

CHILD PLUNGES TO HER DEATH IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Four-Year-Old Girl Falls Four Stories at Millard Hotel; Dies in Mother's Arms.

Agnes Lewin, 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lulu Lewin of Burwell, Neb., fell four stories in an elevator shaft in the Millard hotel at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and died in the arms of her mother shortly afterwards.

The girl had been riding in the elevator during the morning and started for her mother's room on the third floor several minutes before the accident. John Spentz, elevator boy, was on the fourth floor when he heard the child scream. He ran to the third floor and peered down the elevator shaft, when he saw the girl lying on the basement floor. He carried her into an adjoining store, where she died.

Spentz said he did not remember whether or not the elevator door on the third floor was open. When closed, he said, the door cannot be opened from the hallway of the hotel without a key.

The mother is heartbroken and wept bitterly as she knelt beside the dead body of her golden-haired child. Both came here Friday night from Mount Thurman, Ia., where Mrs. Lewin had been working. The child's father lives in Comstock, Neb.

According to an investigation, conducted by the county attorney immediately following the death of the child, the elevator door had been left open.

Carl Vrooman Gives Address at Banquet

AMERICA MUST RUSH TROOPS TO FIGHTING ZONE

Victory for Humanity Depends Upon United States, Says Nebraska Boy Back From Trenches.

Few people in this country realize the situation confronting the allied troops on the western front or the dire necessity of getting American troops in great numbers to their aid immediately, according to M. E. Lysle, who has just returned from 27 months in the trenches. Young Lysle is 23 years old and went to France with the first Canadian overseas contingent. His parents live in Columbus, Neb., from which place Lysle went to Canada to take up a homestead shortly before the outbreak of the war.

"Words are inadequate to express the condition of things over there," declared Lysle. "The reports of suffering and atrocious acts on the part of Germans are not at all exaggerated and in most cases the true facts are suppressed because they are unprintable. For one I am in favor of shooting every German in the world. There is no such animal as a good German; they just aren't, that's all."

"As to who will win the war or when it will end there is but one answer to the first; we've got to win, that's all. To the second question all I can say is that I don't know. Nobody does."

Milton Lysle was twice wounded and before coming home spent six months in an English hospital. He is discharged from the service as physically unfit for further duty.

That the United States is the final hope of the allies and that the war could not be won without them was emphatically asserted by the youthful veteran. He says that there must be large and completely trained and equipped armies at the front before the year is out. "You've got to do it or submit to kaiserism and later buy bonds to pay German indemnity bonds."

Folk dances representing the pleasures of the country folk of some of the European countries will be given in costume by Misses Helen Sinclair, Charlotte Huntley and Emily Mullinger.

Miss Winifred Travis, who is of Irish, Scotch, Swedish and French blood will preside. Twenty girls in costume will give a flag drill. As a grand finale, sons and daughters of 25 countries will salute the American flag and a girl costumed as the Spirit of Democracy.
