A Hoover Dinner. Would you be pleased to sit down to a meatless, wheatless, almost fatless and almost sugarless dinner? Or would you feel with the skeptic that the dinner might just as well be "eat- less?" To plan and serve such a dinner was a problem recently carried out by the advanced cooking class at the Central High school. The result was a dinner that was more than just eatable. It was good. A casual guest who did not know the menu would not have realized that the dinner was out of the ordinary. Please let me say that we did not limit ourselves to the cheapest possible foods—we merely saved on the four staples. Ten people were served and only one-half pound of sugar was used and one-fourth pound of butter. The decorations carried out the patriotic idea in a very simple manner.

EAT SKINNER'S THE BEST MACARONI. F. A. MARTOCCHIO MACARONI CO. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Popular Dried Fruits Are Plentiful and Low Priced

At this time, when fresh vegetables are at their scarcest, many people are cutting their table bills and getting wholesome food by buying dried fruits, which are plentiful and low priced. Dried pears, for example, make an appetizing dish when cooked and one that is very inexpensive. A splendid quality of dried pears is on the Omaha market at only 20 cents a pound. Dried prunes and peaches at 15 cents a pound, dried apricots at 25 cents a pound and dried apples at 20 cents a pound are among the other dried things that can be cooked into many appetizing dishes, made into dumplings or sauces and cut down the eating expenses materially. Layer figs at 25 cents a pound are among the economical eatables. Pulled figs and dates are also plentiful in

Making Your Job Pay

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"How can I make my job pay?" That is the question so many are asking. First, figure out for yourself logically what you want to do and the best method of doing it; second, take a cheery attitude.

The grim necessities of business life make us realize that with so many purposeful people journeying definitely toward accomplishment any idler or unpiloted dreamer or unintelligent pretender at work is going to get into the way of heavy machinery and be crushed.

Before going to work today, take an inventory of yourself. Find out just what your abilities are, just what your desires are, just how great your earnestness; and then, having studied your equipment, march down to offer your services with a clear idea of what you have to offer.

The equipment anyone ought to bring to work is clear knowledge, intelligent willingness to work honestly at any job, sane desire to learn to do your work as well as it can possibly be done, and clear-eyed vision as to its possibilities. Now, when you set about enrolling yourself for new work or seeking advancement in your old work, why not measure the job as well as yourself? Why not find out all about the "fords," the "bridges," the "ferries"—all the means of getting across the river—the methods of acquainting yourself with your job? Study the work you want to do and your fitness for it. Then enter upon it cheerfully. You will find truth in the old proverb: "Well begun is half done." Prepare for your job by studying it and yourself—it and your ability to do it. (Another Article Soon.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Christian and Jew. Dear Miss Fairfax: Omaha Bee: I am 21 and dearly love a man of 23. He has asked me to marry him, but not for four years. I am willing to wait, but my mother objects to our match, as we are not of the same faith. Do you think my mother is doing right by objecting? P. L. This is a question too personal for me to answer with any show of authority. You mother has a right to her own attitude in the matter, but I do not happen to agree with her attitude. What keeps such marriages from falling in toleration, broad-mindedness, sympathetic understanding. If you have them you are safe to proceed; if you do not possess them, you are likely to find only unhappiness in your marriage.

All Is Well. San Francisco, Cal. Dear Miss Fairfax: Since coming into the service I have been corresponding regularly with a young lady with whom I have been keeping pretty steady company for several years. Now, the other day I received a letter telling me she was to be married shortly. Said letter is enclosed and if it will not take up too much space I wish you would run it to show some of the people of our home state just what kind of people they are harboring. Sincerely, A SAILOR. Dear Jim: This is to let you know that I am to be married shortly. (I think that you realize as well as I that after you joined the navy we couldn't be any more than friends.) Hoping that you will not cease me for this and still remain a friend. NAN. Why complain? You are saved from a miserable life, perhaps. Do you think you

In Modern Language. A girl was required to write a brief sketch of Queen Elizabeth. Her paper contained this sentence: "Elizabeth was so dishonest that she stole her soldiers' food." The teacher was puzzled and called the girl. "Where did you get that notion?" "Why, that's what it says in the history." The book was sent for and the passage was found. It read: "Elizabeth was so parsimonious that he even pinched her soldiers' rations." —Tit-Bits.
