their support of all measures asked of congress for the effective and successful prosecution of the war.

As republicans of the Fourth district, we take special pride in the commanding position reached by our representative, Charles H. Sloan, in the national house of representatives, and in his work in congress, and as a member of the ways and means committee,—the first republican congressman from Nebraska to secure membership on this, the most important committee, during Nebraska's 51 years of statehood. We especially commend Congressman Sloan for his active support of all war measures brought before congress to make our armed forces victorious and for his work in connection with the war revenues as a member of the ways and means committee and on the floor of congress, where he has insisted that a large part of the expense of the war should be paid by taxes and that the tax burden fall most heavily upon the wealth of the country and the large business profits incident to the war.

Congressman Sloan's work in congress in Congressman Sloan's work in congress in behalf of the agricultural interests of the country has been of prime importance to Nebraska. We commend him for his stand that there is as great a field of duty and meriulness for the republican party during times of war as during times of peace, and that the republican party will be needed by the nation during the reconstruction period after the war.
