> The demand for cash corn continued quits active, this demand, however, being limited to the better grades. On the whole, prices were generally lower, ranging from 1c te 2c off, while a very few cars brought yesterday's figures, particularly the choice offerings. The light expert demand of latter has been partially accounted for in a cable from Bromkall of the Liverpool Corn Trade News, in which he says receipts are gradually increasing and cereals are now gradually increasing and cereals are nov head, making 27,000 for the week, as compared with 34,375 head last week and 29,325 head yarded he corresponding week a year ago. Quality of the receipts were just ordinary, including but a few loads of medium to good steers and nothing real choice on sale. Trading was generally on a steady to strong basis and on choice steers 10c to 15c higher for the week and on the medium grades, 25c to 50c higher. Good to choice steers are quotable from $17.25 and $17.75, and fair to good steers from $16.25 to $17.00 and from that on down to the common and warmed up grades. Butcher moving quite freely.

Oats were also lower, sales showing a decline of $\(\)c to 1c, the bulk selling down a full cent. The inquiry for all grades was easily sufficient to dispose of the light offerings. No. 1 white oats sold at 77% and standard grade at 76% 76% c; No. 2 white oats sold at 77% and the No. 4 and standard grade at 76 1/276 1/20; No. 1 white cats sold at 76 1/25, and the No. 1 white at 76c. It was a day of quick changes in the corn market, dips and bulges following each other in rapid order. At first the bearish effects of peace discussion in the British House of Commons appeared to have been augmented overnight rather than curtailed. augmented overnight rather than curtailed. Besides, opinion temporarily predominated that present stocks of corn and the current movement would be more than sufficient for domestic needs. Nevertheless, shorts easily took fright and ran for cover. In oats, the near months were lower, but July was atubborn throughout the session.
