

OMAHA BALLOON TROOP ARRIVES AT EASTERN PORT

Fifth Squadron, Designated as Eleventh and Twelfth Companies, Reported Ready to Sail for France.

Fifth balloon squadron, designated as the Eleventh and Twelfth companies for transportation purposes, which left Monday afternoon, has arrived at an Atlantic seaport. The squadron was under the command of Lieutenants Murphy and McKinley. The detachment consisted of 500 officers and men who have been in training at Fort Omaha for several months. The baggage and equipment of the men were carried on the same train. Two sections were required to transport the men east. This is the last squadron stationed here to leave, and the fort is now used exclusively by student flyers preparing for examination for commissions. It is reported that graded men will be transferred here for training in balloon work, but nothing definite has been announced. The destination of this detachment is not known, but the men were confident on leaving that they would soon be on the battle line in France. Additional training in eastern artillery camps is possible, but the men are anxious to see active service and banished the thought from their minds on leaving Omaha.

Miss Christina Drexel, Pioneer Omaha Woman, Dies

Mrs. Christina Drexel, widow of Fred Drexel, died Thursday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. John H. Harte, 5016 California street. Mrs. Drexel was a pioneer of Omaha and a charter member of Kountze Memorial Lutheran church. She was born in Saxony, November 4, 1833, and came to Omaha in 1856. With her husband she settled on a homestead known as the Drexel farm and which was sold when the town site of South Omaha was laid out. Mrs. Drexel was known by many friends and acquaintances for her devotions as mother and wife and for her deep religious convictions. The late John C. Drexel, city commissioner, was a son. Surviving sons are: George M. of Florence, Herman and Frank of Omaha, A. R. of Los Angeles; daughters, Mrs. John H. Harte and Mrs. H. S. Harte, both of this city. John C. Lingner of Omaha is a brother, and Mrs. J. Rossenstiel of Springfield, Neb., is a sister.

Chamber of Commerce Will Assist Council of Defense

A dozen members of the Douglas County Council of Defense met at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and went over further plans for the survey of the war work done in Omaha and the county. Raymond Young, secretary of the organization, presided in the absence of Chairman Hugh W. D. McHugh. The county council is organized in every ward and precinct to make the survey, but will make use of army volunteers among Chamber of Commerce members and other business men who are willing to help. When it is all completed a card index system for records of state and county councils of defense will show what work has been done in Omaha and the county on the various war activities who served on the committees and working teams that accomplished the results, and other information that will be valuable in the future.

"Home Remedy" Proves to Be Suitcase Full of Booze

A suitcase full of booze was the admittance fee into the police station for R. L. Lewis, Springfield, and Val Masak, Twenty-first and L streets, South Side, last night. Officers Turner and Heller of the morals squad welcomed the two corn juice confederates at the Union station and escorted them to the cells.

"Ah-er-er—we've got just a little home remedy here," one of the victims said, endeavoring to allay the suspicion of the officers.

"You can tell the judge all about your remedy," Officer Turner replied as he led the duo to the station.

Christian Endeavorers Will Hold Meeting at Waterloo

The eighth annual convention of the Douglas and Dodge county Christian Endeavorers will be held in Waterloo March 1 to 3, with the sessions in the First Presbyterian church. The first meeting, Friday night, will be a camp fire, with Miss Georgia Reinhardt presiding. The principal address will be by Rev. Nathaniel McGiffin of Fremont. Saturday and Sunday there will be three sessions daily. Delegates will be entertained in the homes of the Waterloo people.

HEALTH

Constipation

and how to remove the cause

Those who sit much, put a strain upon the spine in the region known as the small of the back.

When, because of such strain, the joints of the backbone at that point slip slightly or seriously from place, the spinal nerve which makes its exit from between the joints at that point, is pinched. This nerve pressure destroys the vigorous action of the lower bowel so essential to good health. Constipation is the first result. When it becomes chronic, piles, sciatica and other troubles follow.

Spinal adjustments correct this condition, removing the nerve pressure and giving nature a chance to act with normal vigor. No other method removes the cause.

FREE—Spinal analysis is free to anyone without obligation.
