

HYMN OF HATE BRINGS M'KEE BEFORE JUDGE

Alleged Poetical Proclivities of Nebraska Ranchman Lead to Indictment by Federal Jury.

A "hymn of hate," surpassing in vindictiveness any of the inspired production of German schoolmasters rewarded by the kaiser, is the alleged cause of the indictment and arrests of Charles McKee, ranchman of Cheyenne county. So lofty was McKee's indignation, according to the indictment of the grand jury, and so soaring were his sentiments that his language falls naturally into the measures of verse, or at least, of free verse. Follows the hymn of hate which United States District Attorney Allen and the grand jury accuse McKee of composing:

"Woodrow Wilson is a dirty cur,
Why should face a firing squad,
And be shot at sunrise,
Our army in France
Is a joke, and always will be.
This is a war of the wealthy;
However is a crook and ought to be hung;
Liar is a lie;
The Red Cross is a graft;
We are fighting England's battles;
I would rather bury my money
In a tomato can
Than buy Liberty bonds
With it.
I will not keep still
In public,
I deem it a pleasure
To express my feelings
In court.
To hell with the flag of the United States.
I am for Germany, I am for
The Kaiser, and
I HATE ENGLAND."

Threatened Battle.

John Harshfield, also a ranchman, who lives 30 miles northwest of North Platte, boasted that he belonged to the largest organization in the world. "I am a member of the non-partisan league," he is accused of saying. He also is quoted as saying: "I have enough arms and ammunition planted on my place to kill a whole regiment, and when Woodrow Wilson or any of his bunch comes after me there will be a battle on my place on the old Birdwood creek."

To prevent any uprising of this nature on the Birdwood, Harshfield has been indicted by the grand jury and taken in custody by Deputy Marshal D. E. Lincoln of Kearney.

Pearl Cross of Gering.

Scottsbluff county, said according to the indictment of the grand jury, "Wilson is the cause of this war, and by God, I'd like to shoot the old—between the eyes and through the head with a double-barreled shot gun."

Disclaimed Draft.

George W. Davis, farmer of Cheyenne county, is accused of having insisted that Germany had a right to order the United States off the seas and to sink the Lusitania. He is also accused of having said that the government had no right to draft men and to send them overseas.

All of the men have been indicted under the espionage act on three counts, to-wit: attempting to cause disloyalty and mutiny, for attempting to obstruct recruiting and for making statements designed to interfere with the success of the military forces of the United States. Harshfield is also accused of having threatened the life of the president.

All of the men have been released on bonds of $5,000 and will be tried at North Platte in the session of court opening June 24.

It is anticipated another cut will be made about July 1.

"Dreamland Adventures"

By DADDY—"The Giant of the Woods"

A complete, new adventure each week, beginning Monday and ending Saturday.

CHAPTER III.
The King of the Wild Geese.

(Peggy is summoned to Birdland to deal with the Giant of the Woods, who has gone mad. The Giant drives the birds from their council hall to the safety of the marshes.)

BROAD marshes, covered with a thick growth of wild rice, lay to the east of the woods of Birdland. The river here was broken into many channels and bayous. A low island, bordered by willows and protected by oozy mud flats and shallows that could not be crossed either by boat or afoot, stood in the center of the watery waste. Here it was that the birds sought refuge from the Giant of the Woods.

Peggy found a seat on a willow root, while the birds grouped around, some on the ground, some on the willow branches, and some of the tiniest swaying on the wild rice stems. Judge Owl, who had stopped along clumsily beside Peggy's airplane, resumed the council where it had been broken up by the appearance of the Giant. He addressed Peggy in rhyme:

I wish you'd show this crazy terror
That he's a nuisance and in error.
He's had in the day and worse at night,
To all Birdland he's a blooming fright.

Peggy shook her head disapprovingly at Judge Owl.
"You hadn't ought to make a bad thing worse by poetizing on it," she said severely. "This thing is awful."
"So is the poetry," snapped Mr. Wood Pecker. Judge Owl winked at Peggy as he answered:

Wood Pecker necked a pickles tree,
Which made him sour as sour could be.

"I'd rather be sour than silly," retorted Reddy Wood Pecker, but Judge Owl went right in with his verse:

If Pecker pecked a bumble bee,
He'd get a pain in his tum-me.

Having relieved himself of this bit of levity, Judge Owl drew himself up pompously and gazed solemnly around.

"The question before the court is how Princess Peggy is going to save us from the rage of the Giant. Princess Peggy, it's up to you."

Peggy didn't like the judge's slang any more than she did his poetry. Neither did she like the way in which he placed the whole responsibility upon her. She remembered advice her father had once given her: "If you don't know what to say, don't say it. When cornered, ask questions."

"Why don't you keep out of the Giant's way?" she proposed.

The birds looked blankly at her, then at each other.

"That's what we are doing now, and look where we are!" said Reddy Wood Pecker. "There isn't one decent tree here to drum on."

"Nor a hollow in which to sleep," yawned Judge Owl.

"Nor a bough on which to hang a nest," said Mr. Oriole.

"And there are water snakes, in the marsh," whispered Mrs. Bob Olink. The birds shivered and moved closer together.

"Why not move to another forest and let the Giant rage all he wants to in his own woods?" suggested Peggy.

Again the birds looked at her in puzzled surprise.

"But it is not the Giant's woods, it is our woods," declared Reddy Wood Pecker. "It has belonged to the birds for years and years. The Giant is an invader."

"And my family was raised here, and my family's family, and my grand-father's family, and my great-grand-father's family and—" Mrs. Oriole was eagerly going back into genealogy when Mrs. Bob Olink interrupted.

"It was here that we met our mates, that we built our own nests, that we reared our children. Oh, we can't move. No, no, no!"

"If you can't move, the Giant will have to move," decided Peggy. "We might scare him away."

Plan to Sell Little Red Wagons to Munny Ice Users

In connection with the operation of the munny ice plant the Metropolitan Water board will sell little red wagons for the convenience of children who will patronize the ice stations. Tongs and ice picks also will be sold at nominal prices.

While these wagons were designed especially for the kiddies, there will be no law against the grown-ups using these vehicles as they do in some cities where municipal ice stations have been established.

The first station to be definitely located here is at Twentieth and Poppleton avenue, adjoining the new ice plant.

General Manager Howell hopes to start selling ice next month. Ice in any quantities of 5 cents worth or more will be sold at the munny stations.

Police Find Booze in Grip; Owner is Now in Jail

When Andrew Hutchinson alighted from a Missouri Pacific train which arrived at the South Side station at 7:15 Wednesday morning, he did not pass through the station gate ordinarily used by passengers, but started to make a detour through a side exit farther down the track. All might have gone well had not Detectives Francl and Herzdina become suspicious of the contents of the grip Hutchinson was carrying. They investigated and found that it contained three quarts of whisky and two quarts of wine. Hutchinson was taken to the police station and booked on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

In police court he entered a plea of guilty and was fined $100 and costs by Judge Fitzgerald. He went to jail in default of payment of the fine.

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain, unperfumed cocoon oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get medicated cocoon oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Adv.
