Mr. Hendee, recalled for other performances of merit, enacts the part of the devoted but slowthinking husband in a manner impeccable, while Miss Welch is delightful in her mixture of girlish naivete and womanly sophistication. Mr. Fegel and Miss Perry, on whose ment depends, keep themselves within such bounds of seriousness as greatly adds to the value of the farce. Nora's final exit with her baby and the assurance that she is 100 per cent efficient is one of the best little bits of the evening. Then Miss Gorman, in a slightly exaggerated nurse role, heightens the fun of the closing act, while Mr. Downing and Miss Lord afford the balance of well mated, rappy couple with a child, who can augh at the fix of their good friends. The three acts bubble with merriment all the way, and what begins with chuckling laughter ends with a scream. "The Very Idea" is a splendid proposition for anybody who is looking for real amusement.

Cecil Lean, he of the contagious smile and the flashing teeth, headlines the current bill at the Orpheum. It has been several years since Lean last appeared in Omaha in musical comedy, but that long absence makes him doubly welcome on his return both by his old friends and the new ones he will make. For Lean is a finished artist as well as a finished performer an! his vaudeville offering, which by the way is of his own composition, is wholesomely pleasant and entertaining. The act consists entirely of songs of the moment. The lines are brigh. and catchy, the melodies tuneful and Lean and his co-worker, Cleo Mayfield, possess a rare skill in furnishing the "punch in getting them over." MAHA Bath Inst.
