

MRS. HOLLO SAYS PARENTS BITTER AGAINST DEMING

Omaha Woman, Who Passed Xmas at Camp Cody, Declares 10 Soldiers Die Each Day.

Ten and eleven deaths from pneumonia each day among the soldiers at Camp Cody, Deming, N. M., is reported by Mrs. Gus Hollo, 5326 North Twenty-fifth street, who went to Deming to distribute Christmas boxes for the Dundee Woman's Patriotic Knitting club. Mrs. Hollo is known as "Aunt Sarah" among the boys of the 134th machine gun company, whom the Dundee women have "adopted" for the period of the war.

"All the bunks in the base hospital, which occupies a mile of ground, are occupied and there is a great scarcity of nurses and physicians. Men ill with pneumonia need almost a nurse each. It was the saddest part of my trip; I couldn't stand the sight," said Mrs. Hollo.

"The sand is something awful," continued Mrs. Hollo. "The soldiers drill in such clouds of sand you could hardly see their figures and they cough so hard that when we were returning to the camp from the parade ground we could not hear the band for their coughing."

Sand Causes Trouble. Mrs. Hollo believes that sand clogging the lungs is the cause of a great deal of the seriousness of the pneumonia cases.

"The climate, too, must have something to do with it. It gets very warm during the day, but the nights are extremely cold, and the boys probably neglect to adjust their clothing according to the changes of climate."

Mrs. Hollo herself suffered a severe attack of pleurisy in the five days she spent at camp.

Parents who have visited Deming during the holidays are up in arms against the location of the cantonment at that place.

Boys Have to Suffer. "Some who returned on the train with me were particularly bitter because of what the boys have to suffer from the sand."

"The boys themselves seem happy and do not complain," said Mrs. Hollo.

Two Nebraska boys in the 134th machine gun company died at Deming. Six more in the hospital were visited by Mrs. Hollo.

Mrs. Hollo was the guest of Captain and Mrs. Clifford Gardner. Moving pictures, which will be shown here in the near future, were taken of the presentation of the Christmas gifts to the boys by Mrs. Hollo. The men gave Mrs. Hollo a handsome knitting bag.

Wearing Apparel of One Sammy Represents Yield of 20 Sheep

The farms of the United States must produce more sheep. More than the entire wool production of the United States will be used in clothing and outfitting our armies. The apparel of one soldier represents the yield of 20 sheep.

There are six farms without sheep for every farm with sheep in the United States. And yet sheep may be produced profitably in practically every part of the country and in an economical agricultural adjustment should be found on almost every farm. The possibilities of developing the sheep industry in this country are enormous.

There are 1,200,000 fewer sheep in the United States this year than in 1914. The wool production of this country has decreased steadily. It was 321,362,750 pounds in 1910, 290,192,000 pounds in 1914, 288,490,000 pounds in 1916 and 285,573,000 pounds in 1917. At the same time the amount of wool manufactured in the United States has increased from 550,356,525 pounds in 1914 to 737,679,924 pounds in 1916. This year the amount manufactured will be larger.

During this same period the consumption of mutton also increased. In other words, we used sheep products faster than we raised sheep. As each country developed range lands advanced in value. Farming increased—and that decreased the sheep ranges. So they began to sell mutton as well as wool. These changes came gradually through a period of years. Finally a point was reached where the world's wool production was practically stationary. Lambs were killed for mutton at a rate that prevented an increase in the flocks.

The problem that we would have had to solve sooner or later has been made an urgent one by the war. Six farms out of seven in the United States can help.

One Delivery a Day to Each Home is Policy of Grocers

One grocery delivery a day to each home is what the government desires, according to H. S. Shafer of Davenport, Ia., president of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Mr. Shafer points out that it is not necessarily against the policy to go over the same route several times a day with loads of groceries for delivery, so long as only one delivery a day is made to any one home, on that route.

Omaha Barbers' Association Organizes and Elects Officers

Barbers and barber shop proprietors from the South Side met with Omaha barbers at the Paxton hotel Thursday night and organized the Omaha Barbers association.

Following officers were elected: President, J. M. Payne, Millard hotel; vice president, Lew Manning, 1911 Farnam street; secretary, J. W. Light, 1617 Farnam street; treasurer, Michael Kalamaja, Stock Yards Exchange building.

Boy Paroled on Charge of Abusing His Mother

Walter Barrick, 18 years old, 4021 North Twenty-seventh street, was tried in police court Friday morning on a charge of abusing his mother. Mrs. Barrick testified Walter had refused to work and had been loafing in pool halls. When she reprimanded him, he used abusive language to her, she said. The boy admitted his guilt and was paroled to A. H. Vosburgh, juvenile officer, under a 90-day suspended sentence.

Dies in Taxi While Enroute to His Home

Earl Wallace, 34 years old, 2138 South Thirty-fifth avenue, a trader at the stock yards, died in a taxicab while enroute home from the Exchange building last night.

Wallace was taken sick early in the evening. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause of death. He is survived by his wife. The body has been removed to Brewer's undertaking establishment. An inquest will probably be held.

Workhouse Prisoner Escapes By Climbing Down Pole

Harry Dougherty, serving a 90-day sentence in the city workhouse for vagrancy, escaped Friday morning by prying several bars loose from a window in an upper floor, jumping to a roof and climbing down a telephone pole. The well fed blood hounds of the police station are on his trail.

MESS SERGEANT IS Huge Non-Com. Takes Joy Out of Life of Rooky. NEMESIS OF K. P. S.

Outside of measles and the Fort Crook basket ball team, Fort Omaha soldiers have one great worry in life. It is a large, stern, unfeeling worry, noncommissioned and extremely irrelevant to all things genial. The worry in question is Mess Sergeant Zuber, First balloon squadron, Company A.

When K. P. (kitchen police) is for the first time experienced the rooks feels a profound and bitter dislike for the sergeant. The reasons (to the rooks) are manifold. The sergeant respects neither sentiment, inexperience, nor bashfulness. In addition to this he is of rather large proportion—300 pounds, or something like—and he succeeds very well in making a man feel like an "insect."

The sergeant is well acquainted with the fact that soldiers on K. P. duty have failed, in some small way, to behave; and he makes them wish they hadn't. To peel two bushels of potatoes, and wash two or three dozen pans in one afternoon isn't the rooky's idea of life at all.

But this very work, so detested, is often the means of making a demagogue out of a snob. Taking the superfluous polish off, gives a man a taste of real army life, and all that.

Yet, there are those who will say, "Trust the sergeant—he's had 30 years of it and he should know how to work things."
