Henry Rosenthal Returns From Extended Eastern Trip

Henry Rosenthal, general manager of the Union Outfitting company, has returned from an extended trip in the east and through the middle west Mr. Rosenthal visited particularly the large furniture, carpet and stove markets. At Grand Rapids, Mich., he attended the big furniture exhibition. Although most of the purchases for the Union Outfitting company were made many months ago for this spring's business, before the large advance in prices, yet Mr. Rosenthal deemed it important to visit the markets so as to keep in close touch with the different factories, mills and foundries with whom he has been doing business. He says conditions for this year's business were never so bright and promising as at present, and that he looks forward to the largest volume of business that his company has ever done. Arrangements were made for handling exclusively in home furnishings.

Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska and Wadsworth of New York plan addresses in favor of legislation establishing a war cabinet and director of munitions. In the house also administration supporters expect to speak next week and Secretary Baker probably will appear before the house military committee, during the week. Keen public interest in the situation was indicated today by the many applications for seats in the senate, the military committee and house next Monday. Secretary Baker, when he appears before the senate military committee Monday to make the administration's reply to Senator Chamberlain's speech in the senate Thursday on war departments shortcomings, plans to take both congress and the country more fully into the confidence of the government as to war preparations both at home and in France. During the day he conferred with many officials and spent a short time at the White House. The secretary said he would not prepare a state ment in advance, but would speak from notes and figures he has at hand showing the exact state of preparedness attained by the army. Further disclosures of army conditions were made public today in additional reports of secret testimony at the senate committee's war inquiry. Efforts were made at the capitol to have the senate committee grant Mr

Baker's request that he be allowed to make his statement where any members of the senate and house who desired to hear him could do so. There were evidence tonight that the sessions would be held in larger quarters in the senate office building. Several senators, Representative Kahn, ranking republican of the house military committee, and others today urged such a course upon Chairman Chamberlain. Documents passing between Quartermaster General Sharpe and his superiors said that owing to the army clothing shortage, General Pershing ad been authorized in December to urchase 200,000 uniforms in England and 200,000 blankets in Spain. Breaking the News

Choate Called Dunce By Teacher, He, Admits

"You don't know nothing and you never did know nothing and it don't Holds Annual Meeting sports and was given a silver trophy. Seem as if I could ever learn you nothing," is what his school teacher told him. Mr. Choate tells of this incident in an autobiography of his youth and early manhood, recently published privately.

He was prepared for Harvard by this teacher, who, in spite of his relentless manhandling of the King's English, seems to have been well up in the classics, inasmuch as he had young Choate ready for college at sixteen. After graduation he went to New York, where he had hard sledding, having gauged his expenses by the standards of Salem. He used to walk three miles twice a day from his room to his office, for his fees as a young lawyer permitted no bus fares. Among the first friends he made was the family of John Hopper, who married late in life and was not blessed with any offspring until De Wolf Hopper, of "Casey at the Bat" fame, was born. Mr. Choate tells of the great event of the arrival of De Wolf. The elder Hopper was so engrossed with the wonderful qualities of the youngster that one day he seized the baby by one leg and held him out of the window for friends to admire. He recalls vividly his first "case."

American Hen's Unchallenged Right to Cackle

The American hen has been called on to take her peck at the meat situation. The food administrator has started a campaign similar to that of the make-a-garden propaganda of last spring. It calls for a more general use of the backyard for the raising of poultry. Roadsides are to be placarded and appeals are to be made to farmers and possible poultry raisers through the newspapers.

The Department of Agriculture has set aside about $200,000 for booming the poultry industry through the department of animal husbandry alone. John H. Robinson, a poultry editor of Boston, has been drafted to write poultry articles and send out hen advice of all kinds. It is expected that the backyard chicken will release enough hens to make it possible to send considerable poultry to the allies in place of other meats. Already 1,000,000 pounds of chicken have been contracted for by one of Mr. Hoover's representatives to be shipped to the boys in France. The stock in cold storage is already large.

W. F. Priebe has been made the hen member of Mr. Hoover's cabinet. He knows the chicken business from the foundation up, for the company of which he is the head operates 17 big plants for killing, dressing, pack-ing and shipping chickens from the west. In one year his concern handled 16,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry. Mr. Hoover also promises to reduce the cost of chicken feed materially. He has sent out a message to the American Poultry association in which he says: "Increased production of poultry can be effected much faster than beef, pork or mutton. While we want in-
