

PAUL PERIGORD, HERO OF MARNE, STOPS IN OMAHA

French Lieutenant Sees Victory for Allies as Germany's Big Offensive Fails on Western Front.

"There is no question but that the allies will win the war," declared Lieutenant Paul Perigord, of the French military mission in Washington, at the Hotel Fontenelle Monday morning. "As to when the war will end, well, it will end when we win it," he added, with a shrug of his shoulders. "We soldiers have always been optimistic. In fact, I think we are more optimistic than the people who are not fighting. We have seen the Germans at the zenith of their power, when their men were at their best, when their equipment was at its best, and we were unprepared. But we defeated them at the Marne, Verdun, Vimy Ridge, Champagne and in all the other great battles. And we will ultimately put them where they belong, and some people say that is a rather warm place."

Wears French War Cross.
Lieutenant Perigord was fighting in the first line trenches during the first three years of the war almost continuously with the exception of the time spent in the hospital. He wears the French cross of war with five stars attached to the ribbon, indicating five additional citations for bravery. He also wears a medal indicating he was wounded in service. "The cross of war," Perigord said, "indicates what I did to the Germans, and the other what the Germans did to me."

"Just because a man is buying a large tract of land is no indication that that man is getting rich," he said, "and I believe that is just what is happening to the Germans. They are gaining land, but the price

Indian Lad Weeps When He Is Rejected for Army

William Smith, Indian, from Genoa Indian school, was heart-broken Saturday night when doctors at the army recruiting building rejected him for the second time because of defective eyesight.

Smith came to Omaha with 10 of his Indian schoolmates to enlist two weeks ago. He was rejected because of a growth on his right eye. His companions went on to war and he returned to Genoa, where he consulted an oculist who fitted him out with a pair of glasses and Smith hopefully hurried again to Omaha.

He wept when he was rejected. They are paying for it is too great. They cannot win anyway, and if there was a possibility of it the price they paid in the last great offensive would be almost prohibitive of success.

Last Drive No Success.
"This last drive cannot even be termed a success, much less a victory. The Germans were basing this last drive on the hope that America could not put sufficient troops in the field to count within the required time. But they were wrong. The Americans are coming, and coming fast, and when they get there it is impossible to stop them."

During one engagement a French general said to the American commander, "Hold you men back, hold them back." "Hell, you can't hold them back," "Hold you men back, hold them back," "Hell, you can't hold them back," they're from Nebraska," responded the American officer. "The Americans are wonderful, wonderful and they have great times with the Frenchmen. They were stationed alongside each other in the trenches during the periods of training and, of course, could not talk except with gestures, but they got along pretty well with signs."

Lieutenant Perigord has been stationed at Camp Devens, near Boston, instructing the American soldiers in the use of machine guns and rifles, and has been detailed to speak at the various war conferences during the month of May. He was in Omaha for but a short time Monday and left for Denver, where he will speak before a war conference of the Rocky mountain and Pacific states.

EWING SOLDIER SCAIN IN BATTLE ON FRENCH FRONT

One of Four Sons of Nebraska Couple in Service. Makes Supreme Sacrifice; Town Mourns.

"Charles F. Wiseman killed in action."

This telegram was received Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. George Wiseman, Ewing, Neb., from the War department, informing them of the death of their son while fighting the Hun "somewhere in France." No further details were given.

His death also was reported in the casualty list given to the Associated Press.

Charles was one of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman in the service. One brother, Earl, is in the same company in France in which Charles was serving at the time of his death. Two other brothers, Otto and Roy, are in the army and navy, respectively.

Charles and Earl, together with four other Ewing boys, were the first to answer the call of their country from that town. All enlisted at the same time in April, 1917. Charles and Earl were sent to Fort Logan, Colo., and from there to Fort Bliss, where they became part of Company K, 10th infantry, and were sent across on June 12, in General Pershing's Rainbow division. Charles was 27 years old. His parents are retired farmers.

Business houses in Ewing Monday afternoon closed for one hour in honor of the dead soldier. All flags in the town were lowered to half-mast. Memorial services for Wiseman will be held next Sunday at the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. J. E. Jones, pastor, will deliver an address.
