Before setting the time for the trial, the court overruled a motion to quash the indictment against the 166 Industrial Workers of the World.

Papers Under Guard.

The Industrial Workers of the World papers which were impounded by the court will be placed under guard, subject to the inspection of District Attorney Clyne. Attorney Vanderveer protested against the court's action in refusing to return the papers, despite the fact that Judge Landis had previously remarked that no possible benefit could, in his opinion, accrue to either side through their return, which he said would be a useless ceremony," since the only results possible by the return would be simple retention, destruction or
