ing. They are employes now of the United States government; therefore this was a strike-against the government of the United States.

"It is the first time in the history employes have attempted a strike. Such action is incredible. For the good of our beloved country and for the honor of railroad men in the service everywhere I hope that there will be no repetition of what every one must condemn as unpatriotic in the highest degree.

Suppose that railroad employes should strike against the directions of their government and hamper the operation of the railroads at a time when transportation is essential to protect the hundreds of thousands of battle fields of Europe, to save the road employes serving here at home what would happen to our country?

"The kaiser would probably get it.

Loyal Support Demanded.

"We cannot all get exactly what, we want in this world, nor can we win this war unless each and every citizen is willing to submit to the laws of the land and the decisions of those in authority.

"The railroad men particularly must give unswerving and loyal support to our government no matter what our individual views and disappointments may be, relying upon a fair hearing of our complaints and the justice of our cause and accepting patriotically the final decisions of those in authority who under our laws are charged with the responsibility of making them.

Anti-Typhoid Inoculation

To Be Given Workers Free Washington, May 30 .- Free antityphoid inoculation is to be given by the government to protect the health of the nation at this time, when the labor of every man possible is needed in winning the war. Secretary McAdoo announced to charge to all who apply at any of its hospitals or field offices. Many of these offices are located in zones surrounding military cantonments and prevention of typhoid fever in these zones is a step reducing the risk of interchange of disease between the military and civil populations.

Movement Fanshaped.

The fighting has taken on the familiar aspect of the first invasion of France in 1914, the advance of von Mackensen along the Dunajc and the fighting in Picardy in March. After breaking the French and British defensive positions, but not breaking the allied lines, the Germans are again moving their forces out in a fanshaped figure, fighting hardest on the flapks of the extreme front of their advance.

The situation while apparently extremely serious, has not assumed the critical aspect of the fighting late in British bombers who were returning March. The allies are resisting the enemy's attacks stubbornly, giving ground when overpowered and always maintaining a solid front.

Approach Valley of Marne.

The wave of the advance is now pproaching the valley of the Marne, he nearest approach to that advance towards Paris being at the village of Vezilly, which lies at the extreme apex of the German wedge and is bout seven miles from the river. In 1914 the Germans advanced over a front extending from Braisne, just east of Soissons, to Vauquois, a little west of Verdun. After having reached the Marne, the Teutons turned the force of their advance toward the west and they may be expected to repeat their tactics of four years ago.

Foch May Launch Blow.

The reserve forces at the command of General Foch are now coming into action on ground chosen for the combat by that master strategist, and it is possible that a blow of tremendous sportsmanship that will stimulate all proportions may be struck somewhere along the front of the German wave, or on its western side; which seems to be open to an attack which might crumple up the German armies to the east of Soissons. The Americans who captured Catigny have beaten off attack after attack by the Germans. Large German forces are said to have been gathered to retake the village, and they have launched savage assaults at the Americans, but the latter, with rifle and machine gun fire, have mowed down the advancing Teutons, while the American artillery has smashed the German formations with barrage fine.
