

ATROCITIES OF HUN DESCRIBED BY REV. MR. LOWE

Methodist Minister, Back From War Front, Urges Nation to Speed Up War Supplies to Armies.

"Speed up, speed up, men, money, munitions and food supplies are needed for the successful prosecution of this war, and it will never end until we have stricken the kaiser to his knees," was the assertion of Rev. Titus Lowe at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday noon.

Rev. Mr. Lowe explained in detail many of the accounts of German atrocities which he had obtained at first hand from eye witnesses. He said the French and English people have become somewhat hardened to the awful crimes committed by the unspeakable Hun, and do not, except after considerable coaxing, speak of the outrages.

"But there are many regiments over there which are taking no prisoners at all, and I do not blame them."

"The French are an unconquerable people and though the allied line may waver and give it will never break. At the present time the French, English and Canadians and possibly the Americans are bearing the brunt of the struggle. They are wonderful soldiers."

Rev. Mr. Lowe passed some time in the front line trenches and has been over the entire scene of the present battle. He said he could visualize just what is happening there at the present time.

Rev. Mr. Lowe compared the process of waking up the American people so the tempering of fine steel and said that when we have reached the desired point and have gotten in closer touch with the allies, we will break through the German lines and end the war.
