

WATERLOO MEN SPLASH PAINT AT KLINE'S FARM

Resent Small Purchase of War Stamps by Wealthy Citizen and Pay Visit to His Home, Singing "America."

Waterloo, Neb., March 23.—(Special Telegram.)—Incensed by alleged pro-German proclivities of Paul G. Kline, wealthy farmer, residing six miles east of here, 50 citizens of Waterloo Friday night raided his farm.

Great splashes of brilliant yellow paint were freely applied to every one of his farm buildings. After the anger of the posse had been appeased, the 50 Americans gathered around Kline's residence and, with heads uncovered, and led by a tenor voice, sang "America" in a gripping manner. Kline remained indoors throughout the demonstration.

Waterloo, on Friday, held a big war savings stamp demonstration. Business men and farmers from the entire countryside were in attendance. It was the largest patriotic demonstration Waterloo has had. Between $30,000 and $35,000 was raised.

Buys Only Few Stamps.

When word was passed around that Kline, reputed to be worth $75,000 and owning 450 of the finest acres of land in Nebraska, had bought only $20 worth of stamps, the citizens became incensed. Kline was in Waterloo in the afternoon when he made the purchase. He has never donated to the Young Men's Christian association funds, Waterloo citizens declare.

Early in the evening automobiles were silently sent around Waterloo to gather Americans who could be controlled by their leaders. They included bankers, newspaper men and business men of Waterloo.

Arriving at the farm site, squads were detailed to care for every building. Only the shortage of paint on hand prevented Kline's new home from being completely covered.

An award is made that the defendant continue to pay to the said plaintiff the sum of $7.50 per week from December 17, 1917, until his disability is removed, however, not to exceed 300 weeks from April 25, 1917, and further pay the reasonable expense of plaintiff for medical attendance for the first 21 days.

Four Slackers Tarr'd and Feathered in Illinois Town

St. Louis, March 23.—Three men, charged with disloyalty, were tarred and feathered tonight at Christopher, Ill., a mining town 83 miles southeast of here, by a vigilance committee numbering several hundred persons. A fourth man was forced to kiss the flag and was then driven from the town.

Late tonight the committee called at the home of Rev. John Kovalsky, pastor of the Catholic church at Christopher, who has been accused of making disloyal remarks. He, too, was taken to the public square, stripped to the waist and a coat of tar and feathers applied. He did not leave the city.

Christopher is located in the district in south Illinois which lately has been the scene of several demonstrations against disloyalists and the activity of the committee tonight is said to be part of the program of loyal citizens to purge the district of charges of pro-Germanism.

FIGHTS OVER STOCK RIGHTS NOW GO INTO LEGISLATURES

Washington Bureau of The Omaha Bee, 1311 G Street.
Washington, March 23.—(Special Telegram.)—Declaring the absolute right of the state, in effect, to control all grazing on the public lands within its borders—reversing all previous opinions, generally held by those who live in the range country—Justice Brandeis has handed down an opinion of tremendous importance and one likely to change entirely the present aspect of the range stock industry.

TWO JUDGES DISSENT.

Justices Vandevanter and McReynolds dissent from the Brandeis opinion.

The case is one brought from the state of Idaho, wherein a sheepman resisted what is known as the "two-mile law," enacted by the Idaho legislature in 1887, prohibiting sheep from grazing within two miles of "ranges previously occupied by cattle."

The gist of the Brandeis decision is: "The police power of the state extends over the federal public domain, at least where there is no legislation by congress on the subject."

RIGHT OF CITIZENS.

"Congress has not conferred upon citizens the right to graze stock upon the public lands. The government has

ALL WASHINGTON IN FEVER HEAT OVER WAR NEWS

Washington, March 23.—All official Washington turned its attention almost wholly today to the news from the fighting front.

Dispatches telling of penetration of the British defensive system, the retirement of British troops, Berlin's claims of large captures of men and guns and finally the news that the Germans were bombarding Paris at a hitherto unheard of range of about 62 miles, came as one surprise after the other.

Embassies and legations, American officials, congressmen and others avid for news of the great battle, besieged the Associated Press offices for the latest dispatches and crowds surrounded the newspaper bulletin boards. With the full realization of the tremendous consequences hanging on the resistance of the British and French armies, the general attitude of officials here was one of calm confidence.

British Aircraft Render Aid To Infantry in Hard Fighting

London, March 23.—British aircraft during the fighting along the front in France Thursday aided materially the infantry forces below, killing or wounding many Germans with their machine guns while flying at low altitudes, according to a British official communication issued tonight dealing with aviation.

In addition British aircraft bombed important military positions behind the line and aviators accounted for numerous German airmen in battles in the air.

Efforts to Settle St. Louis Strike Result in Deadlock

St. Louis, Mo., March 23.—Negotiations looking to a settlement of all strikes in St. Louis have resulted in a deadlock between the employers and workers according to a statement issued today by labor leaders, who declared that union labor is not responsible for the industrial unrest in this district and blame the strikes on "profiteering employers."

Major W. C. Rogers, representing the secretary of war and the ordnance department of the army, is in St. Louis this week acting in the role of mediator. He has arranged several conferences between the disputants and announced tonight further meetings will be held in an effort to settle the differences.

Bit of Unusual News Gets In Report of Famous "A. P."

New York, March 23.—For at least half a century young men who aspired to journalism, have been given the axiom that anything unusual constitutes news. They have been told, proverbially, that if a baby fell out of a fourth story window and was killed it would not be unusual, but that if it fell out of a fourth story window into a baby carriage in the street and was uninjured it would be unusual and therefore news. It happened in New York tonight.

Mrs. Edna Wicker was leaning out a window of her apartment at 895 Second avenue with her two months old grandson in her arms when she fell out. The baby dropped into a go-cart in the street below. Mrs. Wicker was so seriously injured she may die.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR GOITRE

A goitre is known to the Chiropractor as an inco-ordination in which there is an excessive increase in the size of the thyroid gland, which is a bi-lobed organ about three inches in length, situated on the sides of the upper rings of the trachea and consists of small closed vesicles containing a yellow glairy fluid surrounded by a dense plexus of capillaries, and held together by connective areolar tissue.

This excessive increase in the thyroid gland is simply an overgrowth of the tissue of the gland, consisting of an increase in the cells of its structure.

There are varied forms of goitre, such as cystic goitre, which is an accumulation of fluid in a space in the gland.

Vascular Goitre is an enlargement of the vessels of the thyroid gland due to a relaxation or a loss of tonicity of the muscle fibers forming the vessel walls.

Goitre may appear on one or both sides and be evenly or unevenly distributed over the gland, the first noticeable symptom is the enlargement which may not be sufficient to produce pressure symptoms. Goitres vary in size greatly according to their form and duration, fibroid goitres usually are the largest.

Exophthalmic Goitre is an inco-ordination characterized by enlargement of the gland and protrusion of the eyeballs, symptoms usually appear gradually and the circulatory symptoms are the first noticeable, with palpitation and tachycardia, the pulse rate sometimes varies from 100 to nearly 200 and there may be visible pulsation of the vessels of the neck and ringing in the ears from the abnormal heart action, the enlargement in this form of goitre nearly always is smaller and confined to the inner surface of the gland and is known as inward goitre.

In exophthalmic goitre the eyes are involved, the patient sometimes being unable to rotate the eyeballs in following a moving object, and in some cases the eyelids do not cover the eyeball, due to the eyeball bulging forward, other symptoms are nervousness, irritability, headache and pressure symptoms.

Protrusion or bulging of the eyeball is caused by pressure from behind the eyeball by enlarged blood vessels and a hyperplasia of the adipose tissue in the socket and this is caused by a subluxation in the spine. It makes no difference to a Chiropractor whether it is a simple goitre or any other of the various forms, the fact remains that the mechanical interference (subluxation) is in the spine, which produces pressure on certain nerve, shutting off the life force or mental impulses, thereby preventing Nature from performing its function in the thyroid gland.

When a segment of the spine is misaligned and remains in its abnormal position, sooner or later, due to the nerve pressure, there is bound to be an abnormal expression of a function that Nature intended to be normal. Chiropractors believe that to eliminate an effect the cause must be removed, and they have demonstrated many times that the cause of goitre is a misaligned vertebra in the spinal column, interfering with the nerve supply and that when the cause is removed, thereby releasing the nerve pressure, Nature will dispose of the goitre.

If you are afflicted with goitre in any form, will you investigate the science that is as accurate as mathematics, remembering that for every effect there is an underlying cause?

Consult your Chiropractor and ask him for literature dealing with this subject and it will be gladly given. Consultation will cost you nothing.

If Chiropractic had no merit it could not survive. It has stood the test for twenty-two years and during that time has made wonderful progress. It is in accordance with the laws of Nature, thus its success.

Next Sunday Talk No. 20: "Chiropractic for Anapneustic," will be printed in The Omaha Bee.

Soldiers may secure adjustments free of charge from any Chiropractor.
