BOARD DIFFERS ON NEW SITE FOR COMMERCE HIGH

Discuss Abandonment of Tract cn Chicago: Question Use of School Bonds Voted Recently.

Members of the Board of Education have informally discussed the proposition of abandoning the new High School of Commerce site on Chicago street, Twenty-second to Twentythird streets, and buying another site for a proposed commercial-technical nigh school.

The members, however, are not agreed as to the advisability of this plan, some contending that the recent onds were voted for on the specific understanding that a new High School of Commerce would be built.

There are other reasons offered why the proposed plan would be inadvis-The Chicago street site is a tract 132x280 feet, fronting on Chicago street and extending from Twentysecond to Twenty-third streets. The cost was $25,000 and the purchase was "The outrageous statement has been made that W. G. Ure drew a salary as secretary of the Omaha Red Cross. Mr. Ure gave more than six months of expert, unselfish service to this Red Cross chapter for which he received not one penny. I simply call-ed him up and asked him if the wanted to do something for his country; he said he did, and came into this office and gave his services absolutely free. The membership during that time went from nothing to 100,000. "Mr. Ure kept the books, which have all been audited, and everything is absolutely straight. He didn't even have an expense account here. It was partly at his suggestion that interest was received from the daily balance of the Red Cross in the banks. Every penny of which interest went to the Red Cross.
