

'SCOUTS' SECOND YEAR OF WORK BEGINS IN OMAHA

Executive Committee of Local Council Meets and Discusses Plans for Future; Propose Big Spring Drive.

Boy Scouts of Omaha, as an organization, is entering upon its second year and the national organization started its ninth year of work. The executive committee of the Omaha council met last week and discussed plans for the future, one proposal being that a drive should be made this spring for $10,000 with which to push the work in Omaha.

A year ago last November nearly $18,000 was pledged, to be paid in three years. The work during 1917 has shown that more money must be raised or the work curtailed. The proposition of a fund campaign this spring will be definitely decided within a week or so.

Suggests Week-End Camp.

The Omaha council plans to maintain a week-end camp next summer on a tract north of Florence. It is proposed to have two shacks, one with sleeping accommodations for 60 boys and four men and the other shack to be used as kitchen and dining room. A summer camp will be held for two weeks to provide more extended outings than the week-end camps.

In connection with the observance of the first anniversary in Omaha the Scouts visited the heads of all war activities and extended greetings and offered assurances of future co-operation by Boy Scouts in the work of helping to win the war.

Another feature of the anniversary was distribution of flowers in all hospitals yesterday. The scouts took 900 flowers to so many patients and with each flower they left a word of comfort and cheer.

Meet Saturday Night.

The annual meeting of the scouts and scoutmasters will be held next Saturday night in the Chamber of Commerce. This meeting was to have been held last Saturday night, but weather conditions intervened.

Today is Scout Sunday, designated by the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. In many pulpits this morning the scout movement will be referred to and recommended.

On the subject of Scout Sunday, C. H. English, local scout executive, issued the following statement:

"One Sunday of each year should be devoted to a sermon on scouting. If you have a troop affiliated with your church, this is your opportunity to render a valuable service. If you have not a troop, it is your opportunity to stimulate interest in the formation of one. As far as the church goes, there is need to definitely tie up the boys with the church, and this is a wonderful means of accomplishing that result. We would like to have you make an appeal for scout leaders. The following is a suggested outline of a sermon:

"May we count upon you to render this service to the boyhood of Omaha on February 9? If you have a troop, please invite that troop to the service."

Scoutmaster of Troop 20 Prepares Mulligan Stew

BY EDWIN A. BOLLER, Reporter of Troop 20.

The boys of our troop met at Scoutmaster Edmunds' home, and from there we walked to East Omaha. We then followed a path at the end of the car line and soon reached a little sandbar by the river. Then came the work of clearing a place for a fire. We soon had a fine fire going from which the boys started individual fires to cook their meals.

Each boy cooked his own meal. It is shown that a scout is able to take care of himself at meal time as well as at other times.

Our scoutmaster made some mulligan stew and not having and water used snow for moisture. He gave us boys a taste and we thought it was fine, only for the sand that was in it. At that, we think our scoutmaster a good scout and hope that he will soon arrange another hike.

Boy Scouts Are Deputized As Special Food Agents

Boy Scouts of Omaha are all deputized as special agents of the food administration to report to State Food Administrator Wattles any violation of the food regulations that come under their observation.

This came as a surprise to the boys. Friday afternoon when the Scouts were going over the city in squads calling on the various heads of war activities, and other public activities pledging their loyalty to every patriotic movement and to every worthy civic cause, a squad of them marched into the office of the food administrator. After the boys had delivered their greetings and pledged their loyalty, Mr. Wattles arose and deputized them and all their Omaha comrades as special agents for the food administration.

Wesley Miller Earns Money Shovelin' Off Sidewalks

Wesley Miller, 13 years old, is a son of Roy Miller of the Northwestern city ticket office and he is a member of Scout Troop No. 4. Wesley says that he appreciates money that he has earned. Yesterday morning, when he looked out and viewed a blanket of snow over the earth, he hurried his breakfast, donned some warm clothes and started out through his neighborhood with a shovel. He had $1.50 to his credit before the noon hour and was still going it when last observed. He said he found most folks glad to have somebody call and offer to clear their walks for a few cents and when he got started in a block he found the rest easy, because of the comparison between the walks which had been cleaned and those not cleaned.

Crow and Wolf Patrols Are Organized in Troop 47

Crow and Wolf patrols have been organized in Troop 47, at St. Peter's church. Dean Payne and John Bush were elected leader and assistant of Crow patrol, and Mark Owens and Leo Fitzwilliam will guide the Wolf patrol. Harry Welch is scribe of Troop 47.
