Nephew of Omaha Woman Sings to Soldiers Near Front-Line Trenches

In far-off France under the flaring lights in a Young Men's Christian association hut, you might hear the lilting strains of "Give Me a Kiss, Mirandy." At the piano sits a little woman whose skillful fingers slip from one melody to another as she accompanies the singer by her side, who looks out on a sea of upturned faces. The men in uniform drink in every word of the simple, homey melodies, sung to make them forget the booming guns outside and to bring home and loved ones a little nearer.

Mr. Forrest Rutherford is the singer and the composer of the song with such a military swing to it. He won the $1,000 prize offered by the New York Herald for the best marching song, and before long both Mr. Rutherford and his accomplished wife, who accompanies him, were at Camp Funston entertaining the boys in the Young Men's Christian association huts there.

Mr. Rutherford is a nephew of Mrs. John M. Macfarland of Omaha and is a former Denver man. In his zeal to make the way easier for our fighting men he asked to be sent to France that he and Mrs. Rutherford might bring a little sunshine into the trenches and the way was soon opened for this couple to do their part "over there." Despite the fact that wives are not allowed to accompany their husbands to France for war work, an exception was made of Mrs. Rutherford because of her work at Funston.

Returns to Alma Mater After Sixty Years

Mrs. C. H. Stephens

Just sixty years ago this June, Mrs. C. H. Stephens was awarded her diploma from the University of Iowa. To celebrate this diamond anniversary the distinguished alumna will return to be honor guest at the commencement exercises of her Alma Mater.

Mrs. Stephens is one of two living members of her class. She was accompanied to Iowa City by her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Whistler.

In spite of the fact that this former Iowa student's school days are so far behind her, she has been so active in doing her part in war work that many a younger woman could profit by her shining example. She has completed sixteen sweaters in less than a year's time.

Mrs. Stephens is a member of the Benson Red Cross hospital garment auxiliary, whose members work in the Benson city hall.

of the club, which meets every two weeks during the winter, closing the year with a day spent out-of-doors.

Women in Wartime

Red Cross Makes Appeal to Nebraskans For Service Abroad

Nebraska men and women are needed in France. More women are desired for canteen work under the same requirements as those who have already been chosen; that is, that they should pay their own expenses, have no near relative in the service and be between the ages of 25 and 35.

Persons of both sexes must be recruited to take clerical positions. They must be between 25 and 40 years of age. Transportation and a salary of $100 a month will be paid these volunteers.

Social workers, men and women need to be from 28 to 50 years of age. They must speak French. A small salary will be paid. Women in this branch of the Red Cross service may be used to care for nurses' homes, help with refugee work among women and children and various kinds of reconstruction work. All wear uniform when on duty.

Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, head of the canteen work for the Central division, of which Nebraska is a part, and H. A. Gardner, in charge of the social service for the division, will be in Omaha in about two weeks to confer with applicants for all three branches. They will announce a quota for Nebraska. Mrs. C. T. Kountze, at the Red Cross state headquarters in the Wead building, will direct all women applicants, and J. E. Davidson, newly appointed director of the bureau of personnel work, will direct the men who wish to enlist for Red Cross work abroad.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Winking Boy.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have been a reader of your "Advice to Lovelorn" for some time and enjoy it very much. Now I want to ask you some questions.

There is a boy living near us and goes to our church. I know him well and he is a nice boy. He lets of times "wink" at me and now is it proper for me to wink back at him? I have never gone out with him, but he has tried to ask me once in a while. What does a boy mean by "winking" at a girl? How is a girl to tell if a boy "winks" at her?

Hope to see this in The Bee, I remain,

ROSE.
This boy of whom you speak is probably just having a little fun with you, I wouldn't take these boy friends so seriously. If they like you, you will be able to tell it very easily. If one young man singles you out and seems to prefer your company to other girls, you may be sure that he likes you. The old adage that "actions speak louder than words" still holds good, you know.

The Right Girl at Last.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I have been going about with a girl cousin for about one year. My going with her was really for the sake of my people. But to tell you the truth, I don't care for her at all. I had made up my mind to forget girls for some time, and so I did for about six months. Lately I became acquainted with one whom I dearly love and I know she cares for me. She is one year and four months my senior. My people object, saying I should not go about with her because of the difference in our ages. Now, Miss Fairfax, should I give up a girl whom I dearly love because of this?

I. K. K.
The very trifling difference in your ages should be no impediment to a happy marriage. There have been many instances where the woman has been 10 or 15 years older, and the marriage has been a complete success. The same tastes, interests, ideals are far more important factors in a happy marriage, than a trifling difference of years.

An Engaged Girl.

My Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am engaged to a young man who calls on me every night. Is it proper for him to call every night? If you are engaged should you quit all other gentlemen callers, if your friend asks you to? If so, why? I would like my answer soon as possible. Thank you.
ARMARILLA.
I would not let the young man call every night, even though you are engaged. Give him a chance to miss you a little. Do not accept invitations from other men; your fiance should always come first in your life.
