

OMAHA STRIDES AHEAD AS GREAT GRAIN MARKET

Gate City Runs Neck-and-Neck With Kansas City as Second Largest Center in World.

Omaha has hit its gait as a primary grain market, and it gains continue as they have in the last few years, grain men predict that it will not be long until it will lead the country.

While the figures on receipts of other grain markets are not available for the first six months of this year it is asserted that Omaha has passed all except Chicago and that it is running neck and neck with Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Peoria, Duluth, Winnepeg and the other market towns have been distanced.

Considering that the Omaha grain market has been in existence only 15 years, its record is regarded as marvelous, not only by members of the Omaha grain exchange, but by grain men the country over.

It is said that its importance as a grain market is largely due to the fact that the city is close to the center of the richest grain producing area in the world. In addition to this, it is asserted that Omaha grain dealers and commission men have established a reputation for fairness and honesty that has gone far and near and brought millions of dollars worth of business to their respective houses.

Railroad Center.

Added to all this is the fact that Omaha is the railroad center of the central portion of the United States, trunk lines radiating out in every direction, connecting with the seaboard, the mines, the forests and the manufacturing districts.

Besides, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and South Dakota, from which states Omaha draws the bulk of its grains are all rich in agricultural wealth and are regarded as constituting the bread basket of the world.

The half year's business of the Omaha grain exchange closed with June 29 and according to the books of Secretary Manchester, the total grain receipts for the six months aggregated 47,937,700 bushels. This is far in excess of any previous corresponding period and indicates that if the crops of this year, now growing in Omaha trade territory are as bountiful as they give promise of being, this year with the Omaha grain market will be a record breaker.

Story in Figures.

Figures never lie and they tell the following story with reference to the Omaha grain receipts for the months of January to June, inclusive, this year:

Kind of Grain	Bushels
Wheat	2,712,000
Corn	32,345,000
Oats	11,570,000
Rye	475,000
Barley	835,800

Total.....47,937,700

Had the wheat crop of Omaha trade territory been up to the average last year, during the six months that have passed, it is safe to say that at least 10,000,000 bushels would have been added to the total receipts of the Omaha market. However, regardless of the shortage in the wheat crop, a portion of the loss was made up by the receipt of other grain that came in much larger quantities than ever before during a corresponding period. In this respect the figures for the first six months of 1917 and which are as follows, are interesting:

Kinds of Grain	Bushels
Wheat	2,437,200
Corn	16,277,200
Oats	7,756,300
Rye	226,600
Barley	443,800

Total.....32,917,300

To permit of arriving at a conclusion as to the growth of Omaha's grain market, the following figures are given, showing the annual receipts of all kinds of grain, according to tabulations in the office of the secretary of the Omaha grain exchange. They are for full years and are:

1907, 42,597,000; 1908, 43,992,600; 1909, 43,469,600; 1910, 43,354,100; 1911, 45,281,600; 1912, 51,685,100; 1913, 68,574,700; 1914, 66,983,800; 1915, 53,555,800; 1916, 75,169,500; 1917, 66,462,100.

Dr. Wekerle said this covered the entire loss in prisoners, the troops to this number thus taken having left to cover a retirement on the Piave.

Dr. Wekerle, apparently treating on the question of the Austro-Hungarian losses in the recent fighting on the Italian front, said he would not attempt to disguise the fact that the casualties were heavy, totaling about 100,000, but he declared that a large percentage was due to sickness. He denied, however, that there had been a single case of death due to lack of food.

RAIN IS CHECK TO PIONEERS' PICNIC

Only Seventy-Five Venture Out in Defiance of Lowering Skies to Enjoy Annual Outing

Saturday was a day of picnics in Miller park, but the attendance was cut down by the light showers during the morning and the threatening weather in the afternoon.

It was the occasion for the mid-summer picnic of the Douglas County Association of Nebraska Pioneers. Instead of there being 300 to 500 out, as usual upon such occasions to join in the festivities and gather around the lunch baskets filled to bursting with good things, there were not to exceed 75 who ventured out in defiance of what gave promise of being a rainy afternoon.

At noon the Pioneers partook of the basket lunch and for an hour thereafter rehearsed events that occurred anywhere from 40 to 50 years ago in Omaha and Douglas county.

Two o'clock was the hour fixed for carrying out the program and the start was on time, notwithstanding the smallness of the crowd. M. J. Feenan presided and was assisted by A. Metzler, chairman, and Mesdames Fissett and Stevenson of the reception committee.

Dunn Leads Singing.

To start the program Henry W.

Dunn led in the singing of "America," after which Mayor Smith delivered a short address, laying particular force on what the pioneers of Douglas county have done in the way of building up the state.

Over in the center of the park the Sunday school of the North Presbyterian church held forth with its annual picnic. The attendance was something like 200 and the young folks amused themselves with games, while the older ones looked on. There was plenty of lemonade and lunch for everybody.

Not far from the North Presbyterian folks was the Sunday school picnic of the Plymouth Congregational church. There were 100 or so in this gathering and during the afternoon there was a program of games, a basket lunch being served later in the day.
