

LENROOT TELLS REPUBLICANS TO ORGANIZE PARTY

Wisconsin Senator in Loyalty Speech at Lincoln Convention, Discusses War and Politics.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Lincoln, May 28.—(Special.)—Senator I. L. Lenroot of Wisconsin delivered a stirring address to the republican loyalty convention today. He said in part:

"A year ago America accepted the decision of war but without great enthusiasm. While the nation responded loyally to every appeal and made plain that it would stand back of the government in the prosecution of the war, the minds of many of our people were vague and confused as to our aims and purposes. For nearly three years Europe has been fighting, and during that entire time, it was the hope and expectation that America would not become involved. The presidential campaign of 1918 was won by President Wilson upon the issue that 'He kept us out of war.'"

"While the invasion of Belgium in the early days of the war, thus violating its neutrality, shocked us, while the admission by the German officials that the Belgian treaty was to be considered as nothing but a 'scrap of paper,' troubled us, we still looked upon it as a European quarrel that did not directly concern us. However, as the days and months, and years went by, it became more clear that this was not a European quarrel over the balance of power or for commercial rivalry, but that there was a deeper purpose in the minds of the autocracy of Germany to conquer and rule the world."

War Begins to Loom.

"The sinking of the Lusitania was one of the greatest crimes in history, but Germany's promise that the offense would not be repeated made us feel that if she did not have any concern for the laws of humanity, she did fear us and respect our rights, but on January 31, 1917, when Germany announced that she would resume her ruthless and unrestricted submarine warfare, it became plain to us all who were familiar with the facts in the situation, that peace could not much longer continue between the United States and the German government."

"Germany carried out her threats—she did sink American vessels, did destroy American lives, did attempt to influence the American congress by the use of money, did by her authorized spies and agents destroy American property, and the result was the declaration of war on April 6, 1917. It was unfortunate that in the early days of this war the aims and purposes of America were so vaguely stated by those in authority."

War to Save America.

"We realize more fully now than we did then, that this is not a war primarily to make the world 'safe for democracy,' although it will do that when it is won—it is not primarily to restore Belgium or safeguard the rights and liberties of small nations, although it will do that when it is won—it is not, except incidentally, to protect our rights upon the seas, although those rights are included in what we fight for—this is really a war to save America, to preserve American ideals and the principles upon which this great republic was established. We are in it, and it must go on until we win it."

Forget Party Lines.

"In the conduct of this war there should be no politics, no partisanship. Patriotism never should be a political issue—it cannot properly be a political issue between loyal Americans. Whatever differences may exist between political parties, there should be no difference in the support of our government in time of war. In all matters in relation to the conduct of the war, party lines should be forgotten, and every one who are republicans or democrats, but remember only that we are all Americans."

"Nevertheless, political parties should be instrumentalities for the creation of a correct public sentiment in the support of the war, and the subject of my talk today is 'The Patriotism of the Republican Party.' It was a deep and burning patriotism that created the republican party and that patriotism is as active today in this crisis as it was in its earlier days."

Used Right of Criticism.

"Republicans have constantly kept in mind the need of a united country and that it is better to endure to a certain point some evils than to bring on greater ones through their exposure. We had hoped as the months went by and war activities became better organized, that incompetency and extravagance would be remedied. We have always, however, asserted our rights to criticize when criticism would be helpful, and we shall exercise that right in the future."

"We regret this administration is conducting the war as a partisan matter. No other nation has done this. In every other nation, every political party has been consulted and been given a participation in the administration of the government. In every other nation associated with us in this war there are coalition cabinets representing the whole people. In the United States alone the administration side of the government has been conducted in a partisan way, and yet, republicans have ungrudgingly given the administration their support and will continue to do so."

Method of Republicans.
"I have taken the time to recite these facts only because they indicate the policy that the democratic party will pursue in the fall elections. Republicans will resent these methods wherever employed, but they will not retaliate by using similar methods. Republicans will not attack the loyalty of President Wilson or the democratic party. On the contrary they will continue to support the democratic administration in all necessary ways in the future as they have in the past. The republican party in this war is not following the example of the democratic party in the civil war. Comparisons are odious, but in view of what has transpired we have a right to compare the patriotism of the republican party in this war with that of the democratic party in the civil war."

Case From New Hampshire.

"Last year there was an election to fill a vacancy in New Hampshire caused by the death of Mr. Sulloway, a republican. In the campaign following, democratic orators sent into that district by the democratic national committee, in their speeches stated that a vote for the republican candidate was a vote for the kaiser. Nevertheless, the republican candidate was elected and he has been a loyal supporter of all war measures since he was known to be loyal throughout the campaign, but for the sake of political advantage alone, democrats tried to place the stamp of disloyalty upon the republican candidate and the republican party in New Hampshire."

In Indiana.

"Last June there was a special election in Indiana to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Comstock, a republican. The republicans nominated a loyal supporter of the war—the democrats nominated a man who had been a member of congress until March 4, 1917; a man who was a professed pacifist; a man who had opposed preparedness measures in congress, preparedness measures advocated by President Wilson. Nevertheless, President Wilson, in a letter, endorsed the pacifist candidate, but, as in New Hampshire, the republican candidate was elected and he has been a loyal supporter of all war measures in the house."

Partisan Spirit Shown.

"The first partisan speech made on the floor of either house of congress since the war began was made on January 21 of this year in the senate by a democrat. His text was: 'Republican leaders in and out of congress are undoubtedly seeking to make politics out of this war. This speech was followed on February 4 by the insertion in the record by Mr. Ferris, a democratic member of the house, of an editorial by ex-Governor Flynn, bitterly attacking the republican party. A few weeks afterward Mr. Ferris was elected chairman of the democratic congressional committee.'"

Methods of Democracy.

"A little later the Wisconsin senatorial campaign came on and I shall touch upon that only because it reveals the methods and unfairness of the democratic party, and we must be prepared to meet like methods in the campaign next fall."

"The finger of suspicion had unjustly been pointed at the loyalty of Wisconsin. Loyalty was the issue. I was nominated as the republican candidate upon that issue. Although as a member of the house I had voted for the declaration of war and every war measure since—although President Wilson had frequently called me to the White House to confer upon war measures and I had by speeches and votes and in every possible way supported him, an attack was begun upon the loyalty of the republican nominee. I regret to say that such attack was participated in by President Wilson in an indirect way. It was followed by the democratic national committee, by the democratic candidate, by the democratic newspapers and by a score of democratic senators and representatives sent to Wisconsin."

What Voters Told.

"The voters of Wisconsin were told they could not be loyal unless they supported the democratic candidate. Billboards from one end of the state to the other were covered with the statement that 'Wilson wants Davis.' 'His defeat will bring joy to Potsdam and gloom to Washington.' Finally, Vice President Marshall came into the state. In a speech at Madison, capital, he said: 'I came to Wisconsin to find if 100,000 republicans will not count the loss of partisanship cheap if thereby Wisconsin may be saved to the union.' He said some other things, which I shall refer to in a few moments."

The Wisconsin soldiers still in the United States, under the statutes of the state, had the right to vote at their camps. A large number of them were stationed at Camp Grant, at Rockford, Ill. A few days before the election the following advertisement was published, two columns wide, in a Rockford paper: 'To the Wisconsin soldiers at Camp Grant, Tuesday, April 2: You are entitled to vote for United States senator from Wisconsin to succeed Senator Paul O. Husting. President Wilson, your commander-in-chief, desires all loyal Americans to vote for Joseph E. Davies for United States senator. Davies' election means joy at Washington and gloom at Berlin. Davies' defeat means gloom at Washington and joy at Berlin.' To say to soldiers in the service that their commander-in-chief desires them to vote a certain way is indefensible from any standpoint. I, of course, freely acquit President Wilson of any knowledge of this outrage. It may be interesting to note what the vote of this camp following this appeal to obey their commander-in-chief was. The republican nominee received 576 votes at this camp and the democratic candidate 403 votes.

Method of Republicans.

"I have taken the time to recite these facts only because they indicate the policy that the democratic party will pursue in the fall elections. Republicans will resent these methods wherever employed, but they will not retaliate by using similar methods. Republicans will not attack the loyalty of President Wilson or the democratic party. On the contrary they will continue to support the democratic administration in all necessary ways in the future as they have in the past. The republican party in this war is not following the example of the democratic party in the civil war. Comparisons are odious, but in view of what has transpired we have a right to compare the patriotism of the republican party in this war with that of the democratic party in the civil war."

Will Stand Loyal.

"To win this war organization is necessary and every existing organization should be utilized, both republican and democratic organizations can be most helpful; every speech that is made in the campaign should be a loyalty speech, with every speaker, 'America first, partisanship second,' should be the controlling sentiment. No opportunity should be lost by either party to impress upon the people the righteousness and justice of the war and that we must go on with it until we win it. President Wilson may not call republicans into consultation; he may not appoint republicans in his cabinet, nevertheless, republicans will support him in all proper war measures, because he is the president of the United States, because he is commander-in-chief of the army and navy. If democrats desert him in the future as in the past, on vital war measures, the republicans will furnish votes enough to put them through, but in doing so we support a government of which we are a part, and neither senators nor congressmen should be rubber stamps."

"The republican party is fortunate in that it is not compelled to raise any false issues in the coming campaign. We do not need to attack the loyalty of the democrats to make an issue. We hope every democratic nominee next fall will be loyal in support of the war and that the only issue between the two parties will be, which can best be trusted to wisely legislate in matters indirectly connected with the war and meet and solve the great economic questions which will confront us following the war. Upon this issue the republican party is supremely confident of the verdict of the American people."

Omaha Bakery is Ordered Closed by County Food Head

The B Bakery, 5211 South Thirtieth street, was ordered closed from June 1 to June 8, by County Food Administrator Oscar Allen, because of failure to observe the food administration rules regarding use of substitutes.

During last week the bakery used 2,156 pounds of flour and 198 pounds of substitutes, it was alleged. The amount of substitutes required to be used with this quantity of flour is 718 pounds.

This is the first instance in Omaha where a bakery has been ordered closed by the food administration for failure to observe the regulations regarding substitutes.

Youths Crowd Army Building To Get Under Draft Date Wire

Seventy boys crowded into the Army building when the doors opened at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and asked to be enlisted in army service. Most of them became 21 since last June 5 and prefer to enlist rather than register and be drafted.

Sergeant Hansen of the Omaha recruiting party said that no special drive will be made to obtain enlistments of the boys who will register in June. Boys subject to the draft will not be accepted for enlistment after May 31, as the law provides that all persons excused from registering must be completely inducted into the service. Voluntary enlistment will be served to the man who waits until the 11th hour.

LUTHER A. HARMON NOW COMES OUT WITH STATEMENT

Prominent Retired Omaha Business Man Gives Tanlac a Test.

Few persons in Omaha are better known or more highly regarded in the local business world than Luther A. Harmon, who for forty years was a prominent member of the firm of Harmon & Weeth Coal company, but who is now retired from active business life. Mr. Harmon lives at 3711 North Twentieth street, and in telling the other day of his remarkable recovery through the use of Tanlac from a severe stomach trouble said:

"For some time back I had been suffering terribly from a disordered stomach. I had no appetite and the little I forced down would sour on my stomach and distress me for hours. I did not seem to assimilate my food and for several months I had been falling off in weight. I was badly constipated and suffered constantly from dull headaches and I would often have spells of dizziness and felt as if I was going to fall. Rheumatism in my left leg made walking so painful to me that it was no pleasure for me to go out afoot."

"Hearing Tanlac spoken of so highly I got a bottle and was agreeably surprised at the way it acted exactly like it was made especially for my case, for right after the first few doses my appetite picked up and I began to eat and enjoy my meals, my stomach trouble was soon relieved and I can now digest and assimilate my food as good as ever, which is proved by the fact that I have regained all my lost weight and am back to normal again. That constipation that troubled me so much has been corrected, headaches and dizzy spells have totally disappeared and my rheumatism hardly ever bothers me at all, so that I can now enjoy my daily walks once more."

"My wife seeing how rapidly I improved said that as she had such a poor appetite she felt the need of a tonic for her stomach. 'Well,' I said to her, 'you can't do better than to take Tanlac; it has fixed me up all right.' She followed my advice and since taking Tanlac says that she both so delighted with the relief that Tanlac has brought up that we are glad to recommend it to all other sufferers."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha by Sherman & McConnell Drug Co., corner Sixteenth and Dodge streets; Sixteenth and Harney. Owl Drug company, Sixteenth and Farnam streets; Harvard Pharmacy, Twenty-fourth and Farnam streets; northeast corner Nineteenth and Farnam streets, and West End Pharmacy, corner Forty ninth and Dodge streets, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Advertisement.
