Paper Bags Have New War Use Aside From Wrapping

In these days of conservation and general poverty, if you belong to the fortunate few who still buy their sugar in bags, then, in the name of the Red Cross and Elizabeth Barker, we beg you not only to save the sugar, but the sacks.

The little bags, so handy for your "hankie" and your knitting, have paper handles twisted in a curious way and fastened to the bag with tiny tacks.

Ho, all ye conservationists who have been feasting on war breads and who long for one more luscious chocolate cake! Three of these delectable confections are to be given as prizes at the benefit bridge party Monday afternoon at Happy Hollow club. Members of the Dundee Woman's Patriotic club, who are sponsoring this affair, are giving us alluring hints as to the prizes, for they will not only be very practical but very dear to the feminine heart.

A picture hat, an electric iron, a $5 order on a local cleaning establishment and some lovely water colors are among the prizes to be given.

Standards for Women in Industry

The chairman of the woman's committee of the Nebraska State Council of Defense, Prof. Sarka Hrbkova, issues the appended standards for women in industry, issued by the ordnance department of the army.

1. Hours of labor. Existing legal standards should be rigidly maintained, and even where the law permits a nine or 10-hour day, efforts should be made to restrict the work of women to eight hours.

2. Prohibition of night work. The employment of women on night shifts should be avoided as a necessary protection, morally and physically.

3. Rest periods. No woman should be employed for a longer period than four and a half hours without a break for a meal, and a recess of 10 minutes should be allowed in the middle of each working period.

4. Time for meals. At least 30 minutes should be allowed for a meal and this time should be lengthened to 45 minutes or an hour if working days exceed eight hours.

5. Place for meals. Meals should not be eaten in work room.

Lincoln Girl Dedicates Song to United States Soldiery

Lincoln, May 29.—(Special.)—Miss Marian Sargent of Lincoln has composed and set to music a song dedicated to the United States soldiery on land or sea, and in air, called to arms April 6, 1917. It is especially appropriate for Memorial day.

Miss Sargent comes from fighting stock. Her Great Grandfather Winthrop was in the revolutionary war; her grandfather, Charles Sargent was a veteran of the war of 1812; her father, Charles H. Sargent, was a veteran of the civil war, a member of the Eighth Massachusetts volunteers; while her brother, Joseph A. Sargent is a captain of engineers "somewhere in France." The song follows:

Marian Sargent

The Anointed

Dedicated to the United States soldiery—on land or sea, in air—called to arms April 6, 1917.

Into Thy hands we commend them, O God, our Father, our King, our Lord, our God, our Father, our King, our Lord, our God, our Father, our King, our Lord, our God.

Patriotic Women Discover Colonel Neglected in Service for the Privates

Pity the poor bachelor, especially if he's in khaki. Don't, however, save all your sympathy for the drafted man or the lonely private.

Who would think that the commanding officer of Fort Omaha would be neglected when Omaha has grown famous for her mothering of the soldiers within her gates?

It was left to the Dundee Patriotic club to discover that Colonel Hersey actually wanted a small attention and didn't know where to find it.

After enthusiastic approval the commanding officer of Fort Omaha was notified that he, too, liked handknit socks, but the women never guessed that a colonel wouldn't have everything in his comfort kit until he admitted that he didn't have any and didn't know where to buy them.

New Styles in Window Boxes

There is a new style in window boxes.

Mrs. Hugo Mansfeldt of San Francisco has started it.

Mrs. Mansfeldt has a large music studio, but she became so interested in the war garden army that she couldn't stand it to think she didn't have an inch of ground to dedicate to Uncle Sam.

So she tore the geraniums and narcissus and nasturtiums out of her long row of picturesque window boxes and planted onions, radishes, and carrots instead.

The first American chaplain to receive the croix de guerre from the French government is the Rev. Walter S. Danker of Worcester, Mass., an Episcopal chaplain in the 104th United States infantry.

Mrs. E. A. Creighton is leaving in a few days for a three months' eastern trip.

Flicks of Fashion

Vogues of the Moment in Omaha Shops

The revival of an ancient joke is doubtless with us again, for it's one of the comics used to love to dole out for our amusement.

And husbands will probably softly murmur something (not exactly polite) when they hear it, for their duty of "buttoning her up" has begun once more.

Yes, the button-up-the-back blouse is here, and it's emphatically so pretty that even "husband" won't mind the extra few minutes required of him each day, when he must act in the capacity of lady's maid.

Just this week did these blouses arrive in Omaha from a very ultramodish Fifth avenue blouse shop, and they are so youthful and absolutely "different" from the blouses we've been wearing for a few seasons past that every woman will welcome them with delight as charming companions for the popular separate silk skirts and sleeveless jackets.

Quant Neck. The pretty and demurely quaint round neck, finished with a ruff, or if your fancy chooses, with two or more ruffles, is, perhaps, the chief claim for the becomingness of these blouses, though a very few beautiful ones merely boast a row or two of shirred cording, while one particularly lovely blouse of that favorite war-time shade, "soldier blue," has the bravado to assert its completeness, with just a row of black wood beads around the between small tucks, both back and front, add a dainty touch.

Coral Buttons. The exquisite blouse of pink georgette, claims ruffles and bell-shaped cuffs of crisp, white organdy, adorned with bright coral buttons.

Chenille embroidery in a star-within-a-wheel design, characterizes an exquisite blouse of pink georgette, which is finished at both the neck and cuffs with three rows of corded shirring.

The buyer remarked that these new, round neck, button-up-the-back affairs were made after the true Parisian models, for they have that feature which distinguishes the artistic French blouse, the back and front being identical in appearance.

Y. W. C. A. Officials to France

Mrs. James S. Cushman, chairman of the war work council of the National Young Women's Christian association, and a party of seven associates in the organization have arrived at a French port.

The association works in France among Red Cross nurses and other American women engaged in relief activities. To these the Young Women's Christian association supplies the comforts of home. Accommodations are provided also for women in munition centers behind the lines.

The national officers—Mrs. Cushman, Miss Cratty and Miss Schooley—will remain in France only long enough to see what is being accomplished and to gain an idea of future needs.

Festive Polka Dot

By GERTRUDE BERESFORD.

FOULARD is to summer what blue serge is to spring and fall. The well dressed woman cannot get on without it. An effective gown of foulard is developed in blue dots on a white ground, supplemented with plain white foulard. The blouse carries a U-shaped vest of white georgette crepe, gathered on a tiny cord. Plain white foulard revers complete this attractive neck line and are finished with two large pearl buttons. The sleeve and tunic are of all white. The diversion of the tunic is also held by pearl buttons. A belt of navy blue suede is the final touch of smartness. This model could be developed in calico, or in plain and fancy weaveingham.

Of Interest to Women

The Wisconsin industrial commission has ruled that women may be employed as street car conductors and motormen only between the hours of 8 p. m. and 5 p. m.

A woman's college is to be opened in connection with Rutgers', at New Brunswick, N. J.

Are the American women of today doing their bit as efficiently as did their grandmothers and mothers in the '60s? In regard to the sacrifices of American women in the civil war, a prominent writer of that period declared: "Women there were in this war, who, without a single relative in the army, denied themselves for the whole four years the comforts to which they had always been accustomed; went thinly clad, took the extra blanket from their bed, never tasted tea, or sugar, or meat, that they might wind another bandage round some unknown soldier's wound, or give some parched lips in the hospital another sip of wine."

Florence Silverston is Chicago's first woman public certified accountant.

Mrs. Metzler will accompany Mrs. Rosewater to Northampton, Mass., June 5, to attend the commencement exercises at Smith college, when Miss Irene Rosewater will be graduated.
