SOUTH SIDE

STATE EDITORS DINNER GUESTS AT STOCK YARDS

Bruce McCulloch Acts as Toastmaster and Mayor Smith Makes Patriotic Speech.

One hundred and fifty members of the Nebraska Press association, attending the annual convention in Omaha, were guests of the Union Stock Yards company at a luncheon in Exchange dining hall Friday morning.

Most of the visitors needed no introduction to South Side hospitality, having been entertained on similar occasions by the Stock Yards company.

Bruce McCulloch, editor of the Journal-Stockman, presided as toastmaster, and started things going by proposing a toast to President Wilson and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience.

Dan Desdune's colored "jazz" band rendered some real old-fashioned "hot stuff" that set ye editors' feet to keeping time, while a member of the band led the "light fantastic" up and down the aisles.

Little Jack Connors, Jr., sang and danced with his father, and responded to a number of accolades. Mrs. Grace Poole-Steinberg rendered two pleasing solos, and led the audience in "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

Mayor Smith Speaks.
Bruce McCulloch reviewed briefly the history of the Omaha live stock market, and introduced Mayor Ed P. Smith, who delivered a stirring patriotic address.

"The powerful influence of the public press to elevate and preserve the morals of the nation in war time is immeasurable," the mayor said.

"Many of you come from communities where there is a large German population, and I hope that you, through your newspapers, will impress that population with the opportunity they now have of demonstrating their true Americanism by unqualified support of the United States in the war."

"The second decade of the twentieth century is the greatest period of history since the beginning of the Christian era. Never were the forces of evil so powerful and so active as now, but never were the forces of good so powerful and far-reaching as they are at present. The two events of this decade that will stand unparalleled in the world's history are the tragedy of the downfall of Russia and the entrance of the United States into the war. The public press is one of the most powerful factors in determining the success or failure of our efforts."

"It were better that the great state of Nebraska return to her virgin state, with the buffalo and the Indian roaming her barren prairies, than that von Hindenberg set the foot of a conqueror on American soil, or an American citizen pay tribute to the flag of the Hun."

South Side Brevities

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wright left Thursday night for Seattle for a three weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

Telephone South 900 and order a case of Omaha or Lacrosse beer, the healthiest and most delicious beverage, delivered to your residence.

Rev. Ford A. Ellis, pastor of South Side Christian church, will preach Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on "The Conflict Between the Law of Force and the Law of Love," and at night on "Can We Hear the Voice of Christ in the Midst of War?"

Edward Huwaldt, for the last two years principal of South Side High school, and recently elected member of the Board of Education, was elected president of the Live Stock National bank war savings society. The society was organized with 40 members, and several more are expected to join, making a 100 per cent membership. Mr. Huwaldt is head of the credits and accounts department of the bank and will not return to school work. Miss Aurora Mullins was elected secretary of the war savings society.

Paulist Choristers of Chicago Coming to Omaha

Homeward bound for Chicago after a six months' transcontinental concert tour of the American continent for the benefit of French relief, the Paulist Choristers of Chicago, Father Finn's famous choir of boys, will visit Omaha for two days and sing two concerts in the Auditorium the evenings of June 24 and 25.

The choristers have sung in almost every city of size in the entire United States since they left their Chicago homes last New Year's day—from Maine to California, and from Canada to New Orleans. Everywhere their audiences are wildly enthusiastic about these small boys, who are quite indifferent to applause. They have sung in the White House five times and while in Washington they sang before a most distinguished audience of members of the diplomatic corps, Admiral Benson and Ambassador Jusserand. The French ambassador thanked the choristers for the splendid work they are doing.

Scattered Showers Are Reported Over Nebraska

Scattered showers were the rule over a goodly portion of Nebraska Thursday night, with heavy rain in the northern part of the state. From Atkinson to Long Pine on the North-western, a distance of 60 miles, the precipitation was one to three inches. There was some hail, but not enough to damage the crops to any extent.

Merchants' Market Week In September This Year

Merchants' market week this year will be the week beginning September 9. This was decided at a meeting of the committee at the Chamber of Commerce. A program is being worked out, it is said that will be different from those of past years.

In the Silent Drama

Empress—Shepherd and Ray, appearing at the Empress for the last time today, offer a decidedly interesting offering consisting of whip manipulation, in which Mr. Shepherd makes immense Australian whips with lashes from 20 to 40 feet long crack like a salvo of artillery. Bert Lyell makes his bow as a Metro star in the role of a manly hero in a dramatization of Charles Alden Satter's novel, "The Trail to Yesterday," the last time today. This rugged romance is staged on great cattle ranches, the broad plains and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Sam—William Russell in "Up Romance Road," is living a dull and uninspiring life from his point of view, even finding his engagement to the daughter of his father's partner in the ship building industry a prosaic affair. Adventure found him in place of his having to search for it and a thrilling series of actions take place before he cleans up the gang of saboteurs and marries the girl he was ready to leave for romance.

Strand—"The Lie," with Elsie Ferguson in the lead, is a fine dramatization of Henry Arthur Jones' powerful stage drama. Miss Ferguson has a role that affords her ample opportunity for the display of dramatic powers as she takes the part of the elder sister of the two daughters of a dissipated Englishman. Deliberately she sacrifices the love of her sweetheart to save her sister from the consequences of a shameful act in order that the honor of the family may not suffer. In the finale she is wooed by a man who has learned the truth and finds happiness in his love.

Muse—Tom Mix in the character of an officer of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police in "Ace High," finds himself in a country where good men are few and the bad men are very bad. Mix is at home in his part, more at home than most people realize, for he was once a member of the Mounted Police and some of the experiences he portrays before the camera have happened to him in real life.

Relato—Wallace Reid in "Believe Me, Xantippe," was found to be a play to please the ladies Thursday night when the wives of the editors in convention here attended in a body. The play, which will appear here for the last time today, is a comedy drama of a high order. The action never stops for a moment until the consummation of the pretty love story that has been woven into the story.

Hamilton—Mary Pickford in the comedy drama, "A Family of Clothes Line Alley," will be here today only. In this pretty comedy and love story, Miss Pickford takes the part of an awkward belle of an awkward street, and with her smile and her capability of getting into funny situations creates many a laugh for the audience.

Lathrop—Annette Kellerman, appearing here for the last time today in "A Daughter of the Gods," has a play that is not only a pretty vehicle for her wonderful swimming feat but is in itself a beautiful series of scenes and events which have been made part of a thrilling and interesting love story. The plot itself is a strong one and the love story is not lost to feature the aquatic part of the film.

War Spirit to Predominate At First M. E. Church Sunday

The war spirit will predominate at the Sunday evening service at the First Methodist church. "The Star-Spangled Banner," the "Marseillaise," and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War" are among the songs for the Sunday evening patriotic song service which will begin at 8 o'clock. No evening services will be delivered at the church during the summer. Rev. Titus Lowe will give a short address on "Songs in War Times."

Peculiar Situations Arise In Registration of Women

A peculiar situation arose when two sisters called at the alien enemy registration bureau for women in the city council chamber.

These women were stylishly clad and wore diamonds. The sister who was born in the United States was required to register because her husband was an unnaturalized native of Germany. The other sister, a native of Germany herself, was not required to register, because her husband was a native of this country.

Warm Arguments Mark Hearing of "Jimmy" Ford

Heated argument and racy testimony occupied more than four hours Friday morning when "Jimmy" Ford, charged with conspiracy to violate the Reed amendment, was given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Neely.

"Somebody has lied," was Neely's only comment at the conclusion of the case as he continued the hearing until 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Samuel Finsod, who was arrested at Plattsmouth, June 5, when government agents caught him with Ford's car full of liquor which, he admitted, he had brought from St. Joe, Mo., to Nebraska, testified that Ford had given him the money to purchase the liquor and had promised him $100 for making the trip.

Ford denied most of Finsod's statements, but said that he did lend him his car.

When Finsod was arrested at Plattsmouth he called Ford and Ford and his lawyer, Ross Shotwell, went to Plattsmouth.

Kerrigan Improves After Breaking Wrists in Fall

John J. Kerrigan, vice president of the Central Labor union, is at the Lord Lister hospital, where he is recovering from injuries received from a fall from a scaffold Tuesday. He had both wrists broken, one being broken in two places, and cuts and bruises in the knees and forehead. Mr. Kerrigan is 65 years old and was laid up several years ago with legs broken. His condition is reported as improving.

Omahan Joins Army To Avenge Two Brothers Wounded By Germans

Buffalo, N. Y., June 21.—(Special Telegram.)—Declaring that he would get revenge because two of his brothers having been wounded in France, Preston F. Bartlett of Omaha late Thursday in Erie, Pa., enlisted in the army. Bartlett's older brother, George, recently was awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery during the big drive early in May. George was wounded while carrying a wounded officer from No. Man's land to safety behind the trenches. He has since recovered and is again in action. Frank, another brother, suffered loss of an arm two months ago. The older Bartlett boy enlisted in the English army at Boston, Mass.

One-Minute Store Talk

Greater Nebraska is prepared to serve forehanded men with values that are mighty rare today.
