

UNION PACIFIC LIBERTY SPECIAL DRAWING CROWDS

Great Crowds at All Places Where Train Stops and Loan Subscriptions Pushed Over the Top.

Sidney, Neb., April 19.—(Special.)—The progress of the Union Pacific Liberty loan special, which arrived here at noon today from Omaha, has been a triumphal procession. Everywhere the train has been greeted with enthusiastic reception.

The train, in charge of W. M. Jeffers, vice president and general manager, will arrive in Cheyenne at 6 o'clock tonight, where W. F. Gurley, Omaha, is scheduled to make the principal address. A band of 23 pieces, made up of employees in the Union Pacific shops at Omaha accompanies the special and is on hand to render music at each stop. The conspicuous feature of the attendance at most places has been the presence of boys and girls from the grade and from the high schools. The students have been marched to the train in charge of their teachers and at several points the processions have been led by drum corps.

Loan Put Over the Top.

At many of the points at which the special stopped the Liberty loan committees have already gone over the top and under the strong influence of the speakers on the special assurance was given at each of these points that the work of securing subscriptions to Liberty loan bonds had not stopped, but that it would go on without a limit.

Among the communities on the honor roll are North Platte, Ogallala, Brule, Paxton and Chappell. "We have had a most wonderful experience," said Mr. Jeffers, "and the enthusiasm with which the special has been met proves that our plans for the running of the train have been well worth while."

In addition to Mr. Gurley, who is to talk at Cheyenne tonight, the other speakers on the train are as follows:

Rev. E. H. Jenks, Omaha; T. H. Hamer, Kearney; N. H. Loomis, C. J. Lane, Omaha.

Fred Zeberger, president of the First National bank of North Platte, is a guest on the special.

A delegation of 10 men representing the state of Wyoming, and headed by the attorney general, met the train at Sidney and will take part in the speaking at cities and towns between Sidney and Cheyenne.

At Sidney a crowd of more than 1,000 greeted the speakers and cheered the telling points.

Kearney, Neb., April 19.—(Special Telegram.)—At a sale held by Radford & Sons of Newark, a cow donated to the Red Cross brought $620, being purchased by Willis Watt, of Minden. The latter will turn the animal over to the Red Cross chapter of that city to be again placed on the auction block.

The women of the Red Cross also furnished a dinner at this sale and made more than $1,100.

The sale, on the largest ever held in this part of the state, 250 head of cattle being disposed of, brought a total of more than $19,000.

Third Liberty Loan "Drive" Is Launched at St. Edward

St. Edward, Neb., April 19.—(Special Telegram.)—The Third Liberty loan campaign was launched in St. Edward Thursday with a parade and an address by M. O. McLaughlin of York. The parade was composed of the Grand Army of the Republic, city band, Red Cross chapter, junior Red Cross, pupils of city and rural schools, home guards and the farmers' union. McLaughlin's stirring arraignment of the Kaiser and his eloquent appeal for the support of the war in the Third Liberty loan was received with applause, cheers and general enthusiasm.

Dry Law Violator Gets Pardon From "Gov." Howard

Lincoln, April 19.—(Special.)—Acting Governor Edgar Howard issued his first pardon this morning. Fred Brown of Grant, indicted for violation of the prohibition law, was granted a pardon. The request came from the local exemption board of that county and the government agreed because Brown will be in the next draft call and it was thought best that he should obey the call rather than be taken to the penitentiary.

Nebraska is Among Largest Contributors to Syrian Fund

Nebraska contributed $5,000 during the week ending April 9 to the Armenian and Syrian relief fund, which, with two exceptions, was the greatest amount contributed in the country. The weekly report of the fund committee in New York also announces that Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wilson of Laurel, Neb., gave $100 to the fund. The financial statement by the treasurer, Cleveland H. Dodge, shows total receipts to date amounting to $9,072,766.83.

Two ministers of the German Lutheran church, and six ministers of the Mennonite church in Beatrice and vicinity were granted permits to preach at their churches by Judge Pemberton of the district court.

Congressman Dan Stephens of Fremont, gave an address at the Christian church last night, which briefly covered his trip through the war zone.

BEE READERS HAVE MANY IDEAS ON PROPER WAY TO SALUTE FLAG

Readers of The Bee from out in Nebraska and other neighboring states are beginning to get in effective letters to discover a fitting and proper method for Milady to salute Old Glory, whenever the occasion arises.

Now if you all understand the position of a soldier at "attention," practice this before your mirror tonight and see how you like it—if it isn't satisfactory, come ahead with your suggestion.

Lieutenant Burton Pain of Fort Omaha defines his salute of "placing the open right hand directly over the heart, at the same time extending left arm and hand on straight line to the front with palm upward and open," as follows: "This salute indicates 'I am willing to shed my blood if necessary in defense of the flag, and I receive and accept the flag as my protection and shield from all enemies whatsoever.'"

One enthusiastic contributor, to more forcefully bring out his idea, strikingly illustrates his "I Love You" salute with a cartoon. It consists of a resounding kiss on the palm of the right hand, and a wave at Old Glory as it appears.

Mrs. W. G. Gray, Kearney, Neb., suggests: "We all have pockets these days. Why not try the chautauqua salute of waving our handkerchiefs three times as 'Old Glory' passes!"

Anna Tarter, 325 Scott street, Council Bluffs, says one wave of a handkerchief, even with the head, and a sweeping bow would be an effective salute. Miss Tarter did not explain how to accomplish this in a crowd.

Mrs. D. W. Marr, Fort Calhoun, Neb., writes: "Face the flag, place the right hand on the left breast, over the heart, with fingers close together and palm against the breast, signifying service, faith and hope."

"Bow her head" is the short and snappy suggestion of Miss Agnes Craven, of the Kellogg apartments.

From J. M. Clifford, 583 Brandeis building: "Raise the open right hand, palm towards the front, perpendicular and about six inches from the face, pause, lower it with a graceful curve, point with the index finger toward the heart—signifying open-hearted loyalty and fidelity."

Mrs. T. P. Shirley, 2109 Vinton street: "I would suggest the regular military salute with a slight bowing of the head—submission and reverence."

Miss Irene McKnight of Omaha believes the most appropriate salutation would be to raise the right hand to the forehead and pray to one's patron saint for peace.

The rules for the contest follows:

Rule 1—The salute contest closes Thursday, April 25. Letters post-marked up to 6 p. m. will be accepted, and a special effort made to get all that are in the postoffice.

Rule 2—Write your suggestion plainly on one side of the paper, and sign your name in full, and give complete address.

Rule 3—Define your suggestion to 75 words, making it "snappy."

Rule 4—No employees of The Bee will be permitted to participate in the contest.

Rule 5—Address your suggestion to "Contest Editor," Omaha Bee, Omaha, Neb.

The Bee will appoint two judges, who will assist Dr. Henry in deciding the winners. First prize will be $20; second prize, $15; third prize, $10, and fourth prize, $5.

For Booklovers

Fiction.

THE MOUNT BLOSSOM GIRLS. By Iola May Mullins. The Page Company, $1.25.

In this fourth and last volume of "The Blossom Shop" stories, May Carter and Gene Grey, who have won countless friends among readers of the series, come before them now as the center of interest. The book has for an underlying thread ideals of the same high type which have characterized the former volumes.

STEPHEN'S LAST CHANCE. By Margaret Ashmun. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

This is a story of Montana ranch life, and one which boys will find absorbingly interesting. Stephen, homeless and looking for his "last chance," is found in Helena by the rancher and his wife. They take him to their home and there he has his great opportunity. The narrative of the way in which he "makes good," of the things that happen to him and to his folks, is thoroughly good reading.

THE FLYING TEUTON. By Alice Brown. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

Accepting the old legend of the "Flying Dutchman," Miss Brown has imagined it re-embodied in a modern setting, and out of the ironies of this situation a most dramatic story results with a sure and true message for the American people.

THE BOARDMAN FAMILY. By Mary S. Watts. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

The heroine is a young woman who was brought up in the most rigid traditions of gentility; a woman who might have stayed at home and been taken care of had she so chosen—but who did not so choose. It is with her emancipation that Mrs. Watts is principally concerned, an emancipation that is wrought by her work and art and native common sense. The narrative occupies a period of about 15 years, beginning with the first year of the present century. In its central figure it adds another outstanding character to the notable list of creations which its author has already given to literature.

THE HIGH ROMANCE. By Michael Williams. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

The author has cast the story of his own life into the form of fiction. It is a story that takes Mr. Williams the length and breadth of the country and brings him into touch with many prominent people. As a wandering newspaper editor and writer, struggling against heavy odds, he has many unusual adventures, all of which are most interestingly recounted in this narrative. It is a volume in which the material comes into frequent conflict with the ideal—but in the end, the high goal toward which the author has pressed persistently, is gloriously attained.

THE HOUSE OF INTRIGUE. By Arthur Stringer. Bobbs Merrill Company, $1.50.

This book contains romance, mystery, adventure, detective, and then some. It is a story of eager interest, of unusual and inexplicable events, events of vital consequences to the characters and to the outcome of the story. The author is a master at constructing an intricate puzzle and then solving it to the reader's delight and amazement.

Miscellaneous.

WHERE DO YOU STAND? By Hermann Hagedorn. The MacMillan Company, 50 Cents.

This is a fervent appeal to the German-Americans to come out squarely and enthusiastically in support of the United States against Germany. Mr. Hagedorn thinks that the question which he makes the title of his book is a fair question for Americans to ask, and he urges that it is not enough for German-Americans merely to be loyal to the United States; they must make their loyalty whole-hearted and enthusiastic. Mr. Hagedorn reviews the course of German-American opinion in this country and marshals the attitude of the typical German-American who felt that this country was in company with Ross Hammond of Fremont. At the close of his address it was announced that Beatrice and Gage county had gone over the top in the Liberty loan drive by approximately $200,000. Gage county's quota was $624,000 and the bond subscriptions amounted to $834,400.

pro-British and unfair to Germany, against the attitude of the typical American who felt that the German-American was unreservedly taking the German and not the American point of view. Further, Mr. Hagedorn condemns intellectual leaders among the German-Americans, because they have "sulked in their tents" and have left the expression of German-American opinion to irresponsible newspapers and propagandists.

CRESCENT AND IRON CROSS. By P. P. Benson. George H. Doran Company, $1.25.

A discussion of the ethics and politics of Turkey in recent years, and especially of the methods and results of German influence, based largely on official documents. The theory of the old compared with that of the new Turks, the Armenian massacres and Germany's complicity therein, and necessary attitude of the allies in the light of these facts, are given special attention. The duty of the allies to expel the Turks from Constantinople and to free the subject peoples from its authority is strongly insisted on. The style is notably alive and vivid.

EVERYDAY FOODS IN WAR TIME. By Mary Swartz Rose. The MacMillan Company, 30 Cents.

This little book has been written in response to a request for a war menu on food. To change one's menu in often trying; to be uncertain whether the substituted foods will preserve one's health and strength adjustment doubly difficult. Mrs. Rose seeks to make it easier to "save wheat, meat, sugar and fats" and still prepare an acceptable bill-of-fare without excessive cost. Among her chapters are "The Milk Pitcher in the Home," "Cereals We Ought to Eat," "The Potato and Its Substitutes," "Sugar, Spice and Everything Nice," and "On Being Economical and Patriotic at the Same Time."

THE DARK PEOPLE. Russia's Crisis. By Ernest Poole. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

The author deals, first of all, with Petrograd, the Kerensky government, various political parties and the council of workmen and soldiers. Then he takes up the army, and after that the railroads, the industrial and labor problems and the question of food and supplies. All of these considerations lead finally, he finds, to the peasants, commonly called "the dark people." The last half of his work is therefore centered on them. Russian religion, the peasants' congress the attitude of the peasants toward the war, the revolution, the city workmen and the land, these topics are considered in the successive chapters of a wholly remarkable and informing volume.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY. One Hundred and First Annual Report, 1917. American Bible Society.

This book contains the report of the board of managers; report of the executive officers; the society's work in foreign lands; an account of the auxiliary bible societies; treasurer's report and eleven maps showing agencies of the American Bible society.

GIANT HOURS WITH POET PREACHERS. By William L. Stiger. The Abingdon Press, $1.00.

Brief, suggestive and inspirational studies of nine modern poets, four American and five English. The author's purpose is to interest his readers in those of whom he writes and in their ethical and spiritual messages.

The 108 pages of this book give a marvelous amount of information which is from official records, many of which have not been in printed form in the army itself. The book has orders, regulations and information as late as March 15, and is in-

Ure only $54.41 to be nominated, while Henry Rohlf, defeated candidate, spent $395.75. J. Dean Ringer, another successful candidate, spent $66.50. Henry F. Wulf, also successful, sent $100.56. Patrick Duify, defeated candidate, spent $77.30, of which $17.75 was for cigars. Expenditures by other candidates were: Fred Hoyer, $168.25; L. J. Quinby, $110; Frank C. Gardiner, $66.50; Hugo Melchior, $85.50; Michael Mullen, $195.85; Dan B. Butler, $302.20; Ed P. Smith, $178.75; John Van Wie, $80; Henry L. Bridwell, $154, and T. E. Brady, 35.50.

valuable for references. It contains chapters on allotments, insurance, conscription, family allowance, pay, insignia, besides telling how each arm of the service is organized.

WAR-TIME BREADS AND CAKES. By Amy L. Handy. Houghton-Mifflin Company, 75 Cents.

Among the contents of this little volume are suggestions for the making of bread without white flour; scones; breads and biscuits made with yeast; straight dough breads; breads and biscuits made with yeast; pancakes and cakes and gingerbread. None of the recipes call for white flour; every recipe is simple as well as economical, and every recipe has been tested and found satisfactory in the author's own kitchen.

THE A. E. F. By Heywood Brown. D. Appleton & Co., $1.00.

The author, who went over with the boys and was in Paris with them and stayed with them in their training camp, near the Somme front, writes an account of the things he saw, from the triumphant march of the American troops through Paris to the struggles of a Yankee doughboy in his efforts to talk with a pretty little "manicelle," is spiced with humor.

THE MARTIAL ADVENTURES OF HENRY AND ME. By William Allen White. The MacMillan Company, $1.50.

To use the words of the author, this volume is a humorous account of the experiences of "two middle-aged old coots who go out to a ruthless war without their wives." They have commissions in their pockets from the American Red Cross, and they are going to the front in the interests of that organization. Their story is distinguished by an abundance of good spirits. It is typically American, exemplifying the buoyant, whole-hearted fashion with which thousands of Americans have entered upon a great task, confident that there is much that is unpleasant before them, but resolved to make the best of things. With its humor and its general tone of wholesomeness it is a valuable antidote to the numerous publications which have overemphasized the grimness and horror of the war.

Magazine Notes.

The April number of Everybody's Magazine contains the third installment of the tragic story of Belgium, told by Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, who remained in the stricken country from December, 1913, to our entry into the war, and saw the whole black history of its suffering from the beginning. "What is the Matter with Sweden?" is an article by Edwin Bjorkman, who writes from an intimate, first hand knowledge of the Swedish political and governmental organization.

Beyond the First Lines" is an article by Earle Harrison, which tells of some of the important work of the medical department of the United States army does. Stories of this issue are "Front-Page Frankie," by Samuel Hopkins Adams; "The Campaign of Aristide Carouche," by Thomas Morrow, and "Tam o' the Scots," by Edgar Wallace.

"The Meal Ticket," an interesting story by Mary Synon, opens up the Mothers' Magazine for April. "The Cost of Your Boy in Khaki" is a very timely article by John M. Oskison. In "Banishing Childish Fears" Laura Spencer Porter tells the mother how to study the more subtle fears of a child and how to work toward eliminating them. "The Man and His New Home," by Carolina French Benton, and "A New Era in the Vegetable Garden," are among other interesting articles of this issue.

Stolen Pocketbooks, Minus Money, Are Found in Mails

Two pocketbooks, believed to have been stolen, have been received at the postoffice, but neither contains any money. Assistant Postmaster Woodard says pocketbooks, minus money, are often found in mail boxes. Pocketbooks desire to return personal papers to their victims and, after removing the money, slip the purses into the mail boxes, knowing that postal officials will do all they can to locate the owners.

GEN. HARRIES IS NOW 'OVER THERE,' LEFT YEAR AGO

Former President of Omaha Electric Light Company Commands U. S. Forces Somewhere in France.

Brigadier General George H. Harries, former president of the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, is now "somewhere in France," in charge of a fighting unit, according to definite word which has been received in Omaha.

Whether General Harries went over with the same body of men which he has been training at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., for three months is not known. General Harries was commandant of the Carolina post for three months, this camp having been made up entirely of negroes.

General Harries left Omaha one year ago. He was ordered to Camp Cody, Deming, N. M. Hundreds of Nebraska boys, formerly of the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth regiments, were at Camp Cody.

In a letter to Omaha friends recently General Harries intimated that he might be ordered across soon. He told friends in the letter that he was "sending home some personal stuff which he would not be able to use 'over there.'"

Camp Jackson was composed of an infantry brigade, which may have crossed the Atlantic with General Harries. General Harries is an old regular army man.

As president of the electric company he took an active part in the business and social life of Omaha.

The 1918 button is in the shape of two small shields of equal size, one of red, yellow and green with the words, "Ak-Sar-Ben, Omaha, 1918," and the other with the colors of the flag. Surmounting the two shields is a pair of eagles facing one another.
