

KIND WORDS ONLY, MAULEY POLICY AT GIRL SCHOOL

New Superintendent at Geneva Institution Tells State Board Corporal Punishment Has Been Suspended.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Lincoln, April 29.—(Special)—As a result of the hearing before the State Board of Control over alleged irregularities at the girls' industrial home at Geneva, in which several witnesses told of inflicting punishment which they believed too severe, Commissioner Mayfield of the board has sent letters to each institution under control of the board asking that the superintendent report as to the kind of punishment administered to those who violate rules.

So far all superintendents have replied that no severe punishment is administered. They are given a heart-to-heart talk and told to go sin no more. Superintendent Paul S. McAulay, the new superintendent of the girls' industrial school, has written a letter to the board in which he says that he has withheld all corporal punishment, admits that his orders not to punish severely cases of disobedience were met with a lack of hearty co-operation on the part of employees, but he believes that after awhile they will come to his way of thinking.

McAulay writes that all the punishment so far administered is to require the offender to apologize for the offense committed. He calls attention to an incident where he ordered two girls to go to a room by themselves and practice up on an apology which he deemed would cover the case. He found that Mrs. Barrett, the teacher to whom the apology was due, was just as loath to receive it as the girls was to give it, but after an hour and a half both returned with their arms about each other. The letter was written April 4, before the present hearing began. The teacher, Mrs. Barrett, has since given her testimony before the board and also has left the institution under a mutual agreement.
