FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, PROPRIETOR. Entered at Omaha postoffice as second-class matter. TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

he Associated Press, of which The Bee is a member, is exclusively utilitied to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited a it or not otherwise credited in this super, and also the local news oblished herein. All rights of publication of our special dispatches

Umaha-The Bee Building.
South Omaha-2318 N St.
Sunchi Omaha-2318 N St.
Sunchi Bluffs-14 N. Maio St.
Lincoln-Little Building.
Washington-1311 G St.
Washington-1311 G St. CORRESPONDENCE saidress communications relating to news and editorial matter to remain Bee. Editorial Department.

MARCH CIRCULATION 66,558 Daily-Sunday, 56,553

Williams. Circulation for the month, subscribed and sworn to by Dwight Subscribers leaving the city should have The Bee mailed to them. Address changed as often as requested.

Men, food, ships are the great needs. Liberty bonds will help fill the order.

This new daylight-saving business acts just as if it had always been with us.

Twenty-three candidates for commissioner received less than 500 votes in our city primary. It was "23" for them.

The low men in the recent city primary received less than 200 votes, an average of not more than one to a precinct. Accidents will happen. One more success is credited to German artillery at Berlin, another American Red Cross

I nurse having been killed in an attack on a hos-Why blame Sitting Bull? That dead and gone exponent of kultur lived up to his lights, but he

Dismissal seems a mild punishment for a general who deliberately neglects his duty, Progermanism in the army ought to meet something was an untutored and not a scientifically equipped

Germans are using American activity to back drive for another war loan. Berlin is rapidly awakening to the fact that it blundered in arous-

The Finns say they merely invited the Germans to assist in restoring order, but they may have trouble in getting rid of their guests. Finland is really important to German world domin-

The kaiser is ordering the "crushing" of all armies opposed to him, but he no longer refers s contemptil fied his views on this roint.

The senate military affairs committee declares the War department's airplane program to have been a disappointment, which is a mild way of characterizing what looks like a dismal failure. Reorganization and closer control is proposed as

A proteut baker at Salt Lake was dumped into dough tub by fellow workmen, who for the moment overlooked the value of bread. The Moron city ought to provide a special dump for its undesirables.

Nebraskans have cut their wheat consumption in half, according to the food administrator's reports. Moreover, they will double their, wheat production, thus magnifying their contribution to the world's food supply.

What Our Navy Is Doing.

Establishment of a naval base at the Azores slands to serve as a protection for the commerce in that region in announced from Washington, serving to remind the people that our sea dogs are on the job. We have not heard a great deal of the navy's part in the war; of course, we know it is on the job continually, and that through its ceaseless vigilance we have been able to transport an army and its supplies to Europe. Such simple statements do not tell the story. The navy was the one department of our government that was ready when the war broke out. It has never flagged, but has been increased in strength of men, vessels and armament, until it is fairly entitled to rank alongsitte Great Britain's mighty armada at the beginning of the war. Some day the cover will be taken off and the story of what our navy is doing will be told in detail to the world. It will be in keeping with its traditions. For the present Americans must rest content in the limited knowledge that our sea warriors are on watch, alert and vigorous, and may be depended upon in any emergency that may arise.

DID YOU GET THIS?

Can it be that someone slipped a cog the other day in the sanctum of our affiable hyphenated contemporary which has been so valiantly opposing editorially every suggestion of universal military training? Under a prominent heading specially labeled "by F. Edgar McGee, staff correspondent," and dated at Camp Meade, Maryland, former Congressman Johnson of South Dakota, who enlisted for service, is quoted as being convinced more firmly than ever after three months in training there that he was right in advocating universal military training when he was in congress and the World-Herald "staff correspondent" adds for himself as of his own knowledge the following:

And that is the spirit in every camp in America where men, good, red-blooded men, are in training. Civilians a few months ago, and nine out of every 10 of them opposed to military training, at least of a universal variety, they are now to a man in favor of a system of universal training for the whole of the United States. Simply because, through actual experience, they have woke up to the fact that universal training is not only absolutely necessary for the protection of America and her ideals, but essential for the preservation of the nation's youth. Just now we are engaged in that highly profitable and pleasurable business of wiping the kaiser and all that smacks of militarism off the map, but when that job is over we must turn to the army system we have created and give it some mighty serious

Which are the readers of the hyphenated organ to believe-the unanswerable argument of the staff correspondent in favor of universal military training, or the camouflage argument of the paper's editor against universal military trainingthe former speaking from experience and observation in training camp, the latter writing a dissertation on his beautiful desk in that costly new

P. S .- We want it distinctly understood that we are not trying to get the staff correspondent

Russia's War on Japan. Any declaration of war by Russia at present will depend in the first place on permission of Germany to the Russians to raise and maintain an army. This makes it clear that if Lenine is allowed to carry out his threat to wage war against Japan, it will be because the kaiser considers such action to his advantage. Japan's entry at Vladivostok was long forecasted, and in a broad sense had been discounted as to its possible effect on the Russian people. So far as this war is concerned, Russia is of remote avail only to the Allies; it is possible that Germany's organization can be so extended that a blow may be struck at Japan. This must be apparent to any. Provision against such a move by the mikado's government is only prudent. To await the arrival of German agents in the Pacific regions of Siberia before moving would be to invite grave danger to Japan. Placation of the bolsheviki by the Allies may be an essential feature of the general war policy, but it should be undertaken on the basis that Russia yet owes something to the cause it has betrayed, and that its future will not be darkened by declining to fall in with all the plans of the German military party

Dangerous Propaganda

Most insidious of all efforts to break down the American will to win is the continued repetition of the assertion that the German people are preparing to overturn or reform their government. Our war is with Germany, against the German genius, the German idea of control from above. It is folly to think that any material division exists between the German kaiser and the German people. None can doubt that a great weariness of war has overcast the central empires of Europe, but this has not had the effect of weakening their efforts. So long as their armies are in the field, fighting desperately and with the hope of victory, just that long will the people of those countries support the military. They believe in the plan of world domination, and look ahead confidently to the time when all nations will recognize the superiority of the German. If they finally succeed in imposing their will on the world, the reward will be to them worth far more than the cost. Americans must keep this in mind: The only way for Germany to attain reform in its government is through the dust of its present institutions, and the only prospect of safety for the world outside of Germany is through beating those institutions into dust.

A conference of military experts to agree on some standardized form of battle interpretation might help to remove some of the confusion that now obfusticates the public. Until it is held the bewildered citizen will have to content himself with the belief that sometime all will be made plain, but for the present the wisest of the strategists at home does not know what the generals in command are doing or planning.

Senator Hitchcock's hyphenated World-Herald has not a word to say about the failure of the legislature to carry out the mandate of the democratic politicians to save the alien enemy vote in Nebraska for the 1920 presidential election. The Hitchcock-Mullen bunch got the governor in bad there and would like very much to have folks forget it.

Unsung Heroes of the Sea Brave Battles of Seamen Against the Sneak of the Deep

New York Evening Post.

Out yonder, in European waters, is going | her bag, as well, rations of pilot biscuits and on a silent war, without thunder of guns, marmalade and a pot of tea? massed attacks, or hourly reports from cor- worst that has been told about the coldrespondents. Now and then, when a great blooded brutality of submarine officers, liner falls victim to a submarine, the cables nearly equalling the tale of the Belgian burn with stories of thrilling rescues, of Prince, where the men were taken on the hairbreadth escape. But when tramp steamer submarine deck, their life belts removed, and So-and-So, loaded with soya beans from the submarine submerged. Mr. Bone cites Hongkong, or hides from the Argentine, how one submarine deliberately sank an slowly sags forward and slides under water overturned boat to which the crew of a torin answer to a torpedo's relentless summons, pedoed ship were clinging. In spite of the the statement that "Master's reason for men's pleas and their telling him that a man abandoning ship was that it sank under him," had been caught under the boat when it upor that "It went down by the head-hardly a set, the German commander ordered the subsplash-like the lady it always was," is taken marine's helm down hard, "with the result by the nearest consul and forwarded for burial in some obscure London bureau. This | boat were thrown into the water and the boat veritable treasury of romance contained in the official records has just been uncovered and a few samples of its ingots displayed to the English public by James Bone, writing in the Manchester Guardian. Here in America we shall soon be having similar archives of anonymous heroism and bravery to store

On the whole, there is a matter-of-fact, grotesquely contrasts with their inherent sensationalism. Invariably, almost, the report is that "All the ship's company behaved with great coolness," that the men stuck to tween German officers and English crews are their posts till the last minute. "Seafman recorded, from which it appears that the Langfear attempted to get aft to his gun former looked pale and underfed and exafter the ship was struck, but only got to pressed themselves as weary of the war. the stern as the ship sank." Or again:

to enable the crew who were aft to see the way, Found one of the crew who said his commander seems to have had handy in his leg was broken, placed him on hatch on pocket, boat deck, telling him that he must look out Not for himself as I could do no more, as by that time I was up to my neck in water. * * * Just managed to seize the davit guy, and was carried down with the ship, and while under water, I heard the boilers explode."

Here is a whole chapter of Conrad packed, compressed, jammed into a few stark sen-"Master and mate went down with the ship" is one of the most frequent entries. "The stewardess behaved exceptionally well, and with great presence of mind gave multion speaks out now only the courage, but also the two-handed capability of the sex. stirring deeds that these few barren words Did the motherly soul have tucked away in cover.

that the whole of the men on the upturned went under." None the less they were all rescued, even Quirk, who had been caught under the boat:

"The man under the boat could not release himself, and to enable him to have air we took the plug out and we remained in this position till we were picked up. Naturally, not all German commanders were conscienceless brutes like the one figuring businesslike tone in these tales which in the foregoing story. It is pleasant to note that now and then a spilled crew was picked up and put back into its boats by the attacking submarine. Various conversations be-Photographs often were taken, probably for "I then tried to go aft, but was stopped Die Illustrierte Woche. A great point was by the water, so returned and got a light made of identifying the ship torpedoed in Lloyd's Register which every submarine

Not all the tales are of unresisting defeat, however. A goodly number record also brave resistance, in face of every kind of odds. Submarines rammed or blown up by gunfire, breathless races in the night to escape from pursuing U-boats, then the "terrible explosion of a torpedo," as one captain puts it, with "the port side blown out and the side of the bridge crumpled" and "the boilers exploded," these are some of the incidents of a waffare that is being waged without newspaper celebration on either side flers and other articles to the crew when of the Atlantic. When we read the week's they were in the boat." In this woman's ac- report of "twelve ships over and four under 1,600 tons sunk," we do not visualize the

"Strangers in the Village" Changes Already Wrought by War in Rural England C. Fox Smith in London Chronicle.

Time was when in our village-and in | Sometimes we get visits from steam nearly all other villages, too, for the matter of that-a stranger was an object of interest and curiosity. The sight of one walking up or down the street was enough to bring a dozen heads to the windows, and as many housewives to their cottage doors or garden gates on some ostensibly domestic errand which might serve as an excuse for a good stare. Not that the attitude of the village was in any way like the traditional "'Ere's a stranger-'eave 'arf a brick/at 'im!"-it was simply that the arrival of a stranger was so unusual that it could not be passed over unnoticed. Even summer visitors were few and far between, for the village-although it lies amid scenery as fair as any in all sweet England-has no "attractions" of the guide book variety. Only two or three houses, more-over, had suitable accommodation, and they generally got the same families year after

That is one of the things which the war has changed. We have got accustomed to strangers nowadays. We have simply had to, whether we liked it or not. Some people perhaps didn't like it over much. But there the thing is and there is no getting away from it. And I don't think there is any doubt about it being very good for us. For although, as I have said, the village was not openly hostile to strangers, it certainly was inclined to suspect them. Perhaps it is an instinct filtered down from long ago ancestors who had every reason to look askance at strangers in days when the term "stranger" was very often synonymous with invader or conqueror. In many country places a newcomer is still a foreigner, and the next county "furrin parts."

Villages are conservative places on the whole. They like things to go on just the same as they have always done. They don't particularly want "improvements." They don't care about innovations, even if they are entirely beneficial. It is the same in all walks of society, alike among the "old residents' who occupy the larger houses, and the an-cient inhabitants of thatched cottages in the village street.

And they don't-or they didn't-want strangers! That is as regards the older generations. The young people have been in-clined to get out of the groove for some time. It is a day when people of all ages who stick in grooves are apt to be violently jolted out

We see plenty of strangers nowadays. We see soldiers-dusty and hot, or wet and cold soldiers-marching through the village on the long, long road of war. We see labor corps, forestry corps, all kinds of corps, some of them speaking in the manner of strange lands which were formerly to most of us mere names on the map, if so much, and which we had never seriously thought of as being peopled by men and women not unlike ourselves. Some strangers even descendunder stress of engine trouble or some such reason-from the skies themselves into our ancient, unchanging fields. What would such a visitation have meant 150 years ago? Sometimes they come and build bridges over our winding river reaches, causing a mighty drive to date netted $80,000. The "sweet flutter and quacking among the feathered villages of the reedy eyots.

plows and hay-balers, whose crews are bil-leted in the village for the length of their stay, and, one and all, they generally get a hearty welcome. Indeed, it is hard to think how in these days it could be otherwise. Very, very few of us now have no near and dear one a stranger in a strange land. "I've got a boy of my own out yonder," is the sentiment one hears so often, "and I wouldn't like to treat someone else's boy worse than I'd like my own treated."

There are the girls, too, girls in abbre-viated skirts and big boots in which I am sure they would never have dared to run the gauntlet of the village two or three years ago. It has taken the village longer, I think, to get used to them than to the men, for women are admittedly more conservative in such matters. But that, too, is coming gradually.

Is the change one for the better? Beyond a shadow of a doubt it is. The coming of strangers means the bringing of new ideas, new interests, new blood to the countryside, all which things will be needed when the time comes for the repeopling of rural England. It is the same thing in little which is happening to us as a nation. All that is good in local, as in the wider, patriotism, will live; but narrowness, suspicion, and exclusiveness are to be things of the past when the new order of things comes in.

They are only the vanguard of a mighty army, these strangers we have seen-during the last few years. More will come, and come to stay; men from the cities who have learned to love air and space and wide horizons, girls who have gone to school with nature, men "broke in our wars," who will seek and find health for shattered nerves and bodies at the gracious heart of England.

People and Events

Back among the gardeners of Long Island plowmen with teams cheerily plow away for $7 a day.

Chicago's prize patriotic Polly, kidnapped by slacker kids, has been restored to its favorite perch, where it parrots to all comers, "Kill the Kaiser!" Several favorite brands of cigarets are said to have been commandeered by the government for fighting men. As soon as present stocks out the factories are exhausted a rush to recruiting offices may be looked for. No Hun bombs have yet exploded in New York, but automobiles do an equally cruel job of slaughtering the innocents. Twenty-seven children killed by the wheels constitute the March tragedy of the pavements. It's no trouble looking through plate glass windows, but one may not so readily penetrate the elevated price list. The latest revision of the list noted by the New York Journal of Commerce shows that a plate which cost $8 in 1915, now pulls down $14.

No extra charge for the look-in. John McCormack is believed to have touched the highest professional note in the income tax keyboard. His contribution equalled the yearly salary of the president of the United States. Besides, his Red Cross singer of Armagh" is as generous with his gifts as kindly nature is to him.

Twice Told Tales

The Cushion,

In her apartment on the Rue de Varenne, Edith Wharton, who is doing war work in Paris, had just taken leave of a lady. This lady's call had been brief, but she had managed to say several wounding things to another lady who was present.

she talk to me like that?" "My dear child," said Mrs. Whar-on, with a smile, "don't you know on, with a smile, that Amy is one of those women who regard friendship as a cushion wherein to stick their pins?"-Baltimore American. Lincoln as Drill Sergeant.

Lincoln's first experience in drilling was with his company in the Black Hawk war. "I could not for the life of me," said he, "remember the proper word of command for getting my company endwise, so that it could get through the gate, so I shouted: This company is dismissed for two minutes, when it will fall in again on the other side of the gate."-Philadelphia Ledger.

Rookie—There's a young lady wants to entertain a soldier from this camp every Tuesday night, sir. She says she will serve cake and hot chocolate, and will sing and all that.

Shall I go?

The Boe's A

Omaha, April 11 .- To the Editor of The Bee: In a former letter to this department I expressed the belief, based on a certain amount of experience, that interested labor politicians were not only attempting to fool the public in making claims of 14,000 members of organized labor, but were trying to mislead the union men of Omaha into the belief that they are stronger numerically than is really true. There is no question but the late so-called labor primary returns were padded and the vote cast for the "labor" ticket at the city primary proves it, although the average vote cast for labor candidates was double that predicted. The vote re-ported cast at the labor primary and at the city primary follows:

Labor Primary. Primary 1.919 Bridwell .........3,558

1,957 1,661 Rooney .......3,519 Wulf ...........3,503 3,047 Of course, Reynolds and Wulf benefited considerable by being placed on "slates" which had no connection with the labor movement.
Using organized labor as a buffer for labor politicians will some day go out of fashion. I. J. C. out of fashion.

Jerry Is Grateful.

Omaha, April 10 .- To the Editor of The Bee: To meet individually the patriotic men who voted for me, likewise the heroines who championed my nomination is a physical impossibility. Therefore I desire to extend to them through the columns of your great paper my sincere and hearty thanks. Notwithstanding that I did not have the support of any clique, corporation or organization the vote cast for me is proof of the independence of the average man, since I came within a mere trifle of receiving the nomination. JERRY HOWARD.

Sedition and the Ten Senators. Ogalalla, Neb., April 10.—To the Editor of The Bee: There is just one thing wrong with those resolutions of the 10 senators at Lincoln, on the se-

Too much sympathy for the pro-Germans in this country, and not enough sympathy for our boys who are over there in the trenches. If we did not know that it is an impossibility I could almost swear this is the same bunch that went to Washington to interview President Lincoln during the civil war. They told him he was usurping the rights of the people and trampling the constitution under foot After they were done he told them he was going to win the war and save stitution to do it. They slunk back home and that was the last ever heard of them. Another coincidence is, that this bunch could not be elected road overseer in their home precincts. Ne braska is too loyal and patriotic to submit to that kind of leadership.

These are war-times, and drastic laws are necessary if we are going to stamp out disloyalty, but an American citizen of German birth, if loyal to this country, has nothing to fear from the sedition bal. It is only aimed at traitors and enemy aliens.

This is a government by the people; it is not a government by those 10 German sympathisers. EDWIN M. SEARLE.

For the Dreamers.

Omaha, April 10 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Would you care to publish these lines written for dreamers? TO THE CROCUS. Come, tender flower, wake up and lift thy head, Softly the snows have fallen about thy trundle bed. Life hath to thee unfolded nature's sweet lullaby; Rise from earth's idle dreaming;

Love lives, but not in seeming. See, Nature's face is beaming. Come, thou and live on high. ELIZABETH ALLEN MALLORY.

Get Into the Garden. Omaha, April 10 .- To the Editor o The Bee: Here are a few lines dedicated to the man with the hoe: With us 'tis "hoe in garden," In Prussia, "Hohenzollern;" And we're not owin' pardon When we say with all our might, "Corn and wheat will win this fight. Now our spring drive is on And we're hoein' night and morn, While we're shoutin' o'er and o'er, "Tis our food will win the war." Then 'rah for the hoe! And down with the foe! POETICUS.

CHEERY CHAFF.

You should have all your clerks take our

"But—" we show them how to seize the psy-chological moment for closing a saie."
"The main trouble now is that we can't get clerks."-Louisville Courier-Journal.

Congressman-I've just been reading over my speech in the Congressional Record.
Friend—How did it seem?
"First rate. I only wish I could talk like

"His last words were of you."

The prodigal son-in-law tried to feel as solemn as he looked.

"Might I inquire what they were?" "You might. He said if he could get one good biff at you he would die happy."—Bos-

Bill-Phil wasn't at the office today, I near.
Gill-No; I understand he is indisposed.

Bill—I bet he hated to give up.
Gill—He did—to the doctor—Yonkers Sabbath School Teacher-Who was it that ommanded the sun to stand still? Skinny Simpson-McAdoe or Herb Heover, ma'am, and I ain't right sure which.—Kan-sas City Star.

TRUE PREPAREDNESS. Minna Irving in Leslie's.

Not only in a mighty fleet Of giant battleships, Not only in a battery That roars and rends and rips, Nor in a fortress that defies A siege's storm and stress, Nor in a well-stored armory Is true preparedness

For these are not enough without A brave intelligence
To wake their dread machinery
To national defense.
It is the eye behind the gun, The hand upon the wheel, Behold! that makes impregnable

Then sons of freedom, by the love Within your hearts enshrined For flag and home and liberty, The glorious three combined. Keep safe the splendid heritage Bequeathed by Bunker Hill

BUY A LIBERTY BOND

You Help Win the Nation's Battles

DO YOUR DUTY DON'T WAIT! BUY A LIBERTY BOND TODAY.

Resources, $14,000,000.00

"Over There and Here"

Fort McPherson now holds 1,375 German prisoners of war. "This is the people's war," says Theodore Roosevelt. "It is America's war. It is a war for our children and our children's children's welfare. We who are not given the high privilege of going to the front must do the next best thing. Back the fighters with Liberty bonds." Ben, Robert, William, Llewellyn and Charles Marshall of Frankfort, Ky. sons of Ben Marshall, internal revenue collector, all enlisted since the wat broke out. They range in height from six feet to six feet three inches. Mothers of sons in France, at they view the vacant chairs at the firesides, no doubt feel envious of the amazing good luck of the kaisering So far none of her six husky sons regeived a scratch. Only two-course meals are permitted in Paris restaurants under the food restriction put into effect last month. Desserts made of cream milk, eggs, flour or sugar are forbide den, and no sugar is served at any public place. A correspondent notes that poor people "obey the rules with a good heart and that only the rick

.

"OWN YOUR HOME"

Move Into It This Month

MOVING, PACKING, STORAGE Omaha Van &

Storage Co.

Phone Douglas 4163. 806 South 16th St.

DRIVE AWAY HEADACHE

Rub Musterole on Forehead and Temples A headache remedy without the dan-gers of "headache medicine." Relieves neadache and that miserable feeling from colds or congestion. And it acts at once! Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a Used only externally, and in no way can it affect stomach and heart, as some internal medicines do. Excellent for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, neumatism, lumbago, all pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it ofter mustard plaster and does not blister.

prevents pneumonia).

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50

Countless Women

that when suffering from nervousness, sick headache, dizzy spells and ailments peculiar to their sexnothing affords such prompt and welcome relief, ac will follow a few doses of

BEECHAM'S

A proven women's remedy, which assists in regulating the organs, and re-establishing healthy conditions. Beecham's Pills contain no habit-forming drug—leave no disagreeable after-effects. They are—

Nature's aid to better Health

Directions of Special Value to Women are with every ber. Sold everywhere. In boxes, 10c., 25c.

We will sell you Liberty Bonds on easy weekly or monthly payments. We make no charge for our service.

The Conservative Sayings & Loan Asa'n

1614 Harney Street.

Charles E. Wager, assistant general freight agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad, born 1865. Vice Admiral Sir Rosslyn Erskine Vemyss, first sea lord of the British dmiralty, born 54 years ago. Brigddier General Jesse M. I. Car-

One Year Ago Today in the War.

Bolivia severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

United States took first step toward formation of a great army by calling for 500,000 volunteers.

The Day We Celebrate.

ter, United States army, born in Mis-sourt, 55 years ago.

Rt. Rev. Arthur C. A. Hall, Epis-copal bishop of Vermont, born in longiand, 71 years ago. This Day in History.

1713-Abbe Raynal, the famous rench historian of America, born. 1777—Henry Clay, the famous Kentucky statesman, born in Hanover county, Va. Died in Washington, D. C., June 29, 1852.

1821—General Grenville M. Dodge, for whom the national army camp at Des Moines is named, born at Dan-

Just 30 Years Ago Today S. G. V. Griswold and George Tzschuck left for a goose carnival on the upper Platte. British pierced Hindenburg line at A large force of men and teams are employed on the work of excavating for the Armour beef house and for the addition to the Exchange build movement is on foot in which J. J. Philbin, Jack Morrison and Frank Hanlon are the prime factors to organize a club for the purpose of ng Cut-Off lake and converting it into a pleasure resort. Wilson & Rankin's minstrels are the attraction at the Boyd opera house this week.

The Burlington ticket office will in the near future be moved from its present quarters to the basement story of the First National bank buildvers, Mass. Died at Council Bluffs, ia. January 3, 1916.

1361—Edmund Ruffin, a 75-yearold Virginian, fired the first gun against Fort Sumter.

Major-General Crook returned from a trip to Salt Lake City.

Aimed at Omaha

Minneapolis Tribune: Omaha has passed an ordinance requiring all public speeches to be made in English. Omaha must be seeking to discourage Harvard Courier: An Omaha woman pays $100 per pair for her silk sox. In these kind of times anyone who squanders money like that ought to be compelled to go barefooted. She is one of the kind of women who "just can't wear anything but silk stockings. York News-Times: A candidate for city commissioner in Omaha announces that he will give $100 per month to patriotic enterprises if he is elected. He should give what he thinks he can to these enterprises anyhow and not place such an inducement in his political announcement. It partakes of the nature of a bribe and therefore may be illegal. Seward Tribune: The editors of the state and their ladies will hold annual social meeting in Omaha June 20, 21 and 22. The Fontenelle hotel was selected as headquarters by the executive committee. Omaha certainly loves the publicity boys and girls of the state and always shows them the time of their sweet young lives at these meetings. Not the least number on the program is the Ak-Sar-Ben stunts pulled off by "Dad" Weaver and his bunch of willing workers. The newspapers are all strong for Omaha, and there's a rea-

Right to the Point Washington Post: Women and children worshipers murdered on Easter carried to heaven their own version of a Hun victory. Minneapolis Journal: Jules Verne invented the first long range gun and came very near knocking a piece off of the moon at the first shot. Brooklyn Eagle: The mob lynching of a German sympathizer in Collinsville, Ill., is most to be regretted by the few Americans still in Germany. Further comment is superfluous. Louisville Courier-Journal: Hur-rah! Hurrah! Again hurrah for Wisconsin, an American state. And now forward with the impeachment of La Follette and the indictment of La Follette and Berger. Baltimore American:

in his possession. The leniency which is shown alien enemies in our border is fast becoming a menace. Minneapolis Tribune: As a war measure, the federal authorities at Washington would be justified in forcibly annexing Milwaukee and compelling that city to belong to the union, at least during the period of alien in Brooklyn who had been in-terned but released on bail was found with ingredients for making bombs

the war. Baltimore American: Airplane goggles made by a German firm in this country have been found to be defective. The weighty problem imme-diately presents itself of what would become of an American firm in Germany making misleading equipment for German aviators?

"And Amy," the other lady after-ward complained, "calls me her friend! If I'm her friend, why does Rookie Cut Out.

Sergeant-No. What's her address?