Did ever a national anthem have such a restless existence as our familiar "Star Spangled Banner"?

According to the same paper the National Educational association has also attempted to standardize the air.

Both the newer editions start "Oh," on a descending f and d, to "say" on B flat in the key of B flat, at the beginning.

Edith L. Wagoner supporting her argument that the key of A is much more satisfactory than the key of B flat, for the "Star Spangled Banner."
