Unique Sketches for the Red Cross

Society Artist Draws Society's Favorite Little One and Donates Proceeds to War Relief

By MARGERY REX.

PATRIOTIC American women are daily demonstrating new ways to help the work of the Red Cross and other relief societies. Every day there is chronicled a different medium that will help to fill the coffers for humanitarian work in the great world war.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas, who has been at Palm Beach for the last two months, is one of the prominent women in society who has evolved a new way of doing "her bit." An artist of note, Mrs. Thomas has been drawing the "kiddies" of society as they play on the beach at the southern resort and the proud parents have been delighted to buy the pictures, and Mrs. Thomas has turned her talent into money which has been donated to the Red Cross, for which she has been an ardent worker.

Among her baby models have been the children of Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, George and Alfred; Henry Barbery, the wee son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbery, and the children of Mrs. Quincy Adams Shaw, 3d, and Mrs. Christopher D. Smithers.

Before her marriage Mrs. Thomas was Miss Elizabeth R. Finley, an artist of marked ability, who has exhibited at the Paris salon and has had paintings accepted for the Royal Academy of England. For her own amusement Mrs. Thomas made a series of sketches of her young son and the sketches were so admired by her friends that she was begged to make pictures of other babies and the result is that Mrs. Thomas has been able not only to give some admirable pictures to her friends, but has turned over to the Red Cross a splendid sum as the result of her talent.

Miss Winnifred Cole is at Atlantic, Ia., for the week-end.

Following a short wedding trip the young people will reside in Omaha until the groom receives war orders, as this is another war romance, the groom coming to Fort Omaha from Detroit about a year ago. The Children's Year

A map showing the quota of babies which each Ohio county is expected to save during the Children's year is one of the ways in which Dr. Hollingshead, chairman of the child welfare department, is encouraging the different sections of this state to save Ohio's quota of 4,510 babies. Dr. Hollingshead made a survey in January of the milk situation in 28 counties and found milk selling anywhere from 5 to 25 cents a quart. The death rate was higher in rural districts than in the city. In one small town druggists were found to be selling $3,500 to $5,000 worth of proprietary foods in the course of the year.

The chairman of the Indiana child welfare department in a letter to her subcommittee chairmen says, "Some counties still have no board of children's guardians. Without this no county can be assured of child welfare. Many schools do not have medical inspection. Health laws have a feeble and lax enforcement in many communities."

Motto Is "The Very Best."

"This department is organized to meet needs and overcome defects. Not 'pretty good' or 'very good' is our motto, but 'the very best.' We are expected to aid and supplement all existing agencies for child welfare, but none of them can do our part, for if they could this department would not have been created."

"This city (Evansville) should stand firm for the 'all-time health officer,' an expert not in politics. Look up the enforcement of health laws in your county. What kind of milk inspection have you? What medical inspection? Are your grocery and meat and other shops regularly visited and required to be kept clean, free from flies, with goods covered, etc.? This means child welfare."

In 1914, "It is truly remarkable," says one old citizen to another, "how the world has changed in our time. Why, when you and I were young there was scarcely any length to which the public would not go, or permit things to go, in the drama, literature, dancing and the like. How do you explain the difference in conditions now, compared with 1914?"

"Well, you never get married, so you can't understand," explains the other old-timer. "But we folks who did get married and began to bring up families concluded that we weren't going to allow things to be as nasty for our children as our parents had allowed them to be for us."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Spring Songs of the Garden Warrior

By M. G. KAINS.

Plant, Plant, Plant, the Boys Are Marching.
To the depot must we bend?
Must our freedom come to end?
Must we bow to tyrant thrones?
Must we heartless be as stones?
Must our soldiers and our sailors lack for food will help to win the war,
Bind the limbs of Mars and Thor,
And their tyranny and bloodshed make to cease.

Let us each, then, prove his grit,
And produce his little "bit."
And establish once again the reign of peace.

When our sons obeyed the call
And embarked to help the Gaul,
We were saddened when they passed beyond our ken.

But in God we put our trust,
For our cause we know is just.
May they conquer and come safe to us again.

CHORUS:
Plant, plant, plant, the boys are marching,
Give them all the aid we may,
For with food enough to spare
We can help them over there,
And the call of freedom thus we can obey.

Keep the Home Soil Turning.
We are summoned in the cities,
In the villages and farms,
To provide our share of rations,
For the nations now at arms.

Let no fears of failure hinder,
Put ten thousand thousand strong,
Let us cultivate war gardens,
And about this cheering song:

CHORUS:
Keep the home soil turning,
While the sun is burning,
Heed the call for food and till the mellow loam,
Through the dark clouds shining;
Turn the dark clouds o'er and o'er 'till the boys come home.

THEY ALSO SERVE!
They also serve who save, and save,
For food must help to win,
They fight who live on hardy fare—
As well as they who face the glare
Of battle and the din.

They also serve who toil, and toll,
And bravely meet the foe!
They fight who work in field, on farm—
Some fight with cannon, some with arm—
And some with plow and hoe.

They also serve—aye, you and I—
We're traitors if we fail!
While brave men sing and strong men smile,
And walk with joy their dreary mile,
And face grim death, nor quail.
