

EARLY CLOSING ORDER REMOVED BY FUEL OFFICE

Restrictions on Retail Stores Withdrawn by State Administrator; Resume Former Schedule.

Restrictions on hours of opening and closing retail stores have been withdrawn by the fuel administration.

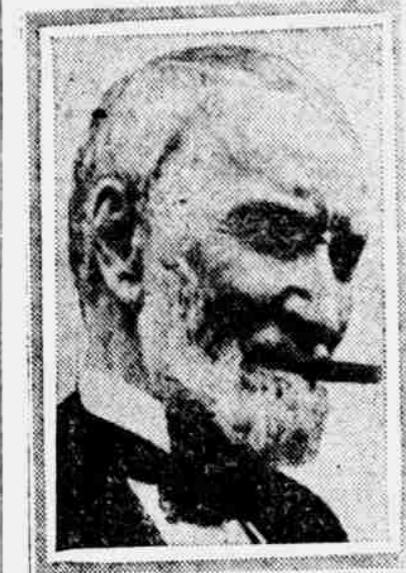

Fuel Administrator Kennedy made the announcement Friday morning.

J. W. Metcalf, secretary of the Associated Retailers of Omaha, said: "Some of the retailers will immediately go back to the old hours of 8:30 a. m. to 9 p. m. Saturdays, and 8:30 to 6 on week days, but some, I understand, like the new hours so well that they are going to continue them for an indefinite period. The Associated Retailers have taken no action as a body as to what they will do, but a great many of them will doubtless go back to the former schedule immediately."

Fuel Administrator Kennedy said: "The increasing supply of coal, the lengthening days, and the near approach of spring justify the action now taken."

The withdrawal of the restrictions heretofore made does not affect ordinances enacted by the city relating

BROKEN ARM MEANS NOTHING TO 'UNCLE JOE'

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, now nearly 82 years old, appeared at the capitol in Washington recently in a wheel-chair with a disabled knee and an arm fractured at the shoulder from a fall. Doctors and nurses succeeded in restraining the veteran legislator in his room for a week only. Now he is attending committee meetings and says he will go on the floor of the house if necessary.

to pool halls and other lines of business.

"The fuel administration still asks the co-operation of the business interests of the city in the conservation of fuel along general lines; both in the saving of coal and the moderate use of electric lights. "The lightless nights orders—Thursday and Sunday nights—still stands, and will be enforced. "It was only because of the entire co-operation of the business houses of Omaha that the present abolishment of the fuel order was made possible and desirable."

Earl Nye Says Wife Spent Earnings on Mother-in-Law

Earl B. Nye in his cross petition for divorce in district court complains that his wife, Lenora, spent all his earnings on his mother-in-law. He says she flew in a rage one day three months after they were married and left with all the furniture. Since then she has taken "French leave" on several occasions, he declares, carrying their joint personal effects away with her.

WATTLES GIVES INSTRUCTIONS TO FOOD SPEAKERS

Corps of Volunteers Who Are to Tour State Meet for Two Days' Training Under Administrator.

The corps of volunteers who will travel in Nebraska to speak for the food administration received instructions from G. W. Wattles, federal food administrator for Nebraska, at the administration office yesterday morning in the Union Pacific building. Those present were:

A. C. Lau in charge of the campaign; John Mattes, Nebraska City; A. H. Kidd, Beatrice; Harry S. Byrne, Omaha; L. F. Langhorst, Elmwood; Walter M. Hopewell, Tekamah; A. H. Backhaus, Pierce; O. F. Flory, St. Edwards; A. R. Kinney, Ravenna; C. G. Bliss, Elm Creek, and Earl D. Malley, Alliance.

"When people ask you whether pancake flour is a substitute for white flour and is to be sold as such, I want you to be able to answer the question," said Mr. Wattles. "That is only a sample, but people are going to ask you a lot of questions, and I want you to be thoroughly familiar with all the details of the food law and the regulations."

The speakers will take instruction

FINANCIER WHO MAY BE WAR INDUSTRIES CHIEF

BARNARD M. BARUCH

Bernard M. Baruch of New York, it is reported, has been selected by President Wilson to become chairman of the war industries board. He will succeed Daniel Willard, who resigned. It is understood a general reorganization of the board is to be made to fit more closely with the war-making machinery of the government.

from Mr. Wattles and his staff for two days before starting on the tour. They work without compensation. Their railway fare and necessary hotel expenses are allowed.

"People must be made to understand thoroughly that there is not enough food to supply everyone with the amount he might use in normal times," said Mr. Wattles, "and they must be brought to understand that as far back as last November we had already shipped abroad all the visible supply of wheat. They must be brought to understand that in spite of this the federal food administration is determined to send abroad a great deal more, and that this must be made up by denying ourselves some at home."

"Now then, the administration is going to export this wheat—that is settled. We are asked to save it and deny ourselves in order to make up this exportable supply to feed the allies and our soldiers abroad. If we don't deny ourselves and save it, it will be done for us. We cannot get away from it. The government must and will have this wheat to send abroad where it belongs at this time."

"It has come to me that people are asking whether I practice what I preach. Well, I'll say that at our house we eat no white bread on wheatless day or any other day. That is how strictly I observe the rules. And that is a good thing for any of you to be able to say, for people will ask you the same question perhaps. So get your record straight in your own home and at your own table, and stand on that record when you are questioned."

Husband Says Wife Accused Him of Trifling on Her

Anel L. Zwiebel, answering Estelle Zwiebel's divorce suit in district court, alleges she kept accusing him of infidelity until he could stand it no longer.

Shippers Want Commission, Not McAdoo, to Fix Rates

The traffic bureau of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce has telegraphed the Nebraska delegation in congress to urge that influence be exerted in congress to retain in the hands of the Interstate Commerce commission full control of railroad rates.

The railroad bill now is pending in congress, and Secretary McAdoo is claiming absolute control of the rate structure as well as the direction of the management of the roads. Shippers throughout the country feel that the Interstate Commerce commission, with its wide experience and knowledge of rate matters, should be allowed to control rates.

"The commission has the confidence of the country," said Manager C. E. Childs of the Omaha Traffic bureau in his telegram, "and it is the only body competent to deal with this highly technical and supremely important subject. We ask the Nebraska delegation to use influence to see that the railroad bill now before congress contains nothing that will disturb or affect the commission's rate-making or regulatory powers."
