Office Flirtation—Man and Woman Stuff

Rose Nelson had long eye-lashes, pink cheeks and white teeth. When she was counting over her aids to success she figured them right in with her ability to take 125 words a minute. Rose was wrong, as a year or two of experience proved to her. She lost her first position because the head bookkeeper always took a minute off to lean on her desk when he passed it—and he passed it a great many times a day.

Bright Spots in Military Life

CHARLES BURGESS. DOUGLAS PETERS.

A detail of 64 men from Fort Crook is invading the city today in the interest of "A Day of Military Life," to be given at the Auditorium February 20. Each man has been given a section and unless you keep moving they surely will get you for at least one ticket. Indeed, who could refuse the boys in khaki anything they ask!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX. Very Disrespectful. Dear Miss Fairfax: Do announcements cards of weddings require sending the party a present?

"Too ornamental! That can't count against me," gasped Rose. "It can't! But it does. You're putting my whole office force out of order. Every clerk and bookkeeper in the place is vying for your favor. I figure that six of the 12 men in the office waste an hour a day talking to you or trying to get a chance to talk to you. I'll have to let you out, Miss Nelson."

A Rich Woman Asked to Sell a Pearl and Buy a Beet For Her Ill-Nourished Baby

Ignorance and carelessness are often to be found in the most unexpected places. Thus it often happens that the poor immigrant woman is found scrimping and sacrificing to give her children the best food and care, while wealthy and presumably well-educated women are found grumbling about the high prices and cutting down their children's supply of food.

Friendliness is necessary to the health and happiness of an organization, but that means a general friendliness—amiability toward all fellow workers. And flirtation is an exclusive, snobbish, selfish thing that flaunts itself, disregards the rights and feelings and criticisms of other people and eats up the most valuable thing in the business world—time.

Foreign Women All Right. Curiously enough, most child welfare workers will tell you that their hardest work does not always lie in the foreign colonies of the large cities. Here the women will accept any new suggestions as a part of the Americanization process. They want to be Americans and so they care for their babies the way the Americans tell them to.
