Sheriff Miller found $350 tucked away in a little pocket in Blender's check book. One of Mrs. Chobar's wrists is lacerated and swollen as are her ankles from the rope halters with which Chobar bound her and tied her in bed before leaving the Blender home.

PROSPECTORS SEE SIGNS OF OIL IN RED CLOUD WELL

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Lincoln, Nov. 30.—(Special.)—Senator W. L. Weesner of Red Cloud, who visited the state house today, told Secretary of State Pool that the work of prospecting for oil near his home was progressing, although no oil has been struck.

The well is located about 40 rods north of the town and is down about 500 feet in blue shale. No water has been struck since starting and this is an indication, with others that the prospectors are on the right track.

Senator Weesner says experts declare there is a vein of oil running from Wyoming down through Nebraska into Kansas and Wyoming and that Red Cloud is located on this vein. The nearest paying oil well is at Augusta, Kan., 180 miles from Red Cloud.

SIX STATES OPPOSE THE RATE ADVANCE

Contention at Conference Is That Freight and Express Charges Are High Enough.

A joint committee representing the state railway commissions of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Kansas and Minnesota will contest the 10 per cent advance in interstate express rates before the Interstate Commerce commission in Washington December 7. A joint committee from the six states will also present figures to the Interstate Commerce commission showing that the proposed 15 per cent advance in freight rates is unwarranted.

Resolutions were adopted and these committees designated at a conference of the middle western state commissioners in Omaha Friday.

In regard to the freight rate advance, the representatives of the middle west will merely present the data and figures at their command to the Interstate Commerce commission without actively contesting the advance. The middle western commissioners think, however, that the figures show that the advance is unwarranted.

The 10 per cent advance in interstate express rates will be argued in Washington December 7. The present rates are sufficient in the opinion of the railway commissioners.

P. W. Doherty, chairman of the Minnesota State Railway commission, was chairman of the joint conference held in Omaha and U. G. Powell, clerk of the Nebraska commission, secretary.

The committee selected to appear before the Interstate Commerce commission in the express rate case consists of J. H. Henderson, commercial counsel of Iowa; C. B. Bee, commissioner of Missouri; Hugh LaMaster, counsel for Nebraska commission; Thomas Yapp, rate expert for Minnesota and E. P. Hein, commerce counsel for Kansas.

J. Mills, chairman of the Minnesota State Railway commission; P. W. Doherty, S. D.; Lewis, Iowa; T. L. Hall, chairman of State Railway commission of Nebraska, and Commissioner E. P. Foley, Kansas were selected as the committee to represent the middle western states in the interstate freight rate hearing.
