Severely of Pats Swell Ed.

A strange new disease has broken out in Germany, according to articles in German medical weeklies, summarized in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The physicians call it war edema. It manifests itself by a swelling of the lower extremities, loss of appetite, the face, and the serous cavities. Unless permanent relief is obtained it may last for months.

Back in the forties, when San Francisco was twenty days from New York and Europe was another planet, cities were mostly interested in themselves.

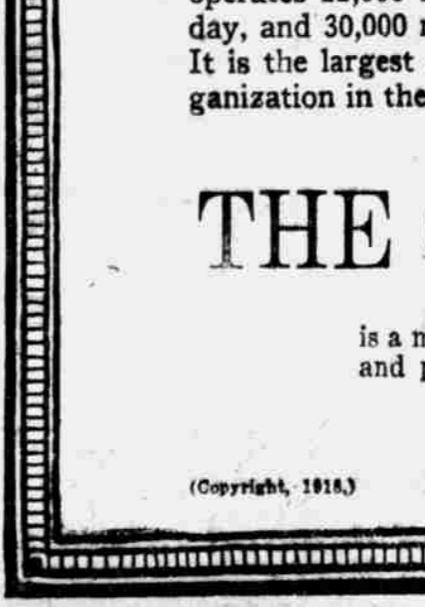

Newspapers had space only for the city hall reporter, weddings and other local happenings. But as American life expanded into national, and then international compass, people demanded news from other cities and countries.

And so, in 1848, the publishers of a number of leading American newspapers formed a mutual organization which was named the Associated Press.

In effect, these newspapers combined their newsgathering staffs, supplying each other with the important news, each within his own particular territory. Later were added special Associated Press correspondents and foreign correspondents. Incidentally, a vast organization was set on foot to transmit the dispatches over the telegraph wires.

From this beginning has grown the great Associated Press of today. Its membership reaches into almost every city and town of importance in the country—1,080 are on the rolls. It commands the services of 52,000 special correspondents, and its foreign correspondents cover every city in the civilized world. It operates 22,000 miles of leased telegraph wires every day, and 30,000 miles every night. It is the largest and most efficient news gathering organization in the world.

Program Before President Will Induct Into Service All Not Engaged in Productive Industry.

Washington, April 6.—President Wilson had before him today a plan submitted by officials of the War and Labor departments designed to use the machinery of the draft to put industrial slackers to work. Although the president's attitude toward the proposal, which would affect, in one way or another, the status of everyone of the millions of registered men, has not been indicated, officials appeared confident that he will regard it favorably.

Solve Labor Problems.

Framers of the plan see in its working a solution of the nation's labor problem and a large increase in the production of the necessities of life. Every registered man who has been given a deferred classification would be given to understand that his exemption is not a legal right, but a privilege, and that if unfair advantage is taken of that privilege it will be revoked. The proposal provides for a survey of the selective service act, class one and other classes of idlers, or those getting their living from undesirable or "harmful" pursuits. Gambling is suggested under the latter head. Notification would be served on these men that unless they found employment in useful industry their status would be changed and they would be inducted into the military service immediately.

Enormous War Gains.

The principal increase to the labor supply is expected to be derived from men in the lower sections of class one whose position in that class gives them practically deferred classification. With the addition of those who have reached the age of 21 since the passage of the selective service act, class one will include no less than 2,200,000 men. Even should the proportion of those who are not engaged in productive work be small, the aggregate will run into the hundreds of thousands.
