Safety First Prompts

Use of Strings of Tiny Electric Lights for Trees

The candle light Christmas tree is a dangerous entertainment for any home. The resinous leaves and wood of spruce and balsam trees are easily ignited by the open flame of the candle and the tree burns in a flare of hot flame which is very hard to extinguish.

To eliminate this fire hazard a string of tiny, many colored electric lamps are now used to fasten and decorate the Christmas tree. These lamps are made in a variety of colored imitations of various fruits, flowers and animals which delight children. They are attached to a long, flexible cord, which is readily attached to the nearest lighting socket by a screw-plug.

Cold lima beans, mashed, seasoned and a few minced olives added make a good sandwich.

The economical housewife places a weekly limit on food expenditure.
